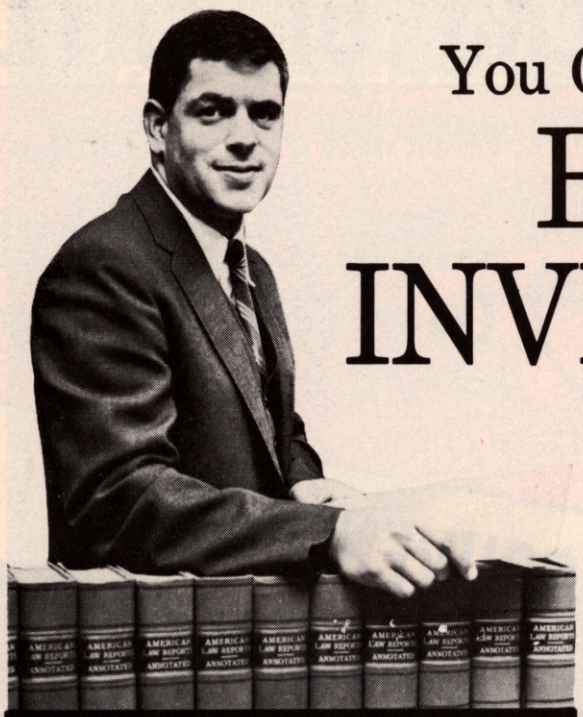
You Can Work For Law Firms!

BE A LEGAL INVESTIGATOR



Universal Graduates Find Success In Legal Investigation

HOOD

DAVIDSON

"From my first eight contacts with lawyers I got 21 cases. Now I have more to do than I can handle."
Julian Hood, Arkansas

"Earnings climbing — impossible for me to put a value on my training from Universal Schools."
A. L. Davidson, Idaho

DUBOIS

WILLIAMS

"Thanks to Universal for a start in a most interesting and rewarding career. There is certainly nothing lacking in your training."
Robert Dubois, Illinois

"Thank you for the wonderful training. I now have my own successful business."
James Williams, Kentucky

"If it had not been for Universal Schools, I would not be presently employed as a Legal Investigator."
Bill H. Young, Texas

"Your school gave me the front door to success. I have a growing business."
A. L. Goan, Tennessee

Think what this career could mean to your life and income: You are a key employee of influential law firms. Your friends and associates are leading trial attorneys. Dramatic court actions may turn on evidence you discover. You are surrounded by the prestige and power of the legal profession—in perfect position to become one of the top earners in your community.

These tremendous advantages can be yours soon if you train now to be a Legal Investigator. Legal Investigators are men who are especially trained to handle pre-trial investigations for lawyers.

You Search For Truth

As a Legal Investigator you gather the evidence, the witnesses, the facts the attorney must have before he goes to court or attempts to settle a lawsuit.

Your fascinating job is to search out the truth–the whole truth–in a lawsuit; your work is a pursuit of justice.

Widespread Need For Trained Men

Today there's a growing need for many more trained Legal Investigators wherever lawyers practice—in cities, towns, rural counties. Here's why:

More lawsuits are being started now than at any time in legal history. Good trial lawyers are overwhelmed with work. Courts are clogged with cases. Tens-of-thousands of new lawsuits are started every year.

Every case requires days, weeks, even months, of pre-trial investigation. Busy trial lawyers no longer have time to do all this work alone. They need the help of trained Legal Investigators. That need means rare opportunity for you.

Train At Home In Your Spare Time

You can rapidly qualify to be a Legal Investigator through spare time study at home. You simply read fascinating lessons mailed to you from Universal Schools, largest training organization in the field. No college or experience required.

Free Book Tells You How

Learn how rapidly and easily you can prepare for a remarkable career in Legal Investigation. Learn how other men like you have found professional success with Universal training.

Send now for a 28-page Free Book of Facts on Legal Investigation. No obligation; no salesman will call. Mail the coupon below or write to Universal Schools, 6801 Hillcrest, Dallas, Texas 75205.

NAT FLEISCHER SPEAKS OUT

NOW let us have a look at the extravaganza in which Cassius Clay was assisted, more or less, by Buster Mathis, at Houston, Tex.

Mathis, who had been out of action for two and a half years, was not fit physically and mentally to return to the ring against a foe like Clay.

However, a rash Jimmy Iselin, manager of Buster, backed the Houston enterprise liberally and is reported to have lost $100,000.

There was no call for the match.

There was absolutely no demand for the exhibition as a Clay preparation for the expected confrontation with Joe Frazier, for which the world champion has set no date. In fact, no year.

It is very compassionate for Cassius to extend largesse to fellow boxers in need, as Mathis was said to have been when he entered the Astrodome ring.

But affairs of that type do boxing no good. The mess was advertised as being a serious fracas in a serious business in a serious environment.

You might argue that if a customer wants to go for the mismatch, let him go. But that is not the true philosophy of professional boxing. Promoters are supposed to prevent mismatches, and the public is supposed to be protected from them.

Clay, fat at 227, did not look as good as he had appeared to be the night Frazier beat him in New York.

Mathis, game and willing, did all he could to make it appear to be a real contest. But he failed and so much the worse for him. Where does he go now?

The financial result of the event was not encouraging. In Madison Square Garden, where Pinder beat Vasquez again on a live card preceding the closed circuit TV showing of the Houston struggle, there were not more than 8,000 customers, on a clear night. The fans would not go for the idea that there was a ghost of a chance that Mathis would extend Clay.

What with one thing and another, it was, in the end result, virtually a benefit for Buster. Some say he got $15,000 out of the transaction. He is a nice guy and I hope he got more, and wish he had done better.

There has been some talk of Clay's signing for a dozen scattered appearances on closed circuit.

Where would the promoters find a dozen heavyweights who could do any better than Mathis, if as well?

There had been some conversation of Cassius going to London to fight Jack Bodell. But Jerry Quarry ruined that scheme by stopping Jack with one punch. A right to the chin, and off went Bodell to dreamland.

To top it off, Bodell, in his next outing, was stopped in the second round by Jose Manuel Ibar Urtain, thus losing his European heavyweight title. Urtain had seemingly been on the way down after having once held the European title.

I am sad over the way the fight game has been going in Britain. I have been there times innumerable and seen capable fighters, not always world champions, but men worthy of their leather.

But now there is a dire dearth of top flight British boxers in all classes, with stress on the heavyweight division.

Joe Bugner carried the hopes of many in England, but Bodell beat him decisively. Then Bodell was England's hope. Quarry and Urtain killed off that scintilla.

If Clay, Frazier and Foreman had serious intentions in the direction of London, the plans now lie dead. There is nobody for them to meet over there.

The situation appears to call for a serious inquiry. What is wrong with the fight game in Britain, especially among the heavies?

There is a lot of boxing in England. In fact, there is more small club activity than you will find in the United States. There is scarcely a town of any size in the Tight Little Isle which does not support a club.

The dine and look clubs have been doing well. I note, with some dismay, that the ancient and honorable National Sporting Club is not represented often among the results sent to The Ring by Eddie Long, its British correspondent. But that old club still is alive, and that's something.

As I see it, the biggest threats to boxing the world over are:

1 – The stiff;

2 – The incompetent or biased referee.

The stiffs have to be weeded out, for their own if not entirely for the public good. Promoters have got to help.

The biased referee, whose machinations have been noted in many spots the world over, is either too stupid, too easily driven off his course, or plain dishonest. He has got to be eliminated. Organizations with alleged worldwide influence and authority have got to use more care and better judgment in certifying referees. That job is easy enough.

Promoters can stop the stiffs and the biased officials. There is no reason why a boxer with a winning percentage of .100 should be encouraged to continue in the ring, and there is no reason why a referee not 100% competent should be afforded a chance to continue officiating.

As for the World Boxing Council considering action against Erbito Salivarria, world flyweight champion, for drinking sugared water against Betulio Gonzalez, it is to laugh.

What are the precise components of sugar water, Messrs. WBC officials? Are you putting us on?

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS are paid out to lucky finders of valuable coins. With every passing year, thousands of men, women, and even children, in every state of the union, stumble upon coins worth a tidy little fortune. Possibly, at this very moment, you too may have a nickle or dime jingling in your pocket, worth thousands. Or an ordinary penny valued at $500.00 or more . . . a quarter for which we'll pay you more than $3,000.00. Stop and think. Have you paid for your newspaper, gum or cigarettes with coins worth hundreds or thousands of times their face value?

WE OFFER YOU BIG CASH FOR SMALL CHANGE

Coins don't have to be old to command a high price. In fact, huge sums are shelled out every year for coins no older than 1940 or 1950. We'll pay you RICH REWARDS for ordinary, "every day" coins having certain dates, marks or tiny letters.

NOW . . . CASH IN ON FABULOUS COIN BONANZA

Literally millions of collectors are eager to buy rare coins. Some collectors will gladly pay the price of a new Cadillac or new home to get certain plain looking but very rare coins with a tiny mark or date. Coins worth much more than their face value, are exchanged every day, without being recognized. Some people have one or more of these coins in their piggy bank or purse . . . or even jingling in their pockets—right now. But the pity of it is that they don't know about it.

NEW 1972 U.S. COIN BOOK HELPS YOU SPOT RARE COINS

Now available to serious, ambitious coin hunters: the all-new 1972 U.S. COIN CATALOG. It lists hundreds of valuable coins we want to buy at once. It gives you the range of prices we pay — in hard cash — for each listed coin. It shows you how to spot rare marks or dates on certain ordinary looking coins . . . how to increase your chances to find valuable coins . . . how to ship coins safely. You'll be amazed at the big prices we offer you! Yes, this book is a real eye-opener.

TRY YOUR LUCK

This valuable book costs only $1 but its valuable knowledge could reward you with sudden wealth. Let's face it: many millions of dollars have been paid out to Coin Hunters. Join the hunt for coins. It's thrilling, enjoyable, fascinating. No hard work. No experience. No cost. However it does take ambition, dedication and patience, plus several hours of your time each week. Then some day, sooner or later, you too may strike it rich, as have so many thousands of other persons. Yes! Some day you too may experience the thrill of a lifetime as you come across a rare coin worth more than you had every dreamed possible.

ABOVE PICTURE shows 1804 Silver Dollar. 19,000 were minted. Only 12 were accounted for. What happened to the remainder? A fortune awaits the lucky finder!

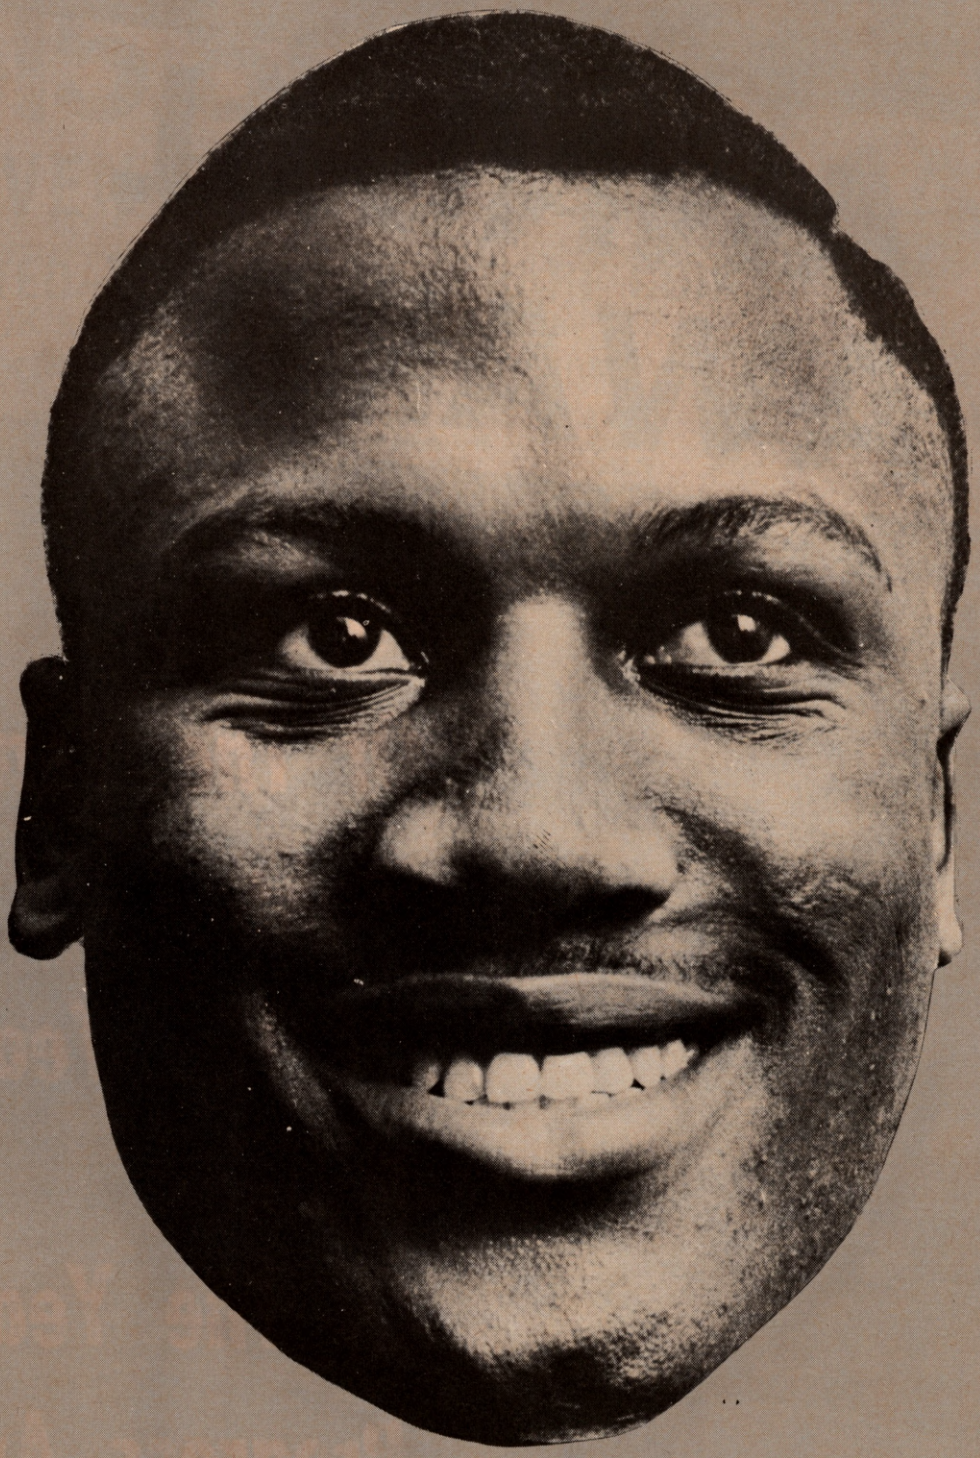
FIGHTER of the year



JOE FRAZIER

By DAN DANIEL

THE Ring's Fighter of the Year competition for 1971 was decided as early as March 8, when Jose Frazier retained the heavyweight championship of the world with a 15 round decision over Cassius Clay.

The year's fistic leadership went with the unanimous decision in one of the most widely publicized and ardently discussed battles in the history of the heavyweight division.

The supremacy of Frazier was stressed by the fact that the Fighter of the Year award was his for the second consecutive year, and the third time in five years.

He achieved it for the first time in 1967. Nino Benvenuti was the winner in 1968 and Jose Napoles in 1969. Then came Frazier, who in 1970 knocked out

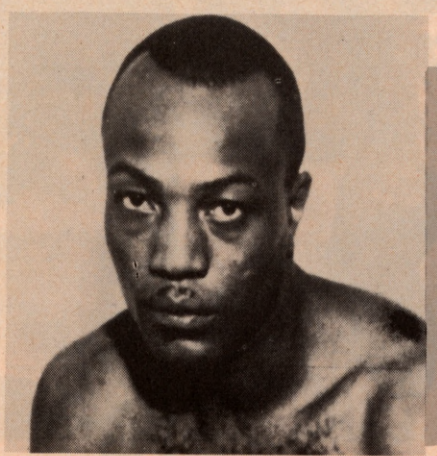
2-KEN BUCHANAN

THE name of the game is boxing, and if anybody, the world over, can match Ken Buchanan purely as a wielder of gloves, he has not made his appearance. Many years have passed since boxing had a technician who matched the Scot in adroitness and agility. He had two title defenses, and a non-championship fight, in 1971. He whipped Ismael Laguna, from whom he won the lightweight title in 1970, and outpointed Ruben Navarro. The title was not at stake when he knocked out Carlos Hernandez in eight rounds.

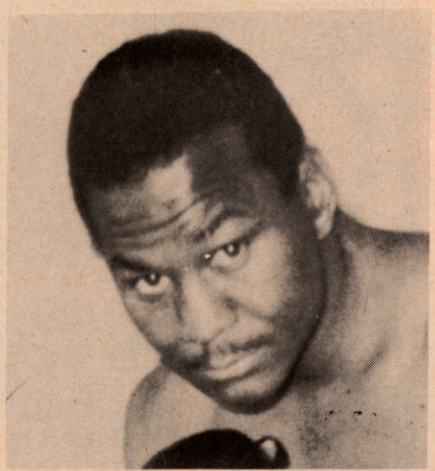
3-CARLOS MONZON

THIS hard-hitting Argentinian, who took the world middleweight title from Nino Benvenuti in 1970, had five fights in 1971. All five resulted in knockout successes for the South American version of Stanley Ketchel. On May 9, Monzon stopped Benvenuti in three rounds at Monte Carlo. The defeat of the former titleholder was so emphatic that it appears to have driven him into retirement. On September 25, in Buenos Aires, Monzon knocked out Emile Griffith in 14 rounds.



4-BOB FOSTER

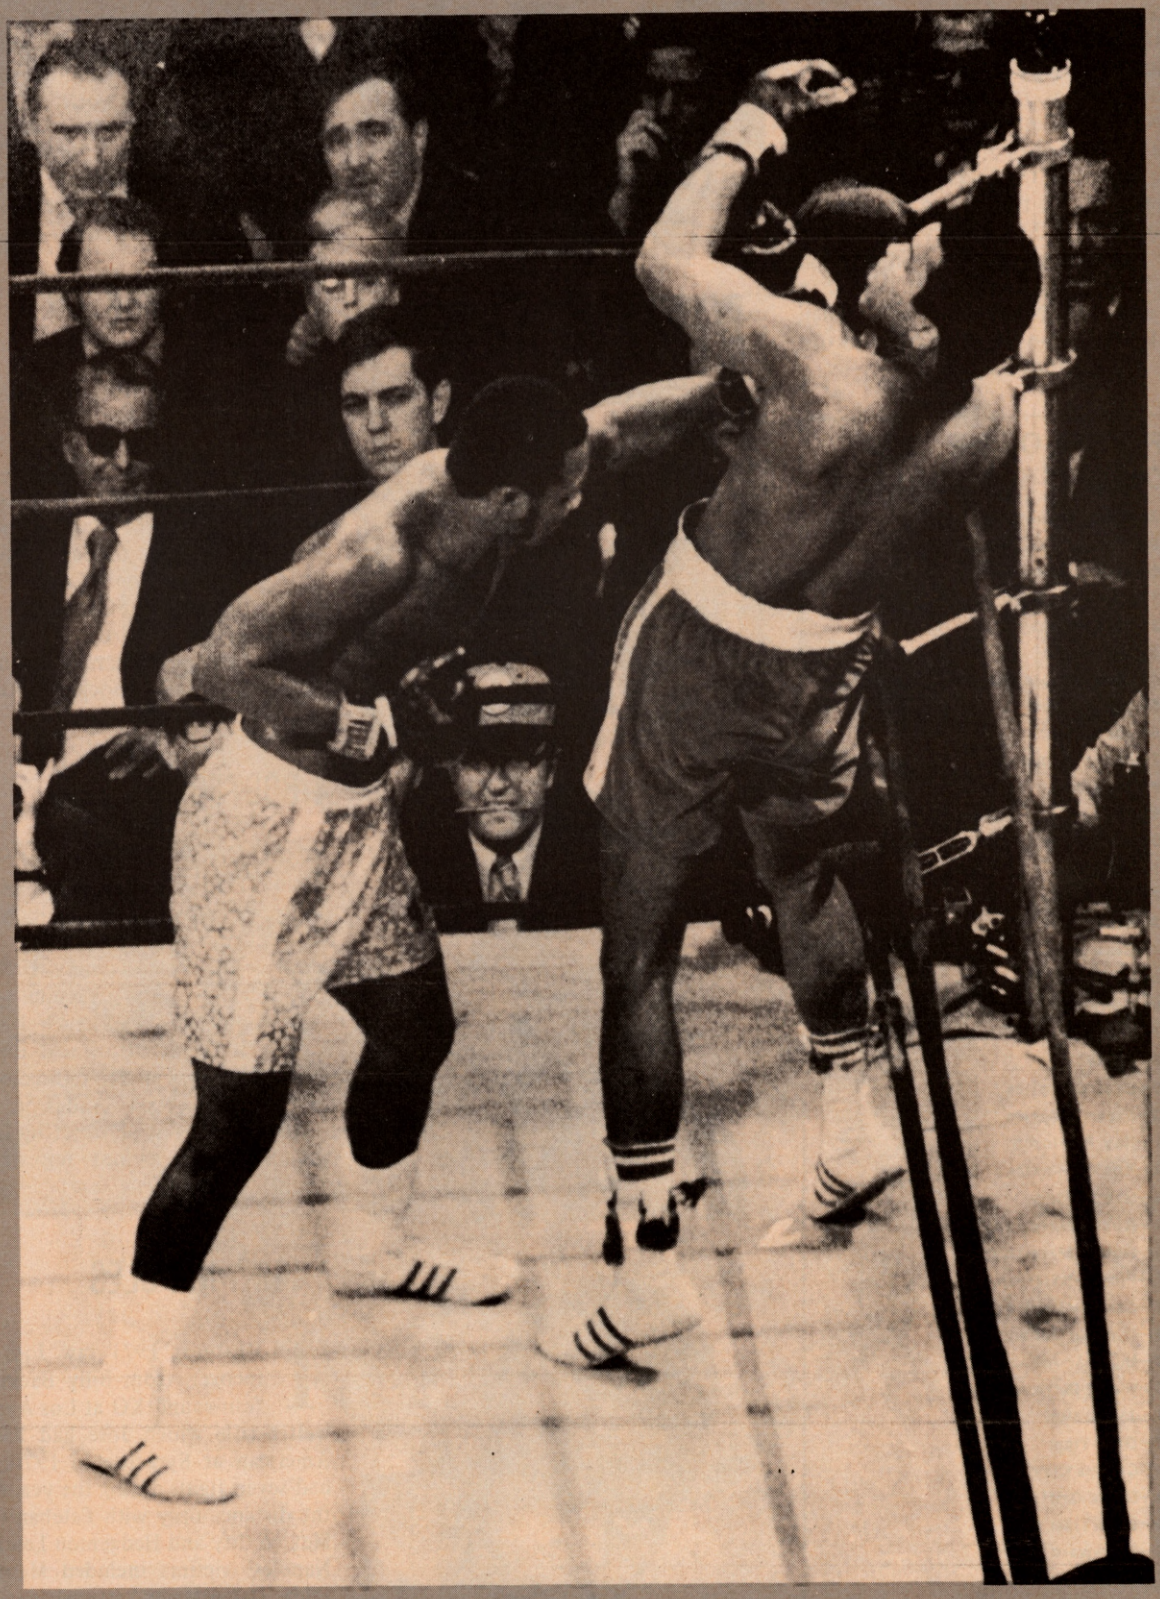
IN retaining his 175-pound leadership in 1971, Bob Foster made five appearances, four of which resulted in knockouts. These finishes ahead of schedule involved Tommy Hicks, eight rounds at Scranton; Vernon McIntosh, three rounds at Miami Beach; Hal Carroll, four heats at Scranton; and Brian Kelly Burden, three rounds at Oklahoma City. At Tampa, Ray Anderson, former contender, scored an upset by lasting 15 rounds. This was not regarded as an earth-shaking achievement.



5-JOSE NAPOLES

THE year 1971 saw Jose Napoles recover, from Billy Backus with a four-round KO at Los Angeles, the welter title which Jose had lost to the American at Syracuse in 1970. Napoles had seven fights during the year and went the distance only with Esteban Osuna, in Mexico City and Hedgemon Lewis in L.A. Napoles' victims included Manuel Gonzalez, David Melendez, and Jean Josselin. Napoles finished up the year 1971 with the victory over Lewis in 15.

FIGHT of the year



FRAZIER vs. CLAY, March 8, 1971

By GEORGE GIRSCH

THAT the Joe Frazier-Cassius Clay battle in New York's Madison Square Garden was the Fight Of The Year for 1971, there is no question. The titanic showdown between the current champion and former champion had all the elements for one of the Battles of the Ages.

Though Clay has persisted in saying he won the bout, there is no question that Frazier was the superior battler on that March evening which saw him win his 27th contest in an undefeated career which began in 1965.

According to the official scorecards, there was no doubt as to who the victor was. Referee Arthur Mercante saw it 8-6-1; judge Artie Aidala called it 9-6, and judge Bill Recht had it 11-4, all, of course, for Smokin' Joe.

As round after round went by it became apparent to all, including those rooting for Clay, that this was not to be Cassius' night. Frazier kept boring in, hammering his powerful lefts and rights to chin and body. No one, except perhaps Cassius himself, was fooled by Clay's play acting on the ropes and his headshaking denials of injury whenever he was clipped.

The most thrilling moment occurred when Clay hit the canvas in the 15th round. Excitement hit the Garden crowd as much as any moment in ring history. Would Cassius be able to get up, or had he been humiliatingly stopped by a man whom he had ridiculed?

Clay got to his feet and weathered the storm until the end of the contest. But the fans had gotten their money's worth for the evening with the thrill of that knockdown.

Along with the 15th round, perhaps the focal point of the evening centered on Round 11, when it appeared that Cassius was in real jeopardy.

Absorbing what appeared to be some of the most damaging blows of the bout, Clay seemed to be on the verge of being floored and perhaps even stopped. Most of the crowd thought he was hurt. Cassius says he was not. Referee Mercante thought that, while Cassius may have been momentarily stunned, he was not hurt as seriously as he appeared to be and was not in danger of being knocked out.

There was no doubt that Frazier had much more power in his punches than Clay. Joe took control of the bout from the beginning and never let up throughout the entire 15 rounds.

Clay attempted to dance around during the first two sessions. He was loose and seemingly confident. Frazier wasn't bothered, though. Joe just kept fighting his fight.

2-BUCHANAN-LAGUNA

KEN Buchanan's successful defense of his lightweight crown against ex-titleholder Ismael Laguna in Madison Square Garden was rated the No. 2 Fight Of The Year. Buchanan's gritty performance against the man from Panama showed that not only is the Scotsman one of the most talented boxers of the day, but one of the gamest, as well. Though his face was gory throughout from cuts around the eyes, Buchanan earned a unanimous decision in a fine bout, thrilling all the way from first bell to last.

3-OLIVARES-CASTILLO

Ruben Olivares' winning his bantamweight crown back from Chucho Castillo in a 15-rounder at the Inglewood Forum was picked as third best Fight Of The Year. Olivares' condition was the deciding factor as he dealt out powerful punishment, relentlessly applying the pressure with stinging left hooks and right crosses. What appears to have spurred Ruben on to victory and put fire in his golden fists was the knockdown he suffered in the sixth. From the 10th on, there was little doubt of the outcome.

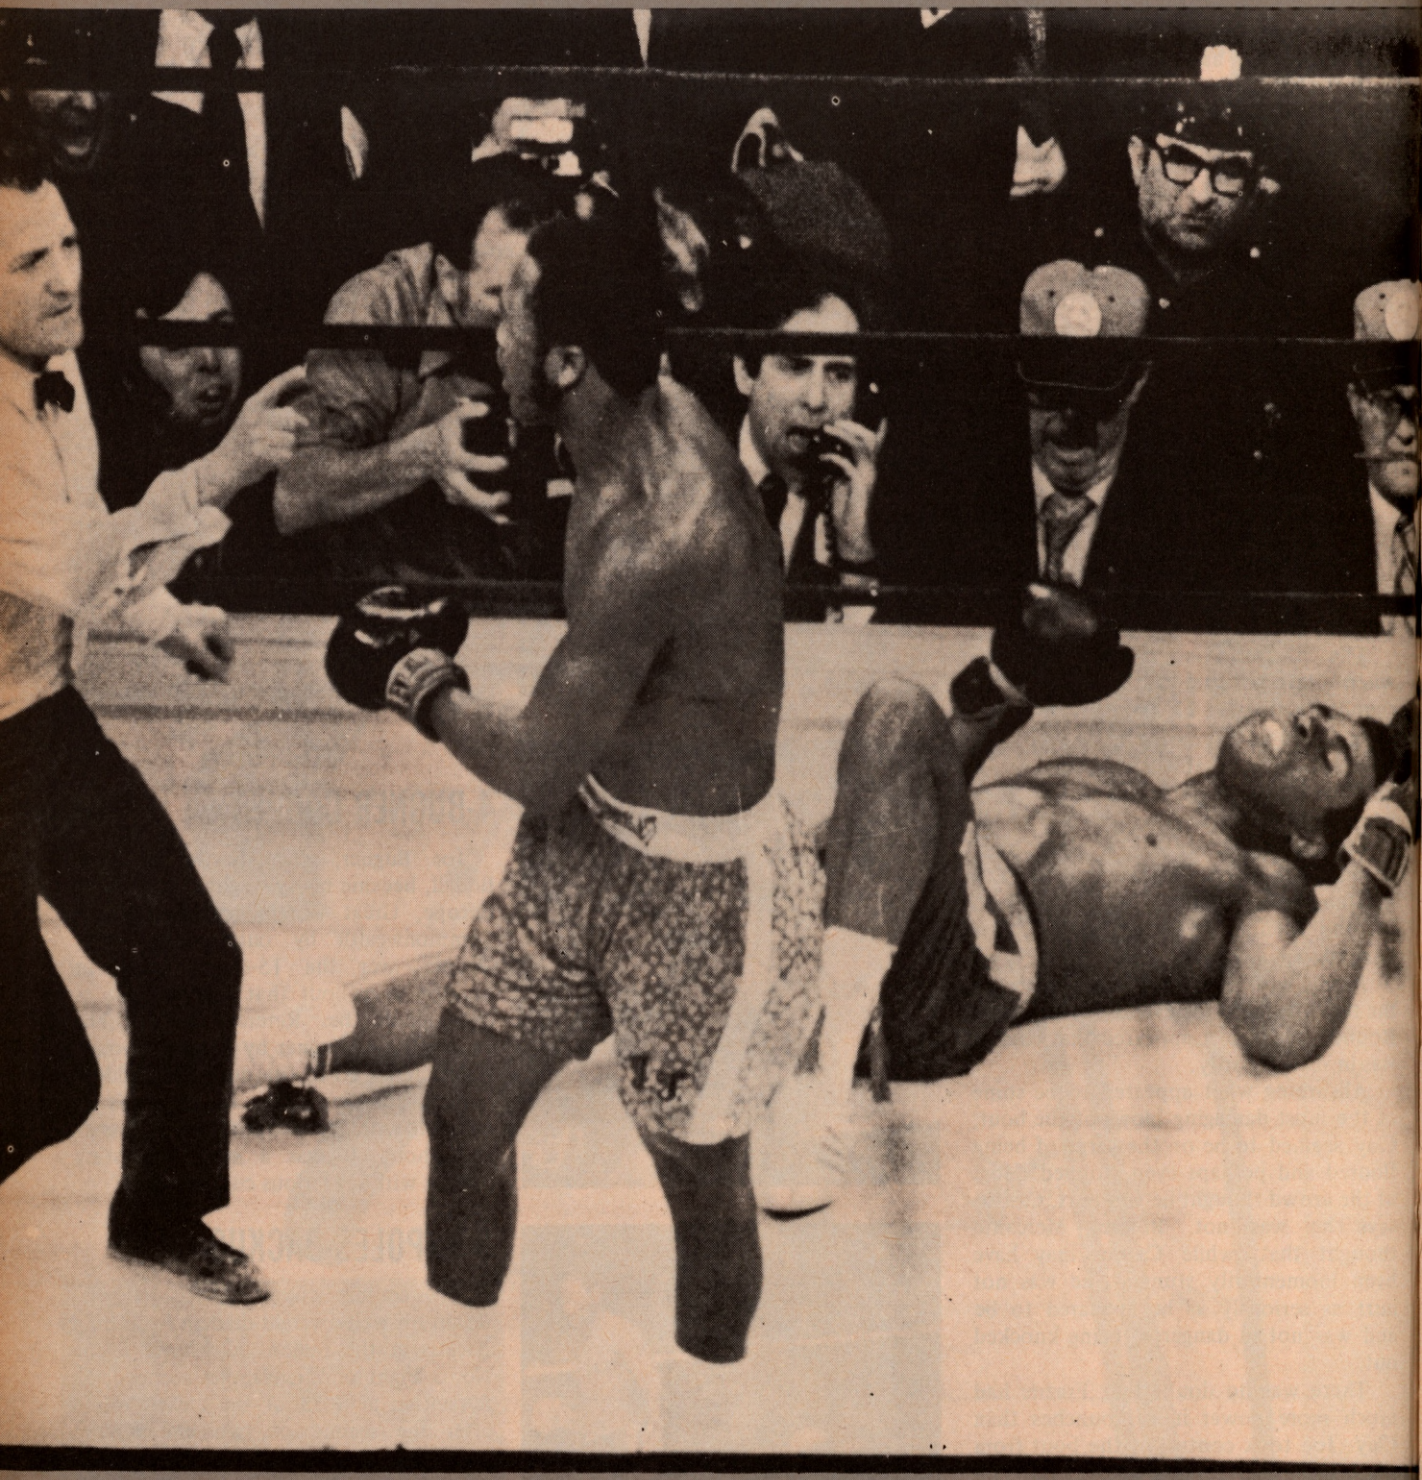
4-BUGNER-COOPER

Joe Bugner, since beaten by Jack Bodell, became heavyweight champion of Europe, Great Britain and the British Commonwealth by outpointing Henry Cooper over the 15-round route in London in a bout that was as close as close could be. Referee Harry Gibbs awarded it to Bugner by a quarter-point. Henry appeared to tire during the middle rounds, but never gave up trying as he mixed it with the Hungarian-born Bugner throughout. It was a most interesting contest without serious cuts or hurts.

5-NAPOLES-BACKUS

The contest which saw Jose Napoles regain his welterweight diadem from Billy Backus at the Inglewood Forum is the No. 5 Fight of '71. Napoles stopped the Syracusan at 1:53 of the eighth round after the second of two knockdowns forced referee Dick Young to halt matters. Napoles did quite a job on Backus's face, battering it into a gory mess. Jose's only anxious moment occurred in the first round when Backus opened a cut near his right eye. From there on, it was only a matter of time.

ROUND of the year



FRAZIER-CLAY 15th

By GEORGE GIRSCH

HIGHLIGHTED by the spectacle of Cassius Clay being knocked to the canvas, the 15th round of the Frazier-Clay bout is the unanimous selection for 1971 Round Of The Year honors.

The sight of the former heavyweight king hitting the deck after being socked by a left hook will always be remembered vividly by those who witnessed that exciting moment.

Could he get up? Would he get up? Everyone was straining to see if Clay was badly hurt, and if he could manage to rise and last the full distance. It was truly a moment of high drama in ring history. Clay was sprawled on his back, stunned by the suddenness and strength of Frazier's attack.

Madison Square Garden was in a frenzy as Smokin' Joe wended his way toward a neutral corner and referee Arthur Mercante began to count over Clay. But Cassius jumped up at three, took the mandatory eight and managed to put on somewhat of a flurry and finish out the 15.

There was no question that Cassius was in dire straits when that blow struck. He showed much gameness, and ability to take a punch, by getting up and resuming the battle. It was only the third time Cassius had been floored in a career which began in 1960. The other two to deck him were Henry Cooper, in their first bout, and Sonny Banks.

There are those who still believe Clay would have had a good chance to capture the official nod if he was not floored in the 15th. However, he was beaten before that occurred, with or without the fateful knockdown.

Although both battlers were tired by the time the final round approached, it appeared that Clay was the more fatigued. Thus, when opportunity presented itself in the form of a good opening, Joe had the strength and power to do the job.

There are many who felt, and still feel, that Frazier had an even better opportunity to finish his man off in the 11th round, when he had Clay on queer street, though Cassius denied he was hurt.

However, Bundini, a member of Clay's corner entourage, told the assembled press after the bout:

"I prayed for him in the 11th. He was on queer street."

Clay, a proud man, especially where his ring ability is concerned, felt humiliated in being sent to the floor by a man he felt he was going to defeat. But the humiliation didn't last long as he proceeded to ignore that fact and announce to all who would listen that he really won.

Cassius did concede, though, that he

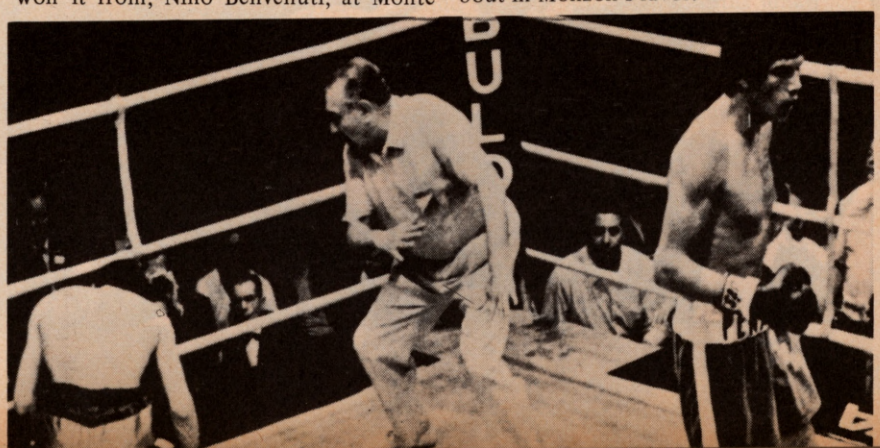
5-MONZON-BENVENUTI 3rd

Amid another controversial ending, Carlos Monzon successfully defended his middleweight crown against the man he won it from, Nino Benvenuti, at Monte Carlo. It was in the third round that Monzon sent Nino to the canvas. As Nino rose, his manager, Bruno Amaduzzi, tossed a towel into the ring. It was then that referee Victor Avendano stopped the bout in Monzon's favor.



2-BUCHANAN-LAGUNA 11th

The most furiously fought round of the Buchanan-Laguna lightweight title bout was the 11th, when they swapped telling punches, shaking each other up. It was in that round that Ken, master boxer, showed the Panamanian he could take his best shots and come back for more. If there had been any doubt about the outcome of the bout up to that point, Buchanan's performance in that round dispelled it as he went on to victory and successfully defended his crown.

3-QUARRY-BODELL 1st

The stunning suddenness of Jerry Quarry's one-round kayo of European, British and Commonwealth heavyweight king Jack Bodell made that session the No. 3 Round of the Year. Bodell had stumbled to the canvas earlier on a slip, then ran into Quarry's tremendous right to the chin and was counted out after 64 seconds. It took 30 seconds for Jack to be revived. Bodell's sad fate left British heavyweight boxing in a shambles.

4-CARRASCO-RAMOS 10th

Though the ending of the Pedro Carrasco-Mando Ramos bout ended in confusion, there was no doubt about the fact that Carrasco was decked twice in the 10th round and appeared to be finished there and then. But Pedro somehow valiently weathered the storm and survived through the 11th, in which heat he was decked for the fourth time in the bout at Madrid, Spain. After the bell rang for the 12th, Nigerian referee Samuel Odubote halted matters and somehow disqualified Ramos for illegal punching.

PROGRESS AWARD Of The Year

By JOHN ORT

THE year 1971 was a bright one for young boxers, which made it difficult for The Ring staff to pick the winner of the Progress Award. The five most prominent candidates were junior lightweight king Alfredo Marcano, Venezuela; Jean-Claude Bouttier, middleweight from France; Los Angeles welterweight Armando Muniz; junior lightweight Ray Lampkin, Portland, Ore.; British and Empire light heavyweight champion Chris Finnegan, the winner.

Chris entered 1971 as a Class "C" middleweight. He started to climb and ended up being rated Group II, #3 light heavy in the world with a 15-round nod over Eddie Avoth, to win the Empire and British titles.

Up to this point Chris managed a 14-2 record, losing in 1970 to Denmark's Tom Bogs in his quest of the European middleweight title.

For 1971, his mark was five wins and one draw. He drew with Conny Velensek, Germany, in a contest for the European light heavyweight title, in Berlin. The 1969 Olympic middleweight king then scored three kayos over Pete Riccitelli, 4, Bob Benoit, 8, and Roger Rouse, 4.

Finnegan's biggest win of the year was a ten round decision over light heavyweight Hal "TNT" Carroll, Syracuse, N.Y. His career record at press time is 19-2-1, scoring 13 kayos. Finnegan is a southpaw.

Venezuelan Alfredo Marcano came from Group II, #9 in the featherweight division to become world junior lightweight champion. The 23 year old Marcano started his career in 1966, and fought for the next four years in his native land. Over this period he boxed Nestor Rojas, Bernardo Caraballo, Calvin Woodland, Cruz Marcano, Miguel Herrera, Enrique Higgens, and Antonio Herrera.

He was one of two boxers whom the late Cruz Marcano did not defeat. Up until 1971 that was Alfredo's only claim to fame. He also has split two bouts with the World Boxing Council version of junior lightweight king, Ricardo Arredondo. Last year he stopped Hiroshi Kobayashi in ten rounds in Aomori, Japan to win the title.

Alfredo has defended his crown once since, by kayoing Japanese contendor Kenji Iwata in four rounds at Caracas. His lifetime record is 32-7-4, scoring 20 kayos. He is 25 years old.

French middleweight champion Jean-Claude Bouttier is the No. 3 man in the 1971 race. He was rated no better than a "B" middleweight in 1970. 1971 was a banner year for the 29-year old European middleweight king, who ended the year rated #1 in Group I.

Jean began his career in 1965 and has compiled a record of 52-3-1, with 34 kayos. His three losses came at the hands of Juarez de Lima twice, and Lonnie Harris, of Los Angeles. He avenged his defeat by Harris last year with a five round kayo. He also gained a victory over de Lima in 1970.

Bouttier's record for 1971 reads like this: kayos over Pascal DiBenedetto, 5; Tom Bethea, 2; Lonnis Harris, 5; Dave Adkins, 7; Raul Soriano, 4; and a 15-round nod over Juan Carlos Duran in which Jean-Claude won the European middleweight title. In his last bout of 1971 he successfully defended his title against British champion Bunny Sterling, via a 14th-round kayo.

The No. 4 man on our list is fast-rising Los Angeles welterweight Armando Muniz. The AAU welterweight Alfredo Marcano of Venezuela, world junior lightweight champion.

Jean-Claude Bouttier of France ranks third among the progressors. He recently stopped Bunny Sterling in 14 rounds.

Welterweight Armando Muniz, shown with his wife and baby, stopped Clyde Gray in nine rounds, his top victory of 1971.

champion was rated a "B" in 1970, but finished last year as Group II, #4 welterweight contender.

Muniz started boxing in July, 1970, and has remained undefeated. The only blot on his record is a ten-round draw with Oscar Alvarado. Last year he engaged in eight bouts, winning seven and gaining the draw.

Armando knocked out Mike Seyler, 3; James Caffey, 7; Mario Marquez (who holds a win over Fraser Scott), 3; Gil King, former junior welterweight contendor, 5; and his biggest to date, Canadian welterweight champion Clyde Gray, 9. The only opponents to go the distance with him, other than Alvarado, were Cipriano Hernandez and Chu Chu Garcia, both of whom lost ten round decisions. Muniz's career record is 16-0-1 with 12 knockouts.

Rounding out 1971's top five is Portland, Ore. junior lightweight Ray Lampkin. The 23-year-old is undefeated in 13 bouts, scoring seven kayos. Ray's career began in 1968. He quit after this one bout, but resumed in 1969. He finds it tough to come up with featherweights who will box him, so he has engaged in bouts with lightweights and junior welterweights.

In 1970 he was rated "C" in the lightweight division. Last year he wound up in Group II, #10, in the junior lightweight class. Ray started 1971 as a main event contestant, with all his bouts ending in knockouts. He has kayoed Andy Anderson, welterweight, 7; Dick Lewis, lightweight, 2; Al Foster, welterweight, 4; Gene Green, lightweight, 1; and junior lightweight, Mexican Jesse Robles, 8. For these bouts Lampkin never went over 133 pounds, always giving away weight to his opponents.

Honorable mention for the year goes to the following:

ROUNDUP Of The Year

By NAT LOUBET

THE story of boxing in 1971 was dominated by The Big Fight! Joe Frazier, heavyweight champion of the world, summoned all his talents and defeated Cassius Clay (Muhammed Ali), former heavyweight king, in a meeting termed by many The Fight Of The Century.

The March 8 fight in New York's Madison Square Garden, in which Frazier gained a fifteen round unanimous decision over his controversial challenger, established a new indoor record of $1,352,951 paid by 20,455 fans. Tickets went for $20 to $150. An all-time high.

Each fighter received a quarter of a million before taxes for his services. Closed circuit television and the Garden each made a bundle and the promoters of the contest, money-man Jack Kent Cooke, and Jerry Perenchio had a take of as high as a 20 million gross. Only Uncle Sam's tax beavers ever will know the exact figures.

As the world picture is changing in every facet so is boxing. Like football, basketball and other sports, boxing is a game of extremes. A fighter either starves or hits golconda. One thing is sure, the fans got their money's worth, and boxing prospered.

New York boxing took it on the chin when the state decided to enforce a greedy tax bite and sent its money bunnies to the Garden box office for their share. 1972 could be a bleak year for New York big time boxing unless the state relents and gives out of state and foreign fighters a better shake.

Joe Frazier is one of few heavyweight champs to lack real sock outside the ring. Joe's tours with his Knockouts, a musical combo, in the U.S. and Europe were less than spectacular at the box office. In contrast, Cassius Clay's exhibitions in South America and other places have been a cash smash. Where there's Clay there's pay.

The year 1971 rung down the curtain with 12 current and former heavyweight champions of the world alive. Joe Louis, a legend in his time, fell into, and pulled himself out of, a serious illness and faces 1972 with his chin set firmly.

Women's Lib began taking shots at boxing and M.G.M. helped the girls with their movie, "The Battling Broad", with Ramona Markley doing a splendid job as a fighter. We have had many women connected with boxing, Mrs. Aileen Eaton as a promoter. Katie Jenkins was a trainer and second, then the wife of former lightweight champion Lew Jenkins. Karen Paradee currently is manager of Lobito Montoya.

The Harris Survey, in its annual check of 12 different sports to determine interest in households across the U.S. in 1971, indicated that boxing had increased in interest by some 14%, the biggest jump in interest of any sport, including football.

Something new was attempted with a tripleheader of fights sold across the country on closed circuit. The endeavor discouraged further such experimentation. The enterprise was a dismal failure both fistically and financially.

At Oakland, Cal., George Foreman knocked out Gregorio Peralta in the 10th round. Those close to the Foreman camp were downcast at the long time it took George to dispose of his man.

At Chicago, Joe Kellman, the promoter, was bagged to the tune of over $10,000 for his part in attempting to help Ernie Terrell on the comeback trail. Ernie could not dispose of Luis Pires, of Brazil, and had to settle for a ten round decision before an attendance of only 800.

The third segment of the venture was held in Toronto before a turnout of some 6000 patrons and the promotion was reported to have made money. Ellis won a unanimous decision after ten rounds over George Chuvalo. The win assured for Ellis the July 26th fight with Cassius Clay in which he was knocked out in 12 rounds.

This was the year in which a basketball player was talked up as an opponent for Clay...Wilt The Stilt Chamberlain was the name...Had they fought he never would have been the same.

This was the year that Jackie Robinson, first black baseball player in major leagues, was named to the New York State Athletic Commission.

This was the year that Dick Tiger, twice winner of the middleweight title and once the light heavyweight crown; retired and returned to Nigeria where he passed away of a liver ailment. He was a man of heart, both inside and outside the ring.

This was the year that Joe Lewis, claimant of the world heavyweight Karate crown, decided that he would enter the ranks of professional boxing.

This was the year that The Ring answered the question "Who was the hardest heavyweight puncher?" The statistics were emphatic, with Rocky Marciano coming out with the best KO percentage. This hasn't settled the question by a long shot, since experts will debate items that are not pure statistics, calibre of opponents, number of contests fought and other such items.

Boxing champions were a busy lot in 1971 with more professional fighters and fights recorded than in many a year. The new Ring Record Book and Encyclopedia covers more ground than any previous book in The Ring's 50 years of publishing.

The light heavyweight champion and the class has never been a major crowd attraction, not since its inception in 1903 when Lou Houseman, a Chicago newspaper man, came up with the idea. The current boss of the division is no exception. Bob Foster is a top technichian with a knockout punch but his box office allure is not great.

The WBA light heavyweight champion is Vicente Rondon. He received his diadem from the WBA when, after giving Foster the boot, they declared the title vacant and Vicente fought Jimmy Dupree on February 27. Dupree was knocked out in 2:58 of the sixth round and Rondon had a clear title to the WBA's alleged championship. Boxing at large still considers Foster the legitimate champion.

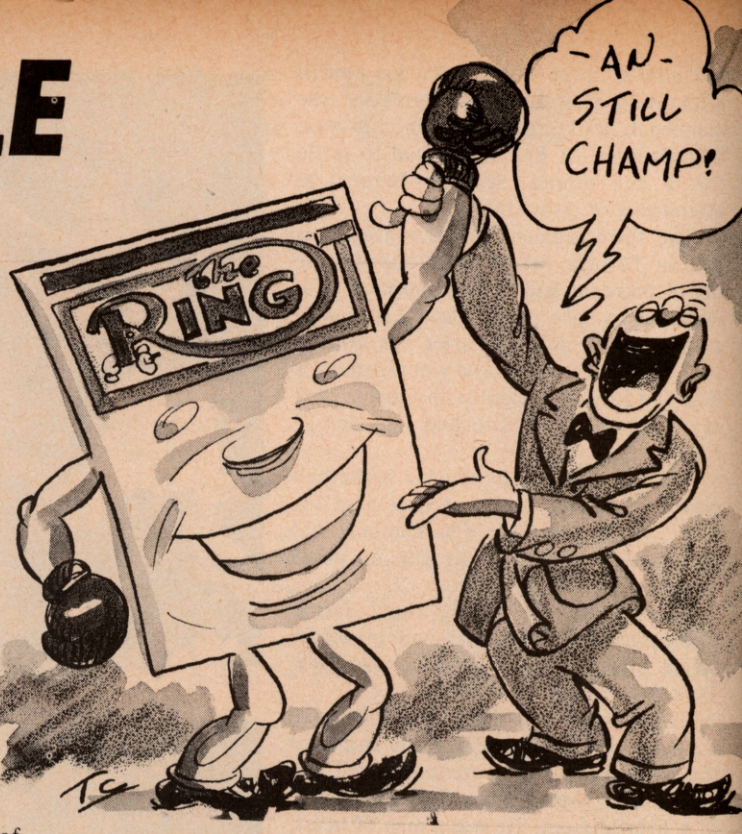
INCREDIBLE INKLINGS OF '71

By TED CARROLL



IN this day and time, the completion of 50 years of uninterrupted publication by any kind of periodical must rate tops in the miracle department. For this reason the year 1971, rounding out a half-century of existence for The Ring, is an incredible milestone in the long history of the boxing game. 50 years!

In the long years since The Ring first appeared, thousands of publications have come and gone, some so quickly that only oldtime waste paper dealers recall their existence. This has been particularly true in sports.

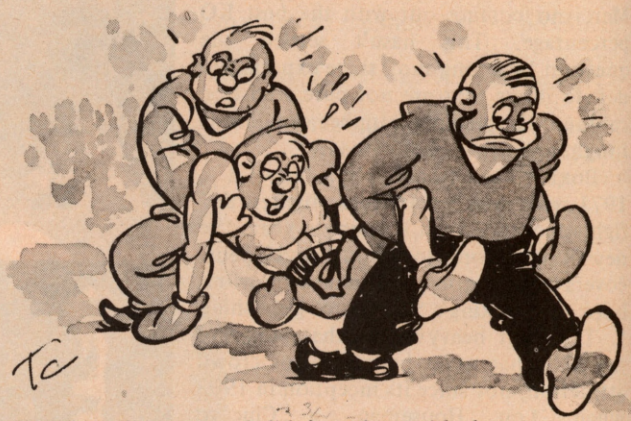
Publications on baseball have struck out; on boxing, knocked out; and in football and basketball, issues have yelled "Time out!" after a brief period of disillusionment. The 50th year of Ring publication is an obvious leader on the list of glorious happenings of the year.

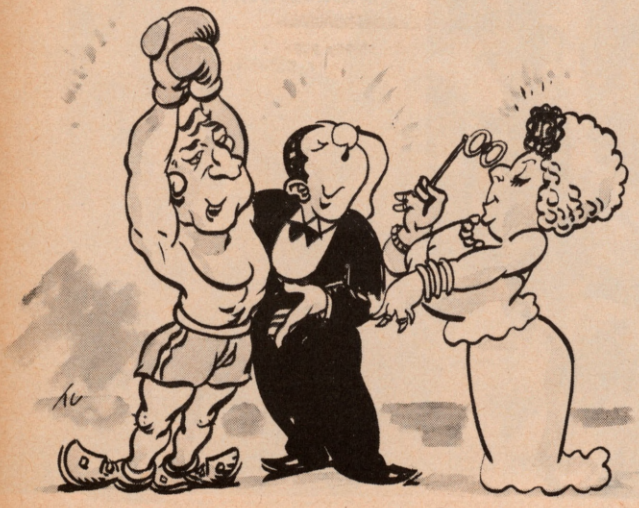
Among the more "routinely" weird occurrences of 1971 in boxing, a caper by one Charles Dempsey Merrell stands out. Known as the "Pizza King" in Cincinnati, Merrell was apparently satisfied to do a little amateur boxing now and then as long as he was peddling the Italian delicacy.

Entering the steakhouse field, for some reason known only to him, he decided this made him a professional. Unfortunately selling steaks did not make him a "stake horse" as a fighter. As might be expected from a restaurant man, he turned out to be a "selling plater" and he was quickly kayoed, in the first round.

The oddest happening for any year would be a twelve month period when promoter Don Elbaum didn't get into the act with something screwy. Harkening back to the times long ago when ballplayers Art (The Great) Shires of the Chicago White Sox and catcher Art Spohrer of the Boston Braves, boxed each other back in 1929, Elbaum propositioned Cleveland Indians' pitcher "Sudden Sam" McDowell and Yankee shortstop Gene Michael, for a bout after the two had had a run-in over a baseline collision last summer.

Both players expressed interest when the promoter came up with a $5,000 offer to the winner and a $2500 bid to the loser. What all concerned didn't reckon with, however, was a ban on such contests pronounced by shaggy-named original baseball commissioner Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, after the Shires-Spohrer nonsense. Elbaum could have billed the show "From Baseball to Odd-ball".





Every now and then an "outsider" is seized with the compulsion to find out just how it feels to get into the ring. Years ago famed columnist and author Paul Gallico let his curiosity get the better of him. He donned the gloves with Jack Dempsey-no-less-in a training camp. He still feels the effects.

According to ring mythology, Gallico, none too popular with some of his fellows, was set-up when mischief-makers tipped Dempsey that Gallico, a former Columbia crewman, was actually a college heavyweight looking to get a rep by sneaking one over on the champion.

Dempsey left-hooked Gallico and even with the big gloves

the author was almost demolished. More recently, author George Plimpton came off much luckier when he got into the ring with Archie Moore. George got by with no more than a bloody nose and a story which helped his literary reputation.

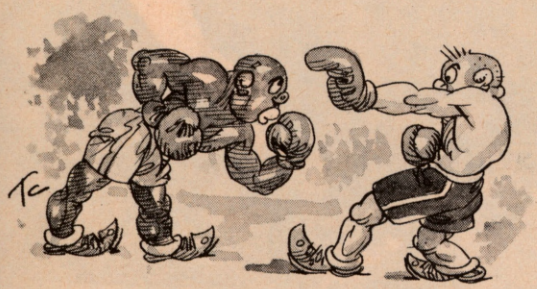
Out on the Coast, boxing press agent Jeff Tomkin tested no stars like Moore and Dempsey, but he did tackle real competition in an amateur tournament.

In finding out the facts of life in a ring, the publicist, a San Diego State U. graduate, also found a new definition for the word "amateur" and a new slant on publicizing as a career. He received $5 for his match, twice what he had been getting as press agent.

As an old French philosopher said, "The more things change the more they are the same". Playboy Bunnies and boxing? That's nothing new. In the old days, boxers travelled with burlesque shows offering $5 to any man in the audience who could go three rounds with them.

According to legend this is how Jack Johnson got his start. When the boxer extended his defi on evening in Galveston Texas, 18-year-old 'Li'l Artha" wasted no time climbing up on the stage to accept it. It didn't take the professional long to realize that he was going to be lucky to last the three rounds.

In emergencies such as this, the truck was to maneuver the victims back against a stage curtain to an appointed spot where a confederate backstage with a heavy mallet belabored the yokel's head.



Even at that early age no man alive could maneuver Jack Johnson. 'Lil Artha' had an instinct for thwarting that kind of skullduggery. He reversed positions and the fighter was laid out cold when the heavy mallet landed on him.

Just how promoter Sam Kellman in Lake Geneva, Wis. intends to enhance the edification of his Bunny-conscious customers by adding boxing hasn't yet been revealed.

In their endeavors to keep fight patrons happy fight people were not unmindful of the happiness quotient inherent in sex and food. Operating in the elegant confines of the Royal York Hotel in Toronto promoter Vince Bagnato spiced up his fistic programs with a hot pants fashion parade.

In New York, Madison Square Garden's boxing Barnum, John F. X. Condon, did some customer catering with a box lunch offered at bargain prices as a pre-fight snack.

The expression "taking a dive" is as old as boxing itself but for the first time a couple of patrons wound up in the water with the fighter. It is also nothing new for promoters of flop shows to "take a bath". All this happened in a fancy resort outside of San Jose, Guatemala, where an amateur show was being held in a makeshift ring put together over a swimming pool.

Unorthodox action during one of the bouts sent one of the fighters toppling into the pool. By one of those "stranger than fiction" coincidences, the dunked scrapper was named "Floater" Simpson. If ever there was a misnomer, this was it, for Floater was sinking rapidly when ringsiders jumped into the pool and pulled him out.

When a Jewish fighter shows up at a Pan-Arab boxing tournament its not only news, its like a Black Panther at a Ku Klux Khan convention. Nessim Cohen found this out.

Cohen, the French Moroccan middleweight who boxed Emile Griffith in Madison Square Garden last summer, not only fought, but won despite the howls of Egyptian dissenters. Asked to visit Cairo as a member of the Morroccan team, Cohen decided not to press his luck. This brought to mind an adage of old time manager Leo P. Flynn, "A guy who goes into the lion's den and comes out doesn't deserve to come out if he goes in again".

What had to be the wildest scramble of the year took place in Seattle, Wash. between a couple of heavyweights named Hobo Wiler and Earl McLeay. In the course of the Donnybrook, Wiler missed a roundhouse right and fell flat on his face. He bounced back up and jumped on opponent McLeay's back and both of them rolled around the ring in a wild melee. In the fifth and last round they resumed wrestling and fell out of the ring twice. Wiley next tried a flying tackle on McLeay and again fell flat on his face. The bedlam ended when McLeay jumped on Wiler's back as he lay stretched out. The rumble that shook Seattle when it was all over, didn't come from the Government's nuclear blast set off in the Aleutian Islands, but from the Marquis of Queensbury revolving in his grave.

This has to be the Golden Age of the legal profession. Everybody's suing everybody. Arturo Vingochea, California feather, and bantamweight Trino Savala slapped damage suits on the owners of a gym which caught fire causing them injuries. Vingochea is asking for a million for the heel fractures he suffered when he had to jump out of a second story window. Time may heal all wounds but it's going to take more

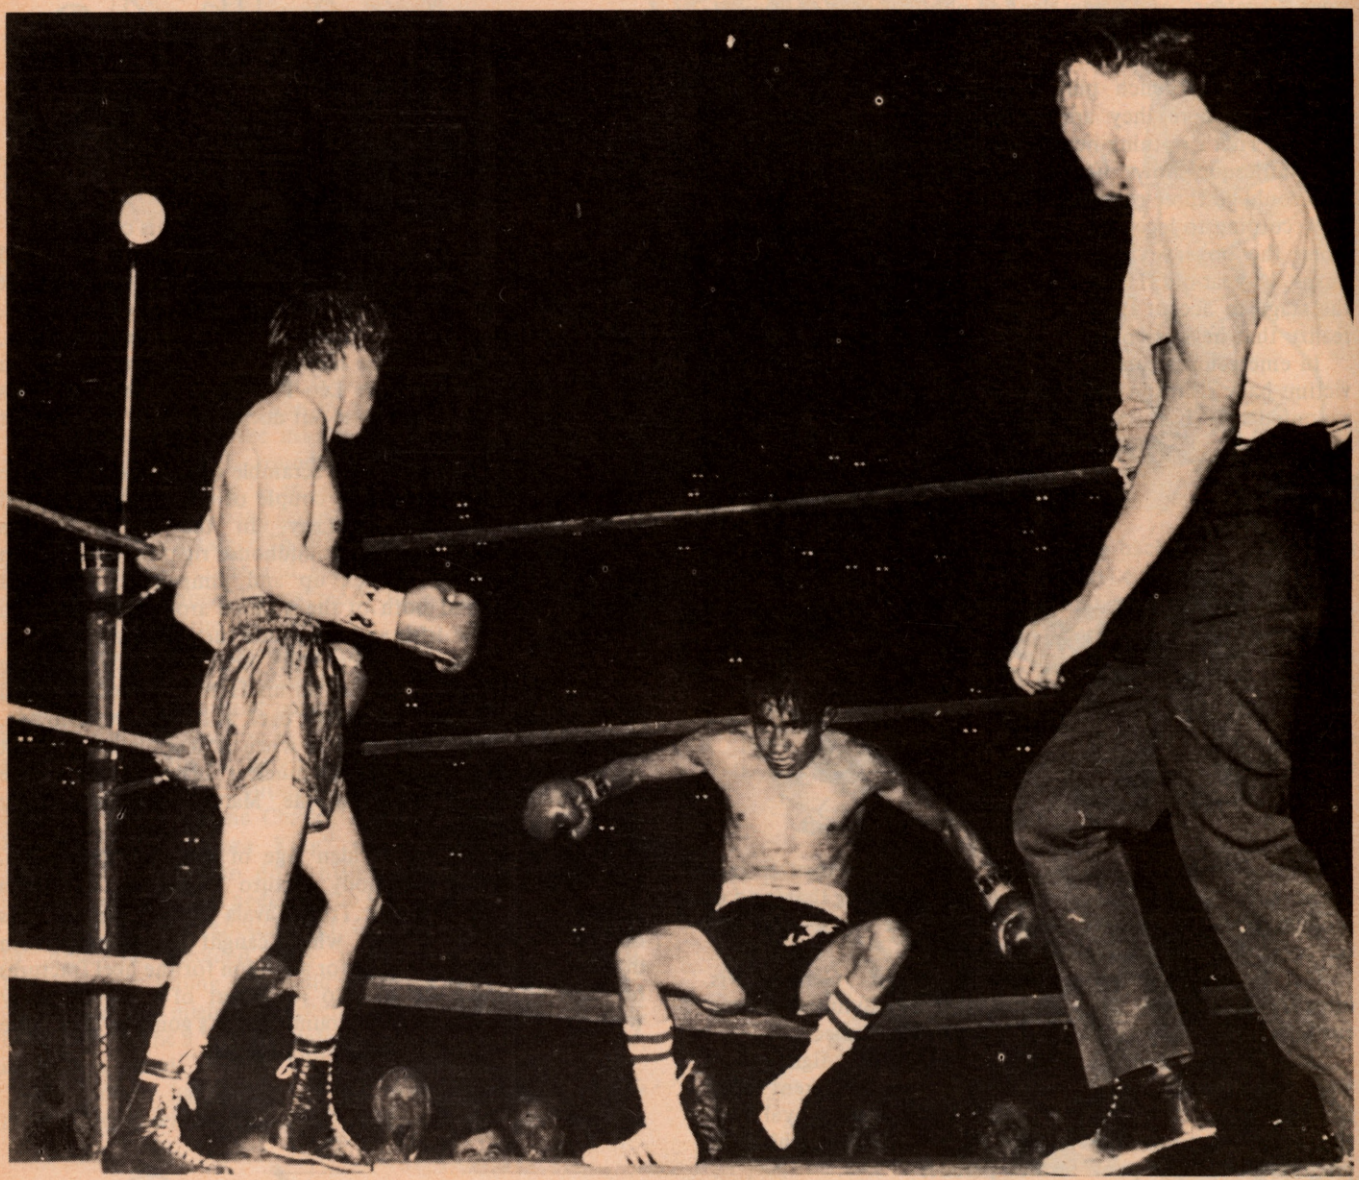
NAPOLES, OLIVARES KEEP TITLES AS PARNASSUS SCORES AGAIN



Jesus Pimentel sinks through the ropes for a knockdown by bantamweight king Ruben Olivares in the sixth round. Pimentel got back into action but following the 11th round, his manager decided Jesus had had enough.

By DON FRASER

INGLEWOOD, CALIF. – Jose Napoles and Ruben Olivares are still world champions, but they failed to live up to what the oddsmakers thought they would do.

Napoles, the 31-year-old Cuban exile, was supposed to chop down challenger Hedgemon Lewis around the 12th round here in the Forum.

Bantamweight king Olivares was sure to halt veteran contender Jesus Pimentel in five or six rounds.

Napoles, making the fifth defense of the welterweight crown he loaned to Billy Backus briefly, had to go full steam for 15 rounds to edge the elusive Detroit speedster.

Unable to come close to scoring a knockdown, Napoles had to settle for a close, but unanimous 15-round decision.

The 25-year-old Lewis took an early lead and was doing quite well going into the ninth round. He then sampled some of Napoles' famed left hooks to the body and head and appeared to be in serious trouble, but wouldn't go down.

Then, it was Jose, the "Mantequilla Kid" pressing and Hedgemon counter-punching. Napoles tried to land a finisher, but Lewis had enough petrol to stay out of harm's way.

The final rounds were almost all the same–Napoles on the prowl and Lewis in retreat.

Going into the 15th, two officials had it close enough that if Lewis won the final frame, he would get a draw for his gallant efforts.

But, the 15th was all Napoles. The final scoring went like this: Referee Larry Rodazilla, 8-6; judge George Latka, 9-4; and judge John Thomas, 8-7.

Napoles, who weighed 145½, wants to go after Carlos Monzon's middleweight title. Lewis, who wants another crack at Jose's title, was 144¾.

One of the first into Lewis' dressing room was actor Ryan O'Neal, who thought his boy had boxed Napoles silly. O'Neal is a part owner of Hedge's contract.

Carlos (Cuco) Conde, the manager of the welter king, was pleased with his boy's performance. "There would have been no fight if Napoles hadn't chased Lewis", said Cuco.

The ending of the Olivares-Pimentel bantam title showdown was a bit on the surprising side.

After the bell ended the 11th round, Harry Kabakoff, the often out-spoken manager of Pimentel, yelled to Olivares and referee George Latka that his charge had enough.

The 31-year-old Pimentel had given it a good try and even had Ruben close to a knockdown in the fourth. But by the 11th, Pimentel was taking a lop-sided beating.

In great condition, little Jesus was all even after four rounds. But then, the champ started to click off left hooks to the head and body, plus an occasional right to the chin.

There was no doubt that the idol of Mexican boxing was on his way to a victory after the sixth, when he sent Pimentel through the ropes after an exchange of left hooks. Ruben's did the damage.

Pimentel managed to shake off the effects of the knockdown, but he was no serious threat after that. He fought on with only conditioning and heart going for him.

At the end of the tenth round, Jesus reported to manager Kabak-

"BLIN COURAGEOUS," SAYS CLAY

By J.A. TREE

ZURICH, Switzerland – Cassius Clay (Muhammad Ali) decked Jurgen Blin of West Germany with a smashing right cross to end their fight at 2:12 of the seventh of a scheduled 12-rounder at the Hallenstadion Arena before about an estimated 9,000 fans.

Clay, on the comeback trail after his loss to Joe Frazier last March, has been attempting to fight his way back into shape. He has been involved in 12 exhibitions in the U.S., South America and Spain, not to mention a 12-round knockout over Jimmy Ellis in July and a 12-round win over Buster Mathis in November.

Clay's fight with Blin was pegged as another "bum of the month" fight by most experts, but Clay stated after the fight:

"If I had listened to boxing authorities in America, who claimed Jurgen was a nothing, I could have been beat.

"Blin had the courage if not the skill. But, if courage could win, he would have," said Cassius.

Clay is looking forward to two more scraps before he meets Frazier again for the world title. He will fight an opponent to be announced and possibly Jerry Quarry.

In the interim, Frazier will have fought a couple of fights himself with nondescript opponents designed – like Clay's recent foes – to whip him into top shape for the fight of 1972 – the meeting with Clay.

As Clay said, his fight with Blin was tough, if somewhat one-sided.

Blin was a charging bull, though shorter than Clay and lacking in reach. He attempted to fight his way through Clay's stinging left jabs. Blin tried to weave and duck under Clay's snapping left. He attempted to counter with lunges and a ramming left jab and hook. The chunky, 198-pound German rushed into Clay's jabs, taking an awful beating in his attempt to bash his way through Clay's defenses to land his most effective punch, a left hook to the face.

Clay admitted that Blin's clumsy tactics hurt him twice during the fight. But the maneuver was successfully accomplished on too few occasions to influence the outcome of the contest.

The first two rounds lacked action as Clay utilized his speed. At 220 pounds, his lightest in several fights, Clay felt out his opponent and flipped enough left jabs to hold off the German. There was little to choose between either man at this point.

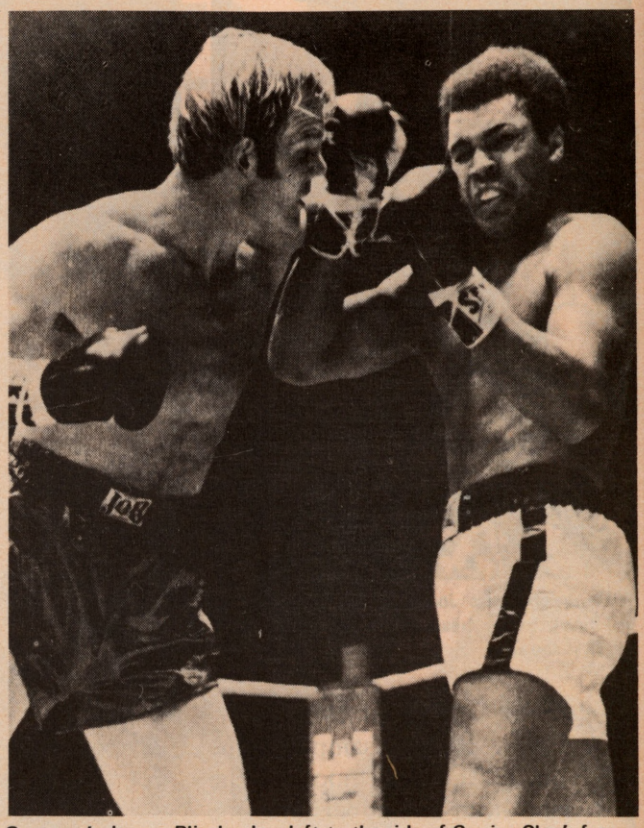
As the fight wore on, a pattern developed with Blin desperately trying for a knockout, regardless of the cost to his face, which was slowly being cut and partitioned.

The third round was Blin's best. He tossed as many punches as did Clay. At one point he bulled Clay against the ropes. From the fourth session to the end, it was Clay, the dancing master, using his left as a scalpel on the wound over Blin's left eye, on both cheeks and his nose.

Clay never stopped moving and, as he said after the fight, "I wanted to get him dizzy and flustered. I was getting tired a bit myself and I was sure he was more tired from chasing me around."

In the sixth, Clay contented himself with maneuvers designed to take the last ounce of zap out of Blin.

When the bell rang for the seventh, it was obvious to all that Blin had punched himself out and it was only a question of time before the end would come.



Germany's Jurgen Blin lands a left to the side of Cassius Clay's face during their contest at Zurich. Clay stopped his blond foe in the seventh round.

Clay moved down off his toes and began using his left effectively to set up his hook and right crosses, landing at will.

Clay, at 29 years of age, was one year older than his opponent. Age was no factor in the outcome.

When Clay's last right cross of the fight landed after a flurry of left and right combinations, the German lurched to the ropes, held on desperately, then slid to the canvas to be mercifully counted out by Swiss referee Sepp Suter. Blin was helped to his feet, and still on queer street, was walked back to his corner, oblivious to the cheering crowd.

Blin's solace for his night's work was the $45,000 he toted home. Clay not only tuned up his fighting equipment, but picked up $250,000 for his night's pay.

The only live television was to the British Isles. The live gate, as reported, indicated a disaster area for the promoter.

Blin had a record going into the fight of 28 wins and 9 losses with six draws. He had knocked out six of his opponents.

Clay climbed into the ring with 34 fights and 26 knockouts to his credit against only one loss.

On the undercard, heavyweight Mac Foster, of Los Angeles, knocked out Bepi Ros, former Italian champion, in eight rounds. It was Foster's 29th win in 30 contests, his only loss being to Jerry Quarry. Although convincing in his win, the bout was a slow one in which Foster was never pressed sufficiently to make the bout exciting. Foster is being talked of as an opponent for Clay or Frazier.

KELLY NO FOE FOR FOSTER, OKLAHOMAN OUT IN THIRD

By ROGER CULHANE

OKLAHOMA City, Okla. – Brian Kelly (Burden), who is in charge of juvenile athletic activities in Cushing, may be a great light heavyweight in this part of the USA. But, as a title contender, Brian is not to be taken seriously.

Bob Foster, the world champion at 175 pounds, gave Brian a sound thrashing. The brief encounter had to be stopped at the 1:56 stage of the third round.

There just was no fight, much to the disappointment of 5,000 customers.

Kelly Burden landed one punch. It was a shot right to the head midway through the second round.

It accomplished nothing more than to get the champion sore, and determined not to fool around. Brian hit the deck twice in that session.

Kelly Burden had gone through 23 straight fights without a defeat and some experts got the notion that he might give Foster a contest. (Continued on page 78)

RONDON EXITS BAIRD IN EIGHT

By JOHN McCAFFERTY

CLEVELAND, Ohio – Vicente Rondon says he is the light heavyweight champion of the world. Only the World Boxing Council, not a dominant factor in fistic administration, certainly no factor in the USA, is the only organization backing him up. In any event, Rondon, who did not impress against Gomeo Brennan in Miami Beach, looked better as he stopped Doyle Baird in eight rounds.

A left to the jaw put Baird flat on his back, and created no surprise. It was the South American's 23rd consecutive victory.

All that Rondon has to do now is to beat Bob Foster. That is, if Vicente really wants the light heavy title. Foster matched Rondon's success here with a KO against Brian Kelly in Oklahoma City.

Baird won the first round. He looked good in the second, not so hot in the third, and then he began to wane very decidedly.

Rondon, at 175, had five pounds on Baird, and had an advantage of two and a half inches in height. Vicente also had an edge in condition.

A right to the jaw early in the eighth round hinted Baird's incipient exit. A combination dropped the American a second time and when he hit the deck a third time in that heat, it was curtains for Baird and hooray for the King of Caracas.

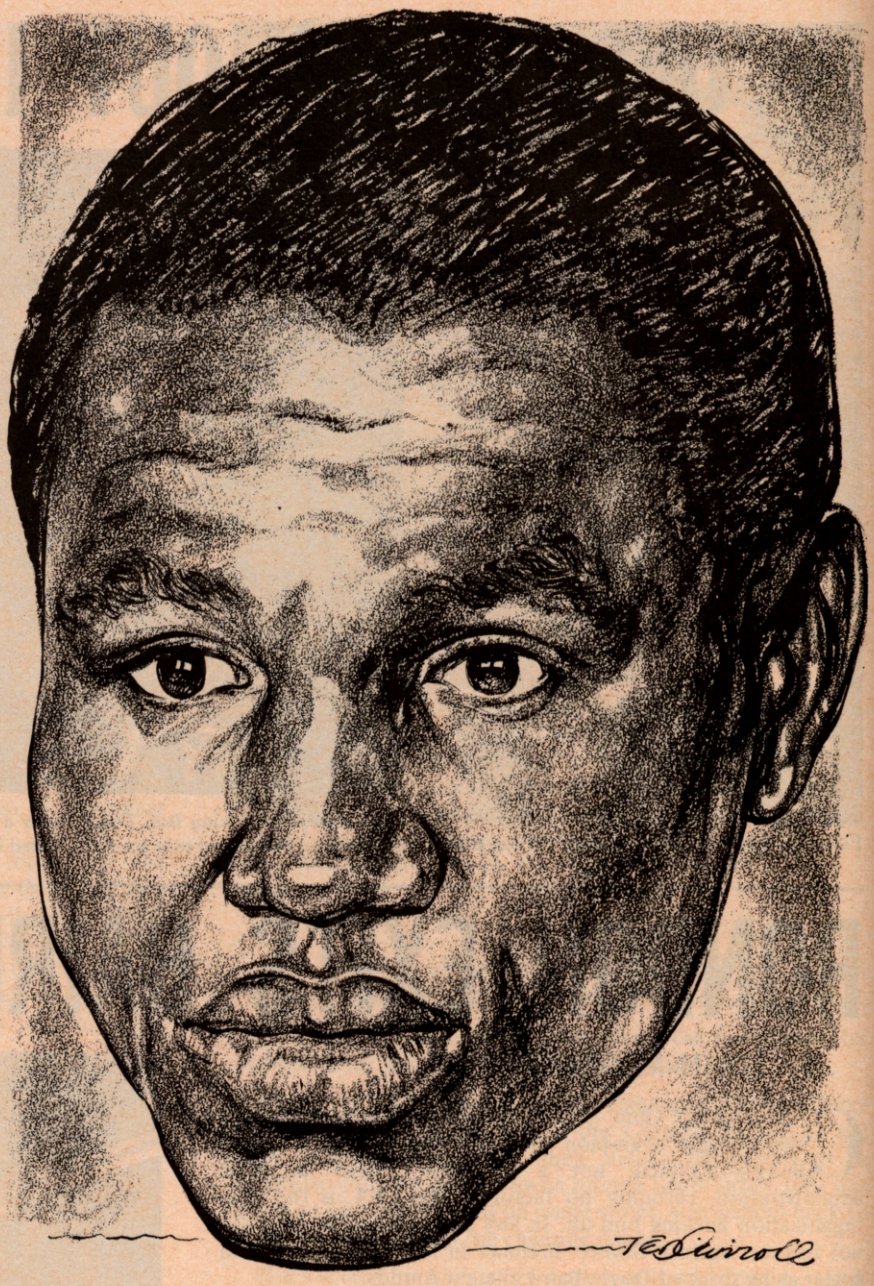
DICK TIGER, 1929-1971

By TED CARROLL



THE grim spectre which haunts boxers who have been middleweight champions of the world removed one of the most popular and admired fighters of his time from the ranks of the living on Dec. 15.

The news of Dick Tiger's passing in his native Nigeria stunned boxing people throughout the world particularly in the New York area, where Tiger made his home in the USA and where he had become one of the best liked foreign fighters to ever invade this country.

As a model of gentlemanly deportment, Dick Tiger set an example not only for other boxers, but for all who observed him. Discretion in speech, reserve and formality in bearing, affability in manner typified Dick Tiger (born Richard Ihetu) in Nigeria 42 years ago.

While his stalking style in the ring aptly fitted his ring name, his personality outside the ropes projected mildness and gentility. Boxing crowds sensed this and it accounted for the unusual popularity he enjoyed during his many years of campaigning in America.

He came to ring glory late in life. His first showings in this country were not overly impressive. Already a veteran, he gained a new lease on life in his boxing, due to a great extent to the loyalty, patience and confidence of his U.S. representative, Jersey Jones. He went on to become a member of the ring's elite group of double titleholders, winning both the world middleweight and the world light heavyweight championships.

In the hurly-burly of the Nigeria-Biafra war, fortune did not deal kindly with him after the conflict because of his allegiance to Biafra. How much of the wealth he gained in the ring remains for his wife, nine children and numerous relatives is uncertain.

The term 'nice guy' could have been invented with Dick Tiger in mind. Stanley Ketchel, Harry Greb, Tiger Flowers, Marcel Cerdan, Solly Krieger, Billy Papke, Randy Turpin, one time wearers of the middleweight crown whose passings were either early or tragic have now been joined by Dick Tiger, the Nigerian gentleman.

At his peak, Tiger would have provided stern opposition for any middleweight who ever lived. In a career highlighted by many fine performances his victories over Gene Fullmer, Joey Giardello, Henry Hank, Florentino Fernandez, Jose Torres, Ruben Carter and Wilfie Greaves were milestones in his career. In these matches he was at his best displaying the courage, toughness, determination and punching power that made him a double champion. He was that rare individual whose abilities in his chosen profession matched his qualities as a man.

RING CHIEFS BATTLE OVER TITLE TAKEAWAYS

By NAT FLEISCHER

EVER since I started The Ring 50 years ago, I have adhered strictly to one of the basic traditions of professional boxing—that a world championship must be won and lost in the ring and not by external mandate.

I have insisted that a title is not disposable, like a lady's fur coat, her diamond ring or the tattered clothes of a derelict.

However, within the 50 years which have elapsed since the Walker Law was passed in New York, the Commission system of governing boxing became widespread, and associations like the WBA and the WBC have assumed spurious powers which lack enforcing machinery. We have been regaled with all sorts of antics concerning world titles.

The most recent act in violation of tradition and the basic right was that of the New York Commission Edwin B. Dooley, chairman; Albert Berkowitz and Jackie Robinson, associates, in announcing that it had shorn Jose Napoles, of Mexico, of his world welterweight championship. The reason cited was failure to defend against Billy Backus, of Syracuse, N.Y., within a stipulated time, said to be 120 days after Napoles had recovered the title from Backus in Los Angeles.

The World Boxing Association had got itself into a wringer by issuing a statement alleging its power to divest Bob Foster of the light heavyweight laurels, and recognizing Vicente Rondon, of Venezuela, as the new champion.

For the New York Commission to get itself enmeshed in disputes involving championships is nothing new.

When Cassius Clay, also known as Muhammad Ali, was adjudged guilty of a felony for refusal to respect the service draft, Dooley and his associates rushed into the headlines with the dictum that they had stripped Clay of his world championship.

The Ring conceded that the New York body might have the right to deny a boxer's license to Clay, but did not have the power to take the world title away from him.

Commissions and associations have been quite capricious in their mandates.

Since commissions owe their appointments to political sources, it conceivably follows that commissions will favor political sources in their decisions.

For three and a half years, The Ring supported Cassius Clay as holder of the title he had won from Sonny Liston.

The Ring did not necessarily admire the grounds on which Clay pursued his case in the Federal courts, and in the Supreme Court of the United States, which eventually accorded to Cassius the right to recognition as a Conscientious Objector, a strange plea for a professional fighter.

The Ring and I held that, having won the world championship fairly, and defended it against all comers, Clay could not be deprived of the title unless he suffered defeat, or retired from competition.

Eventually, when Joe Frazier and Jimmy Ellis, winner of an elimination tournament, were about to meet, Clay announced that he was through with the fight game. He offered to present The Ring Championship Belt to the winner of the Frazier-Ellis contest, but this proposal was barred.

The Ring, as an institution, and I, as a fighter for the right, sought a supporter of its policy and its legal position. We found him in retired Major General of the Marines Melvin L. Krulewitch, former chairman of the New York Commission, predecessor of Dooley.

Seeking a supporter of the allegation that a commission has the right to take a world title away from a boxer, even on a palpably weak issue, The Ring found a pleader in New York's Dooley.

In preparing his support of The Ring and myself, General Krulewitch, who is a member of the bar, chose to do his own pleading. Chairman Dooley was assisted by James P. Fusscas, who is counsel for the New York Commission.

The Ring invited the General and the current chairman to state their cases and expound their powers. The results of their debate are herewith presented, with an invitation to this magazine's readers, and other interested followers of boxing, to send their opinions to The Ring.

KRULEWITCH FOR TRADITION, SUPPORTS "TITLES MUST BE WON OR LOST IN RING"

Maj. Gen. Melvin L. Krulewitch, former Chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission.

By MAJ. GEN. MELVIN L. KRULEWITCH, FORMER CHAIRMAN, N.Y. STATE ATHLETIC COMMISSION

EVER since 1720, when Jim Figg gained recognition as the champion of England, the first law of professional boxing has been, "Only in the ring can a title be won or lost."

In the post-Sullivan era in the United States, especially since New York adopted the Walter Law some 50 years ago, there have been sporadic efforts to deny this recognition.

Under time honored custom, under the tenets of good sportsmanship, and under our American principle of fair play, the ancient law cannot be interpreted except in support of the champion's tenure.

After Cassius Clay, also known as Muhammad Ali, had refused induction into the Armed Forces, the New York Commission, Chairman Edwin Dooley, announced that it had taken the world heavyweight title away from Sonny Liston's successor. There was no sound legal basis for this.

After Cassius Clay had been adjudged guilty of a felony by a jury in the court of Federal Judge Joe Ingraham in Houston, there was a rush to become ultra-patriotic and declare Clay to be the champion no longer. This, too, was illegal.

It has been argued that the basic laws of professional boxing must be those adopted by our commissions and the World Boxing Association.

Along that line, it has been argued that the Commission, administering the law of the State of New York, need not respect the rules of the ring honored from the beginning of boxing. This is just not so.

It is illegal to take a title from a champion even if he goes to jail. In that event he may be suspended and a pro-tem titleholder set up in his division.

A commission may exercise its control over an offending champion by refusing to give him a license to box under its jurisdiction.

But, as Federal Judge Mansfield ruled in the Clay case with the fighter at large under bail, the New York Commission could not refuse a license to Cassius, and had to issue the permit under which Clay fought, and stopped, Oscar Bonavena.

Please take note, as The Ring Magazine did for three and a half years, that there is a big distinction between stripping a champion of his title and denying him a license to fight.

Judge Mansfield supported Clay's application for a license though his case still was to be decided by the Supreme Court of the United States, which had the power to affirm the lower courts' judgment and send the boxer to jail for as many as five years.

As it turned out, after Clay had beaten Bonavena and lost to Joe Frazier, the Supreme Court, by unanimous verdict, declared the fighter eligible for rating as a Conscientious Objector, and gave him freedom to bail, and international mobility.

Clay stands free of legal onus, and is free to regain the championship, if he can.

The dictum that a title cannot be taken from a world champion through mere rhetoric recently was overlooked again by the New York Commission with the ukase which pretended to take the world welterweight title from Jose Napoles. Ridiculous. But no more ridiculous than the World Boxing Association's announcement that it had taken the world light heavyweight championship from Bob Foster and presented it to Vicente Rondon.

The New York Commission had before it, in 1959 and 1960, the sensitive problem as to what action to take against a champion who continuously refused to defend his title within the six months limit prescribed by the Commission's rules.

Rule H, subdivision 1, of the code promulgated by the Commission, provides that a boxer holding a championship must defend it against a suitable contender within a period of six months after winning or after last defending it, or his title may be vacated by the Commission.

Sugar Ray Robinson, one of the great boxing champions, regained the world middleweight title from Carmen Basilio in Chicago on March 25, 1958. Thereafter he failed to defend his title during not only a six month interim after winning it, but over a period of more than a year.

The Commission urged him to enter into articles of agreement for the defense of his title.

The Commission gave Sugar Ray his day in court and after a lengthy hearing, made the following decision on April 3, 1959:

"The Commission therefore directs that Articles of Agreement be entered into by the Champion, Sugar Ray Robinson, for the defense of his Championship Title against the challenger, Carmen Basilio, at a time and place approved by the Commission. Unless such Articles of Agreement are entered into on or before twelve o'clock noon, April 15, 1959, the Commission will vacate the title of Sugar Ray Robinson as Middleweight Champion of the World on April 15, 1959".

All the members of the World Championship Committee, composed of Julius Helfand, one of the members of the New York Commission, Edward Rabret of France, and Onslow Fane of England, indicated concurrence with the decision of the New York Commission.

The Commission expressly conceded that it had no right or power to vacate Robinson's title except insofar as recognition thereof in New York was concerned. It pointed out that other states had the right and power to decide for themselves whether or not they would vacate Robinson's title within the limits of their own territorial areas.

The decision of the New York Commission was not conclusive upon other states or jurisdictions.

The Supreme Court, at Special Term, supported the Commission's ruling and Sugar Ray appealed. When the Appellate Court was prepared to grant a stay which would carry the case over to the fall, the Commission discontinued the litigation and later approved a championship bout between Robinson and Paul Pender. Robinson lost the title.

Within the six months period, Paul Pender defended his championship against Robinson, and retained it.

Now let me go back to the fascinating history of Cassius Clay, native of Louisville, Ky., in the United States of America, in which, so far as I know, he has not renounced citizenship.

It was open season on athletic commissions and boxing commissioners. Whatever we did was wrong. We needed something new and different.

So, when the word was passed that the Golden Boy of the National AAU light heavyweight championship, the national Golden Glove heavyweight championship and the Olympic light heavyweight championship, had gone pro and was coming to New York for a license, it offered the refreshing prospect of a change.

Floyd Patterson had lost the championship, won it back, and was to lose it that year to Sonny Liston. His manager, Cus D'Amato, refused to let Floyd fight in Madison Square Garden. A shooting star, Ingemar Johansson, had come and gone in a dazzling flash.

We had the muster roll of hopeful, rated boxers, longing, as were their managers, seconds and trainers, for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. But the sport was recumbent.

The new boy came to New York in 1962 and brought to us a new look in boxing. Cassius was born in 1942, was 18 years of age when he turned pro and 20 when he came to New York with a retinue of the most socially elect men yet to follow in the train of a boxing hopeful.

Cassius Marcellus Clay, Jr., our boxer, was named for his father, Cassius Marcellus Clay, Sr., who, in turn, fell heir to the name of the most spectacular figure in 19th century Kentucky history, an abolitionist who bitterly hated slavery, voted for Lincoln, and fortified his office and his ancestral home in Louisville with artillery and powder kegs. Cassius Clay's patronymic antecedent was more than that.

"When very young he fought his mother, his schoolmaster, and a slave companion; the day before his wedding, he caned a rival in the streets of Louisville; and when 93 years old, suffering under the hallucination that

Dooley Fights For His Right To Forfeit Titles, "Otherwise Fistic Anarchy"

By EDWIN B. DOOLEY,
CHAIRMAN, N.Y. STATE ATHLETIC COMMISSION

IT has been questioned whether the New York State Athletic Commission has the authority and power under the laws, rules and regulations governing boxing in New York State, to vacate, by administrative action, a championship title.

In reviewing the history of the Boxing Act and the laws, rules and regulations of the Commission, it is clear that the courts have upheld and recognized the Commission's broad powers thereunder, as well as its special duties and responsibilities to the sport and to the public.

Vested with solid jurisdiction over the sport, the Commission necessarily possesses authority to regulate for the area over which it has jurisdiction, the manner in which titles shall be won, lost or vacated. A championship can be lost by default, forfeit or inability to pass the scale, but can only be won by a contender in a contest.

Edwin B. (Eddie) Dooley, present chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission.

To say that the Commission has no right or power to vacate a title, would reduce the State Boxing Law to impotency, frustrate the statutory scheme, and strip the Commission of its vital power of regulation under statute.

The State Athletic Commission licenses boxers and managers. It is empowered to grant licenses only if the character and general fitness of an applicant are such that his participation in boxing "will be consistent with the public interest, convenience or necessity and with the best interest of boxing  generally and in conformity with the purpose of the act."

As stated above, the Commission is specifically empowered to suspend or revoke such licenses whenever the licensee has, in the judgment of the Commission, been guilty of acts detrimental to the interests of boxing  generally or to the public interest, convenience or necessity.

The Commission may "refuse to renew or issue a license, if it shall find that the applicant  has been convicted of a crime in any jurisdiction". The Legislature has also authorized the Commission to impose upon any licensee "that shall violate any rule or order of the Commission or any provision of the chapter" a civil penalty of not exceeding five thousand dollars."

The State Athletic Commission's recognition of a boxer as a world champion confers no vested rights upon him. This is a privilege given to a boxer by this state through its boxing commission, to be used in connection with its professional boxing activities, a field which this state, in the exercise of its police powers, has chosen to regulate.

His acceptance of that privilege is subject of course, to such conditions and restrictions as the Legislature and the Commission may see fit to impose. Where a licensee violates the laws, rules or regulations of the Commission, the State has the right to step in at any time and withdraw that privilege provided its action is not arbitrary or capricious and its administrative action is in accordance with due process requirements.

Rule 218.1, expressly authorizes the Commission to vacate a title if the holder fails within six months after winning it, or successfully defending it, to fight a suitable contender.

After said period, it enables any boxer in the same class who is considered by the Commission to be a suitable contender to forward a challenge at the office of the Commission. Thereafter, such champion must, within twenty days after such announcement, enter into articles of agreement to defend his championship against the contender.

Under Rule 218.1, the champion is required to defend his title against a suitable contender within six months after winning or last defending it. Implicit in the power to vacate the champion's title for failure to do so, is the power vested in the Commission to suspend his license.

Competition, safety and the avoidance of confusion are matters with which the Legislature's regulatory scheme is directly concerned.

Rule 218.13 provides that a championship can be lost by default, forfeit or inability to pass the scale, but a championship can only be won by a contender in a contest.

In discussing championship titles, the Court said, in Matter of Robinson vs. Krulewitch:

"The existence of championship titles may safely be said to be an integral necessary part of the sport of boxing. A commission appointed to regulate that sport, and vested with sole jurisdiction over it, necessarily possesses authority to regulate, for the area over which it has jurisdiction, the manner in which titles shall be won, lost and vacated.

"Such authority in the commission is implicit in the grant to it of exclusive jurisdiction over the sport of boxing in the State of New York.

The need for a provision that a champion may not keep his title indefinitely, without fighting in its defense is particularly great. Without such a provision, a champion could refuse to fight in its defense and yet hold on to his title, thus destroying the incentive of others to improve their ability in the hope of winning a championship."

It is fundamental in administrative law that if a regulation has been demonstrated to have a rational basis, it will be sustained.

Rule 218.6 provides that in the event a holder of one championship title enters a contract for the championship title of another class and wins, his original championship is automatically vacated.

Emile Griffith, the welterweight champion in 1966, engaged in a boxing contest at Madison Square Garden with Dick Tiger for the world middleweight championship. Griffith defeated Tiger and the Commission automatically vacated his welterweight title under Rule 218.6. Griffith brought an action to set aside and annul Rule 218.6, vacating his welterweight title.

In dismissing the action, the Court said in Krulewitch vs. Griffith:

"Rule 218.6 promulgated by the Commission has a rational basis and cannot be said to be unreasonable or arbitrary. Since its adoption, champions have abided by it. The papers submitted clearly indicate its necessity to insure active competition in the sport, to promote safety and to avoid confusion."

Any rule which would permit a boxer to hold two championship titles would freeze the action for a title in both classes should it develop that the champion holding both titles be unable physically to defend each title within the six month period.

Commissioner Dooley jovially separates N.Y. Governor Nelson Rockefeller and ex-welter and middleweight king Emile Griffith.

Rule 218.4 expressly authorizes the Commission to declare a title vacant in the event that the champion is permanently unable to physically qualify for the defense of his title. In each defense of his title, the champion must be at the weight required by the class for which he holds the title.

In discharging the duty entrusted to it by the Legislature, the State Athletic Commission has very broad powers. The Commission's broad powers and special duty to the sport and to the public have been discussed in many cases in recent years.

In Rosensweig vs. State of New York, the Court of Appeals said:

" For many decades the penal laws of this State contained a complete prohibition of prize-fighting (Penal Law 1710). Its re-introduction dates from 1911, when the Legislature passed a law permitting boxing exhibitions to be resumed under stringent regulations, subject to the supervision of a newly created State Athletic Commission, and provided that the contests were to be excepted from the ban of the penal laws (L. 1911, Ch. 779). The objectives of this Legislation were described by Justice Seabury, a few years after its enactment in Fitzimmons vs. New York State Athletic Commission.

" 'Confronted with the question as to whether it should prohibit prize-fighting or sparring altogether, or leave such contests unaffected by legislation, the law making body of this State has adopted a middle course and has legalized boxing when conducted under State control. Two main purposes have such legislation. First, the desire to prevent as far as possible certain brutal and degrading features which have in the past sometimes attended such contests, and second, to promote and protect such contests, when conducted within the legitimate limits of a sport. To achieve those purposes the State has created the State Athletic Commission and authorized that Commission to prescribe stringent rules governing the conditions under which such contests can be

APPOINTMENTS WITH DESTINY

By DAN DANIEL

REVIEW the annals of professional boxing, especially in the heavyweight class, and you are impressed with the tremendous influence the Fates have had on champions and also-rans, on startling victories and sometimes even more amazing defeats.

As a consequence, the history of boxing, in many vital cases, has been dominated by the Fickle Finger of Fate.

A search for the author of this alliterative and sometimes aptly significant phrase led the researcher in no direction which was significantly literary. Investigation led to an anonymous writer on the Rowan and Martin "Laugh-In" television show, which has helped to make the Finger widely publicized.

Sometimes the Fickle Finger of Fate has guided the beneficiary so mysteriously, so adroitly and uncannily as to revive those old stories of magic.

Take the case of Joe Frazier, current heavyweight champion of the world, as a strident example.

Frazier, who had come up fast in the amateur ranks in Philadelphia, under Yank Durham, his eventual professional pilot, made a determined effort for the Olympic team which was to compete for the U.S. at Tokyo in 1964.

However, Frazier failed of his goal. Buster Mathis, who had won the national AAU heavyweight title, moved on to victory in the Olympic trials, over Frazier.

Here the Fickle Finger of Fate entered the situation.

It developed that Mathis had fractured a thumb in the trials. This forced his elimination from the team and Joe Frazier, who had finished second in the eliminations, became the representative of the United States in the heavyweight competition.

Frazier won the international championship. He went professional in 1965 and in 1970 gained world recognition as the heavyweight champion.

Another example of the occult power of the Fickle Finger of Fate may be found in the rise of Jack Dempsey. The Fates took a hand in the situation by introducing Dempsey to Jack Kearns, who became his manager. Then there was the fateful meeting of Kearns and Tex Rickard. They were introduced to each other by John J. McGraw, then manager of the New York Giants, in the Biltmore Hotel in New York.

The Fickle Finger of Fate moved according to the blueprint set up secretly by Destiny when Al Weill, who had declined to pilot Rocky Marciano, was induced to change his mind.

Then, too, there was the case of the Long Count in the seventh round of the second fight between Dempsey and Gene Tunney, who lay in a heap in that Chicago ring, with at least four extra seconds in which to recover while stubborn Jack refused to obey the order of Dave Barry, the referee, to go to a neutral corner.

The Fates moved in, unannounced, as usual, the night Jim Braddock, a 10 to 1 second choice, beat Max Baer and won the heavyweight title.

And what influence except that of the Fickle Finger could have operated to the end that Cassius Clay became an Olympic champion and then took the world heavyweight title from Sonny Liston, who twice had knocked out Floyd Patterson in the first round.

Speaking of Patterson, the Fickle Digit became occult in its workings as it helped Cus D'Amato to make the quiet, unassuming Negro lad from Brooklyn an opulent world champion.

Assassination Of An Assassin

NEVER in the annals of world championship boxing, has a titleholder suffered immediate fatal injuries in the ring, been killed or wounded in military action, or undergone a deadly accident in his daily pursuits.

This happy freedom of professional boxers from the hazards of their lives in and outside of the ring, throws exceptional stress on the few tragedies which took the lives of Stanley Ketchel, who was murdered by a farmhand on a ranch at Conway, Mo.; Les Darcy, who died a natural death; Rocky Marciano, retired heavyweight champion who died in a small plane in a field in Iowa; and Jack Johnson, who crashed in a speeding car.

Fate hit these men with that utter malevolence which it sometimes develops in the out-of-the-ring lives of men whom popular imagination had placed in violent and hazardous exercises.

Insofar as its effect on the status of topflight boxing was concerned, the shooting of Ketchel, whom the boxing writers had named the Michigan Assassin, was the most startling and destructive.

A poll conducted by The Ring among veteran viewers of the fistic scene some years ago called Ketchel the greatest fighter, weight considered, in the history of the sour science.

When the Norns ordained that Stanislaus Kiecal was to fight no more, he had taken part in only 61 contests. He had celebrated his 24th birthday a month earlier. He had scored 46 knockouts in a brief career lasting just seven years from 1903 to 1910.

This Ketchel man was no quiet Marciano, no jocular Johnson, no sad and broken-hearted Darcy.

Stan was a rough and tumble architect of arena violence. He had had a turbulent youth. No saint was he when he grew up and no saint was he when he died. But what a fighter. Fate put him in the ring to show how a pugilist could fashion the peculiar drama of the roped square, and Fate took him away to make boxing realize a crushing loss.

The story of Ketchel's death is a sordid one. He was visiting with his pal Col. Pete Dickerson, at Conway, Mo. Working around the place was a wandering farmhand named Walter Dipley. Employed in the cookhouse was a young woman of unknown antecedents, who, it later was reported, was on friendly terms with Dipley when Stan wasn't around.

Outdone on all points by the good looking, pranksome Ketchel insofar as the favor of the cookhouse queen was concerned, Dipley went insanely jealous.

The lammister from Colorado grabbed Ketchel's .22 rifle and shot Stan in the back, directly beneath the shoulder blade. Ketchel was sitting at the breakfast table.

To make his crime all the more heinous, Dipley robbed Ketchel of the two $1,000 bills he always carried with him, and a diamond ring.

Col. Dickerson rushed Stan to a hospital in Springfield, Mo. But it was much too late.

The Ketchel tragedy threw the middleweight division wide open. Billy Papke, Ketchel's closest rival, laid claim to the championship but the zest of the ring was gone for Billy, who like Ketchel, died a violent death. He killed his wife and himself in 1936.

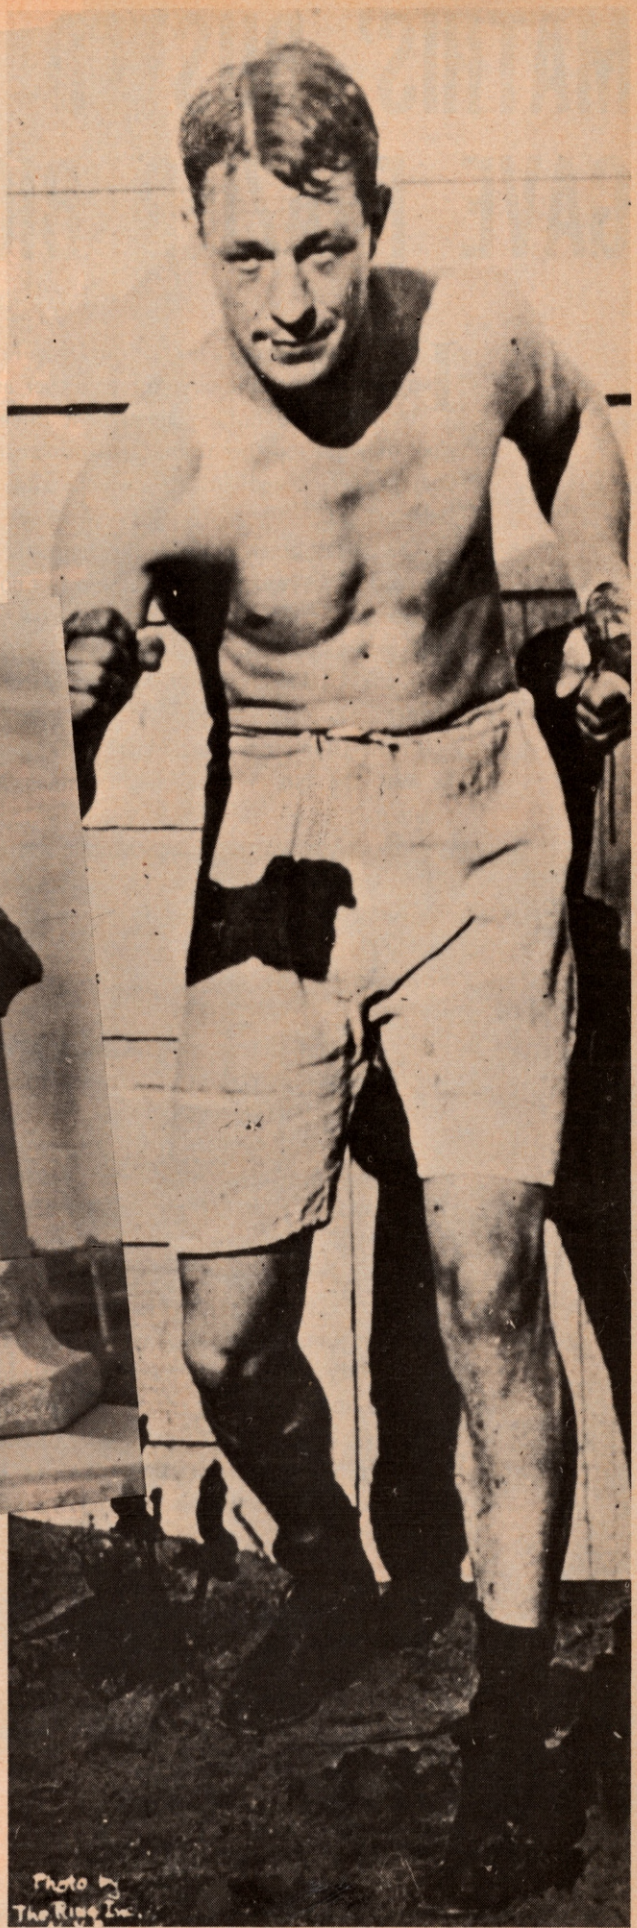
Papke lost the 160-pound championship to Cyclone Johnny Thompson.

Thompson could not make the weight, whereupon Frank Mantell announced himself as the new leader. He beat Papke in a 20-rounder, but scarcely anybody paid any attention to the result.

Beating Georges Carpentier on a foul in 17 rounds in Paris was the last thing of consequence Papke achieved. The Fickle Finger certainly raised havoc with the middleweights and is still at it.

Stanley Ketchel, the Michigan Assassin, generally regarded as the best middleweight of 'em all, died a tragic death at an early age.

The impressive gravestone of Ketchel towers over the others in the cemetery where he is buried.



MATHIS' BUSTED THUMB GAVE FRAZIER BIG BREAK

IF a boxer ever got a break from Dame Fortune, if a set of favorable circumstances ever associated themselves to fashion an opulent career in the ring, they got together to make a world champion of Joe Frazier, based in Philadelphia and born in Beaufort, S.C.

The biggest break a boxer who eventually achieved the world heavyweight championship ever got, placed Frazier on the U.S. Olympic team which went to the 1964 games in Tokyo.

In the AAU finals that year, Buster Mathis was the winner.

In the Olympic tryouts, Mathis again proved that he was the No. 1 heavyweight among American amateurs.

However, when the Tokyo tournament was held, Mathis was just an onlooker, with a fractured thumb. The runnerup in the tryouts, Frazier, was substituted for Mathis. And the Fickle Finger of Fate once again moved its mystic wonders to perform in world boxing.

Frazier won the world amateur title, in a field which included Hans Huber, Germany; Giuseppe Ros, Italy; and Vadim Yemelyanov, Russia.

When it was announced that Mathis would not be able to box at Tokyo, American hopes for the title which had been won by Francisco Di Piccoli, of Italy, at Rome in 1960, appeared to be minimal. But the Fates had picked Frazier for a series of events well nigh matchless in the drama of American boxing.

Frazier returned from Japan to the huzzahs of jubilant Philadelphia. But there was little joy in the crowded little apartment of the Frazier family that Christmas. It would have been utterly bleak but for a public collection conducted by one of the local newspapers. Joe's return to his old $75 a week job in a packing house helped some to improve the family's spirits.

There was some talk of Frazier's going professional. But neither Joe nor Yank Durham, his discoverer and trainer, made any public outcry about heading for the world championship. Cassius Clay appeared to be a fixture as the titleholder. The rest of the professional field appeared to hold out no hopes for a spectacular rise by the new Olympic champion.

However, the Fates were busier than ever on Frazier's behalf.

A group of Philadelphia boxing enthusiasts with good financial records organized a corporation which they named Cloverlay. Durham was named director of operations. Cloverlay took over the Frazier professional career, and guaranteed him a weekly salary. On August 16, 1965, Joe made his debut in the professional ranks.

Frazier knocked out Woody Goss, Mike Bruce, Ray Staples and Abe Davis that year.

In 1966, the Olympian's progress was incredible. After scoring seven more knockouts, Joe entered boxing's major league with a ten-round victory over Oscar Bonavena, in New York. Frazier suffered two knockdowns by the Argentinian. But he won, beyond dispute. He was on his way.

The rest of the Frazier story baffles belief. The breaks came to him in profusion.

When Clay, having refused an Army draft, was found guilty of a felony and was forced into a layoff which lasted three and a half years, an elimination tournament, for the allegedly open title, produced a winner in Jimmy Ellis.

Frazier made a wise move in ignoring the tournament. Eventually, Frazier met Ellis and knocked him out in five rounds. This, accompanied by Clay's announced retirement from the ring, made Joe the official world champion. The Fickle Finger had been with him all the way.

Last March, after a court order had made Clay eligible for a license in New York, the Supreme Court later freeing him of a felony, Frazier defeated Clay in a 15-round fight in New York. Each boxer was guaranteed $2,500,000 before taxes.

A TRIO'S TRIUMPHANT DAY AT MAUMEE BAY

AS the boxing historian wanders through the corridors of Time and Combat he is struck with the multiplicity of events to which he may apply the corollary, "As luck would have it."

The annals of the ring are replete with happenings which traced to Dame Fortune and her vagaries.

Take the Dempsey-Kearns-Rickard combination, for example. Having enjoyed some success as a promoter in the West, Tex Rickard decided to invade New York as a base of operations elsewhere.

Having built Jack Dempsey into a knockout personality, Jack Kearns, with the Manassa Mauler in tow, headed for Broadway and Rickard.

"As luck would have it", Tex had a world champion named Jess Willard and he could not make up his mind concerning the identity of a fit challenger.

Into this situation, "as luck would have it," came a chance meeting between Rickard and Kearns.

John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, who knew Kearns, ran into him in the lobby of the Biltmore Hotel in New York.

As McGraw and Jack were exchanging the time of day, Rickard dashed into the picture. Tex never wandered, he never ambled. He moved with despatch and obvious importance.

In a moment, McGraw had introduced Kearns to Rickard, and in those 60 seconds the Fickle Finger got started in the direction of Dempsey as a world champion, Rickard as the greatest promoter in fistic history and Kearns as the most widely publicized manager yet associated with a heavyweight titleholder.

Once having met Rickard, Kearns lost no time in pursuing the opportunity which then presented itself.

Dempsey weighed not much more than 180 pounds. Willard, standing 6 feet 6 1/4 inches in his socks, had tipped the beam at 252 pounds for the Jack Johnson fight in Havana in 1915, and had grown some.

"If I were to match your man with Willard, who would tower over him and outweigh him by about 70 pounds, I would be laughed out of New York," Rickard told Kearns.

"I wouldn't care if Willard outweighed Jack a hundred pounds, Jess still would be knocked out, maybe as early as the first round," Kearns countered.

Kearns had no soundly located notion that Dempsey could whip Jess inside three minutes. But, "as luck would have it," Kearns, taking odds of 10 to 1 – $100,000 against his $10,000 – came awfully close to winning that wager once Dempsey had lured the Pottawattomie Giant into a ring in sunbaked Toledo, Ohio. To his dying day, Kearns insisted that he had been bilked out of the hundred grand.

Rickard kept hunting, and Kearns kept talking, as Tex continued his quest of "a big man who could give Willard a fight."

Finally Kearns succeeded in talking Tex into making the match. New York, then being out of bounds fistically, the Walker Law being a few years off, Rickard finally picked Toledo, where he had the blessing of Governor Cox.

Rickard built himself a pine board arena on the shores of Maumee Bay. Tex provided 97,000 seats. The fight drew only 19,750 who paid a total of $452,224.

Willard was guaranteed $100,000, Dempsey received $27,500. The builders of the arena picked up $100,000, of which Rickard reclaimed $25,000 when he tore the stands apart for lumber.

When the books were balanced, Rickard found himself with a profit of $85,000.

On that blazing hot afternoon near miasmic Maumee Bay, Rickard knew that, despite his misgivings, he really had found more than a match for Willard.

The story of the fight is soon told. Scheduled to go 12 rounds, the slaughter was ended as Jess, sitting in his corner after the third round, told referee Ollie Pecord that he had had enough. He had been bludgeoned to a pulp.

"As luck would have it," Willard escaped with his life. He had been knocked down seven times in the first round. I was there. I saw it happen.

The boxing world found itself with the most spectacular heavyweight champion in history.

FLEISCHER BECOMES A FOUNDING FATHER

IN 1921 Nat Fleischer was the sports editor of the New York Evening Telegram. He had studied forestry at Yale, and chemistry at New York University and for a brief spell, had been a teacher in the New York school system. He had been graduated from City College.

Eventually, his bent for sportswriting and his keen interest in boxing, led him into a sportswriting career. He started with the Press, was moved by Frank Munsey to The Sun, and ultimately to the Telegram.

The Frawley Law had been repealed and in its place the New York State Legislature had passed the Walker Law, under which boxing there still is conducted.

Jack Dempsey was the world heavyweight champion in 1921. Tex Rickard was running boxing in Madison Square Garden.

At this point the Little Men, who waken so many of us in the dark hours to offer their words of counsel, awakened Nat Fleischer one night in November, 1921. They had an idea. The Fickle Finger of Fate was moving into boxing.

"What boxing needs badly, and soon, is a magazine which will devote itself to the best interests of boxing, keep it free from harassment by hoodlums, and hit hard where and when hard hitting is necessary," said Fleischer to Fleischer.

"True, I am a busy man. But I am going to start a boxing maagzine that will fight for the right, and expose the crooks and their machinations."

Fleischer lost no time in getting his magazine organized. He had a conference with Rickard, who prevailed on the Madison Square Garden Corporation, based at Madison Square, to let Fleischer have the use of a small room near Tex's offices.

"The Ring Magazine, Nat Fleischer, editor," went on the door of the budding editor's cubicle.

The Garden stipulated that if Fleischer wanted to have its full cooperation on the new publication, the first yet dedicated to the welfare of boxing, he would have to accept two advisors – Ike Dorgan, Tad's brother, who was Rickard's publicity man, and Frank Coultry, the promoter's secretary.

There were problems galore. Finding a proper printer, setting up a staff within the financial limitations of the infant monthly, barring publicity to those who had to be barred and selecting boxing men worthy of magazine notice – all in association with his duties as sports editor of The Telegram – cut Nat Fleischer's sleeping hours to a minimum.

In February, 1922, 50 years ago, the first issue of The Ring appeared on the stands in New York. Circulation and subscriptions jumped beyond the wildest expectations of the editor.

The first two men who became impressed with the bona fides of The Ring and its organizer were Jimmy Walker and Tex Rickard. Jimmy was to become Mayor of New York.

Walker had had a difficult time in getting the signature of Governor Al Smith to the bill which established boxing on a firm foundation in New York, and established the three-man State Athletic Commission in 1920.

After a year in the Garden cubicle, The Ring moved to its own offices in the Street and Smith building on Seventh Avenue and West 17th. Street.

After one year Fleischer divested himself of the associations with Coultry and Dorgan and assumed 100 percent command of Ring policies and Ring freedom.

The Fickle Finger of Fate has remained most friendly toward Fleischer and The Ring for 50 years.

It has fought steadily for the right. It is utterly impossible to picture boxing – yes, world boxing – without the clean policies which have dominated the magazine's operation.

FROM EDISON TO MARCONI TO TV

ON December 12, 1901, Guglielmo Marconi, waiting eagerly in St. John's, Newfoundland, Canada, received the first wireless signals sent across the Atlantic from Britain.

From this historic event came radio, and from radio came television.

In this succession of electronic developments, the Fickle Finger of Fate moved with fantastic magic to save professional boxing from oblivion.

Motion pictures had helped some to give to the fight game prominence and vibrancy without which it had appeared to toddle gradually to extinction.

This tremendous aid to boxing was experimented with in two stages by Thomas Alva Edison.

On June 16, 1894, in the Edison Laboratory at Llewellyn, N.J., the inventor put on a sparring match between two unknowns, Mike Leonard and Jack Cushing.

Three months later, in the same laboratory, Jim Corbett, heavyweight champion, knocked out Peter Courtney in the sixth round. The filming of a fight had proved an emphatic success.

When Corbett lost the title to Bob Fitzsimmons on March 17, 1897, at Carson City, the fight was filmed and later was shown around the country.

The Finger was directing the fight game in the proper direction. No other influence could have been so spectacularly successful.

The Fates put over a glorious triumph when, on July 2, 1921, the first Million Dollar battle, between Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier, at Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City, was put on radio.

In the development of boxing television, the British were a few years ahead of the United States. The British televised a fight, for the Empire light heavyweight title, between Len Harvey and Jock McAvoy, in April, 1938.

Once television had taken hold in the ring, one big stride led to another until, on March 8, 1971, Joe Frazier successfully defended his world heavyweight championship against Cassius Clay.

This was the Fight of Fights. Each boxer was guaranteed $2,500,000 before taxes. The live house, in Madison Square Garden, amounted to close to $200,000. With the aid of satellite boosting, the TV pictures of the 15-round battle were reported to have had a grand take of $20,000,000.

All this stemming from that December day in 1901 when Marconi, in Canada, received wireless signals from a sender in England.

Television has made such amazing progress in boxing the world over that it is well nigh impossible to envision the game surviving without local, national and overseas international TV.

At this point let us give credit to late Madison Square Garden promoter Mike Jacobs as a far seeing prophet.

Mike predicted that the day was not far off when the gate of a fight would not mean very much financially.

"You will see big fights televised all over the world, and boxers paid not on the basis of what a promoter figured he could draw at the gate, but on the basis of his boxer's magnetic powers as figures of world interest," the New York promoter predicted.

"You might even see a world championship battle being televised from a studio. The big ball parks will not be needed any longer. Financial success of a fight will depend entirely on closed circuit television."

Some of the experts chuckled tolerantly over Mike's dream. Most of them accepted his vision as an advance picture of what was certain to come true.

The Fickle Finger of Fate has written the incredible story on the wall in golden letters. "TV"

JOE LOUIS: ONE IN A MILLION

HEARINGS on the right of professional boxing to continue in the state of New York, under the long-continuing Walker Law, were in progress in the legislative halls in Albany. The word was out that Governor Nelson Rockefeller had swung his thoroughly important influence to the side of the foes of the sport and that boxing in the Empire State was in its death throes.

Then came a rather loud whisper from the direction of the Governor's office. A wise politician, he had decided not to become involved.

Reading the bold handwriting on the wall, which predicted the defeat of the opposition, one of the leaders of the antis exclaimed, "Damn boxing! It always manages to fall upstairs."

That is precisely what boxing has been doing in the United States, if not in the entire fistic universe. It falls upstairs. The outlook may be dark. The popular appeal of boxing may have decreased to drastic depths.

Then it happens, inevitably. The Fates marshal their magic. Out of the murk and indecision comes a Moses to lead the supporters of the sport out of the wilderness. There comes a Dempsey. There comes a Tunney. There comes a Joe Louis. There dashes a Marciano, a Clay, a Frazier, to the rescue.

In 1933, Primo Carnera became the heavyweight champion of the world by knocking out Jack Sharkey, a 6 to 5 favorite. Boxing's response hardly was detonating. There was a lot of talk about the Italian Behemoth's sinister associates.

The Fickle Finger got busy. Max Baer stopped Primo. But when Jim Braddock, a 10 to 1 outsider, outpointed Baer, boxing took another dive in popularity.

All this time a young Negro named Joe Louis, born Barrow in Lexington, Alabama, was coming along. Boxing was about to fall upstairs again. The Fates decreed it, all the Fates were inexorable.

The Finger was guided by Mike Jacobs, who had succeeded Tex Rickard as the big promoter in New York.

Step by step, in a career which had been brilliant in amateur ranks, and was destined to be even more spectacular among the professionals, Joe Louis broke down one human barrier after another.

World boxing had been favored with another tremendous break, a heavyweight who could hit with power and precision, a likeable young man who, it became certain, would win the world championship, and keep it for a long time.

Thus was born the Joe Louis Era. He won the title by stopping Braddock in eight rounds on June 22, 1937, in Chicago.

Exactly one year later the Brown Bomber achieved one of the most spectacular victories in fistic annals when he stopped Max Schmeling in the first round in New York.

This was the Schmeling who had knocked out Louis in 12 rounds in June, 1936. This was the German Uhlan, who in 1930 had beaten Jack Sharkey for the world title which had been left open by the retirement of unbeaten Gene Tunney.

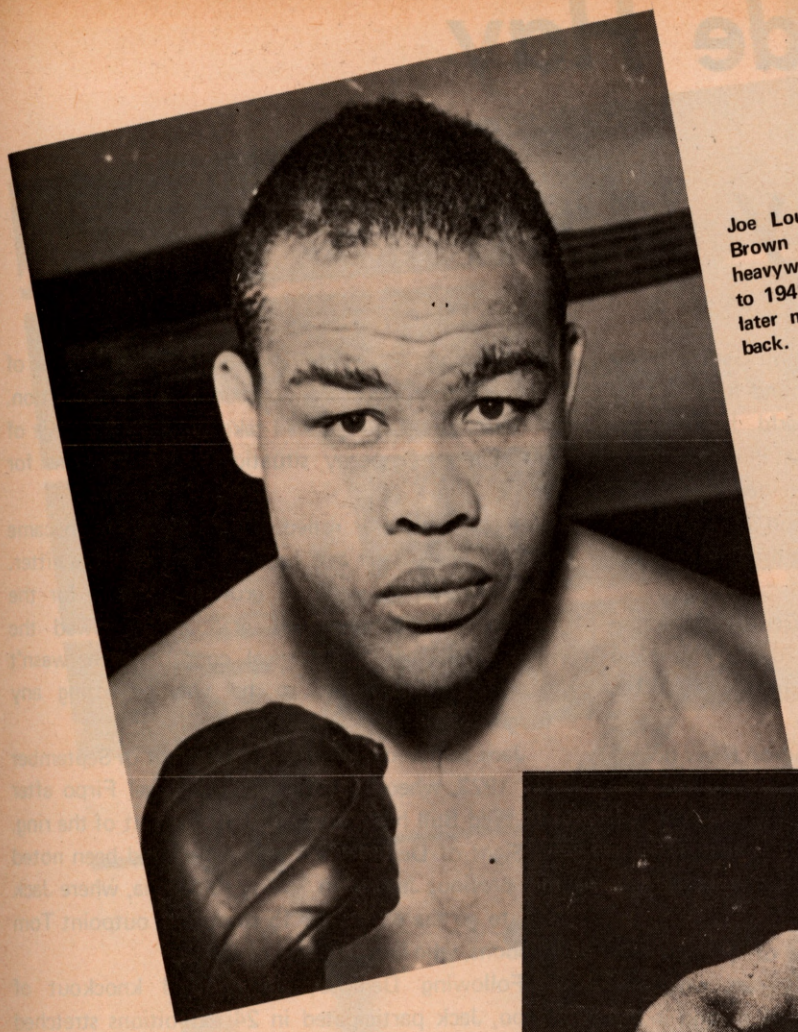
The Joe Louis Era was brilliant, effervescent, dramatic. There was no dodging issues. The powerhouse from Alabama barred nobody.

Down they came toppling before Joe until, on March 1, 1949, he announced his retirement. There appeared to be no one else to fight.

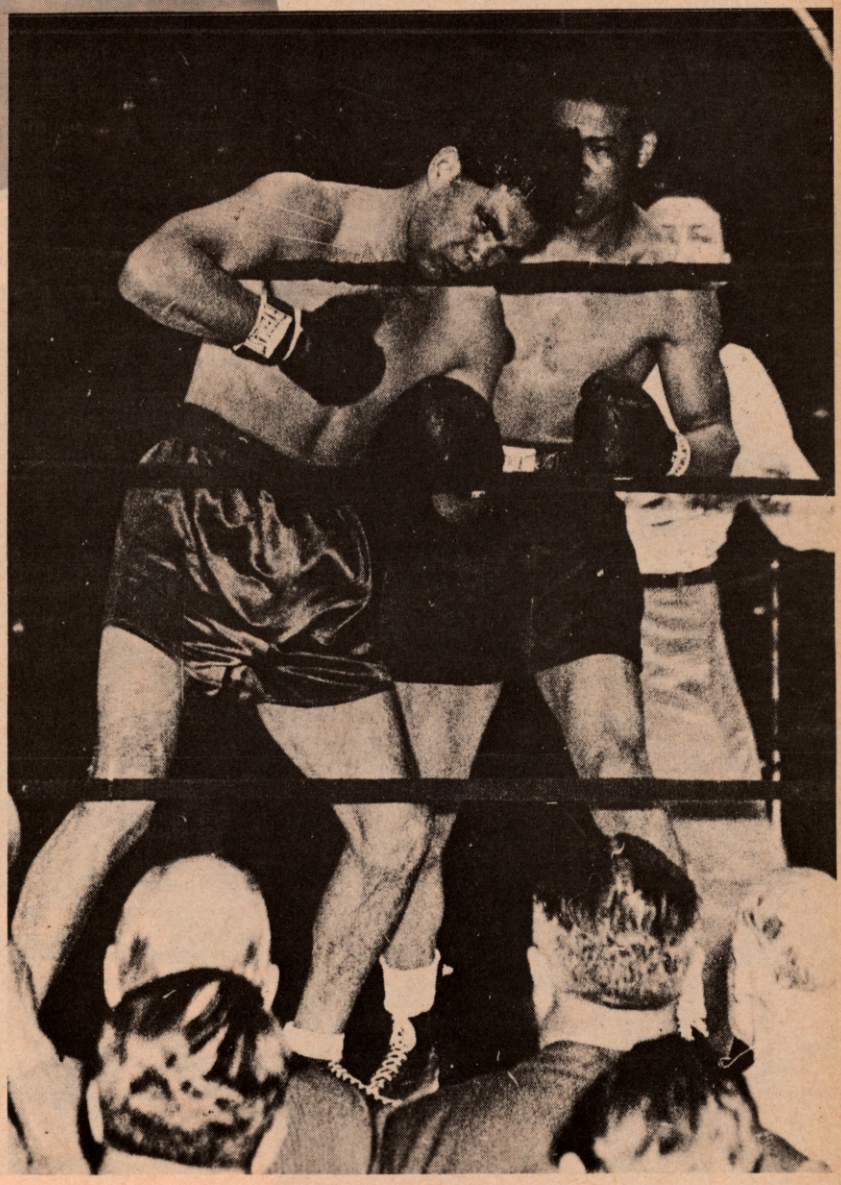
For two years he was busy with exhibitions. Then Joe Louis found himself lonesome. He wanted to hear the roar of the crowd again, the thrill of combat. He came back. A sad final interlude that turned out to be.

Beaten by Ezzard Charles, knocked out by Rocky Marciano, Joe hung up his gloves as a competitor in October, 1951. It was a dreary time for boxing, a sad finale for Louis, who was reported to be broke and in debt to the income tax people.

But what a glorious time boxing enjoyed while he was the champion, and the Joe Louis Era was in its rampant glory.



Joe Louis, the great Detroit Brown Bomber, held the heavyweight title from 1937 to 1949, when he retired. He later made an ill-fated comeback.



Louis destroys Max Schmeling in the first round of their second meeting, on June 22, 1938. Joe thus gained ample revenge for his 12-round kayo at the hands of the German ex-heavyweight king in 1936.

Tunney Made Hay As Dempsey Idled

STRICTLY speaking, there was no Gene Tunney Era in boxing. He wasn't around long enough after he had taken the world heavyweight championship from Jack Dempsey at Philadelphia on September 23, 1926, and had retained the crown against Jack's challenge at Chicago on September 22, 1927. That second fight went into the books as the Battle of the Long Count.

After the second contest with Dempsey, Tunney made his second defense on July 26, 1928, in New York. He knocked out Tom Heeney in the 11th round.

Gene Tunney, of New York's Hudson River docks, had met Polly Lauder, of the steel millions. That was the end of the boxing career of the man who had risen from the ranks of the professional boxers who had enlisted in the American Expeditionary Force for its battles in France.

While the championship tenure of Tunney was brief – it had lasted only two years when he announced his retirement – Fate took a hand in his spectacular rise. The narrative of Fate's involvement in his entire life stands out as Gene sits back in his New York office and unfolds his reminiscences.

Fate commanded the heavyweight situation in 1925 and made him the top contender for the title.

As a matter of fact, Dame Fortune took Tunney by the hand on May 2, 1918, when he enlisted in the Marine Corps.

Stories about Tunney have had him learning the rudiments of the fistic trade while in the service in France. But the book shows that he had had 12 professional fights before he went into training with the Marines. He had three more fights outside of the service in France before he began the long series of AEF eliminations which left him the light heavyweight champion. He climaxed that success with a victory over Bob Martin, the AEF heavyweight winner.

When Tunney returned to New York in November, 1919, he was a well advertised hero.

Gene found Jack Dempsey installed as the world heavyweight champion, after a most impressive victory over Jess Willard on July 4, 1919, in three of the most violent rounds yet seen in title competition.

Lady Luck by now had taken complete charge of the Tunney-Dempsey situation. She had plans for them.

As the years rolled along, Tunney became increasingly expert as a boxer, formidable as a hitter.

During those years of growing prestige for the former Marine, Dempsey gradually followed the inexorable laws of physical condition. He wasn't getting any younger, so he wasn't getting any tougher.

Jack achieved his zenith on the night of September 14, 1923, when he battered Luis Angel Firpo after the Wild Bull had punched him clear out of the ring.

Signs of Dempsey's deterioration had been noted the previous July 4, in Shelby, Montana, where Jack had to go the scheduled 15 rounds to outpoint Tom Gibbons, who was 32 years of age.

Following Dempsey's two-round knockout of Firpo, Jack participated in 24 exhibitions stretched over an easy period of three years. Life was soft and sweet.

While the Manassa Mauler was living a life of luxury, getting extremely ring rusty, Fate was getting Tunney ready for his big role.

From September 14, 1923, the Firpo date on the Dempsey calendar, until September 23, 1926, when the Marine whipped Dempsey, Tunney had no fewer than 17 fights.

When Tunney flew from his camp to Philadelphia and Dempsey, he was primed for the tremendous opportunity which confronted him. The gambling fraternity made the Mauler an 11 to 5 favorite.

Gene was ready, Dempsey wasn't. A year later, Tunney was supported by the confidence he had gained in Philadelphia, and it was an even money fight.

Two years after Tunney retired, Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey met in New York for the open title and the German won on a foul in four rounds.

At this point, too, Fate guided the Fickle Finger.

NOWHERE in the long history of the heavyweight championship is there vital evidence of the powerful influence of Fate, chance, luck and the breaks in a title fight to match what happened in the second meeting of Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey at Soldiers Field in Chicago, on September 22, 1927, with 104,943 looking on.

Tunney, who had taken the championship from Dempsey at Philadelphia on September 23, 1926, climbed through the ropes that Autumn night in the Windy City in the full panoply of an all-time star.

The betting people called it even money and take your pick. That price had been set up weeks ahead and it remained even money right up to the gong for the opening round, with former boxer Dave Barry in the important role of referee.

In a conference the day previous to the fight, it had been agreed that in the event of a knockdown, the standing fighter was to retreat to a neutral corner.

There was no doubt about this arrangement. It was definite, it was explicit.

Around this stipulation the entangling circumstances of those breaks which so often become dominating happenings in championship combat twisted themselves, and wrote into boxing history the matchless drama of The Long Count.

When Dempsey lost the title to Tunney, the ten rounds were more or less colorless. The focal point that miserable night in Philadelphia's sprawling Sesquicentennial Stadium was the rain. Tunney outdid himself. Dempsey was deplorably rusty after having done nothing since his two-round KO of Luis Angel Firpo in September, 1923.

In Chicago, however, Tunney faced a formidable puncher who on July 21, 1927, had stopped a top flight heavyweight, Jack Sharkey, in seven rounds.

Dempsey and his backers were confident that Tunney's success in Philadelphia had been a fluke. Surely, the Manassa Mauler, the old champ, would assert his former supremacy.

But it didn't happen that way. The Fates decreed otherwise and to make sure that their commands were obeyed, inserted The Long Count into the proceedings.

As the famous and, for Jack, fatal seventh got under way, Dempsey was being peppered and buffeted by left jabs and hooks, intermingled with right crosses.

Dempsey, who had been having serious trouble, except in the third round, kept pressing but Gene put on a masterful demonstration of attack and defense.

Then Jack organized a desperate rally. Both Time and Tunney were beating him for the second time and something drastic was called for.

Charging like a bull, reckless, unmindful of the dangers of his wide open offensive, Dempsey landed one of his old lefts to the jaw. Tunney was hurt.

Jack followed with a hard right to the jaw, and a powerful left hook to the same target.

Down went the heavyweight champion with a thud. He groped blindly for a rope. It wasn't there.

Was the former champion to regain his title? As Tunney fell, knockdown timekeeper Paul Beeler shouted, "One." Then he spotted what was going on in the ring. Tunney now was clutching a strand, with Dempsey standing menacingly over him, and referee Barry ordering Jack to a neutral corner. Beeler stopped counting. Barry never started to toll the seconds.

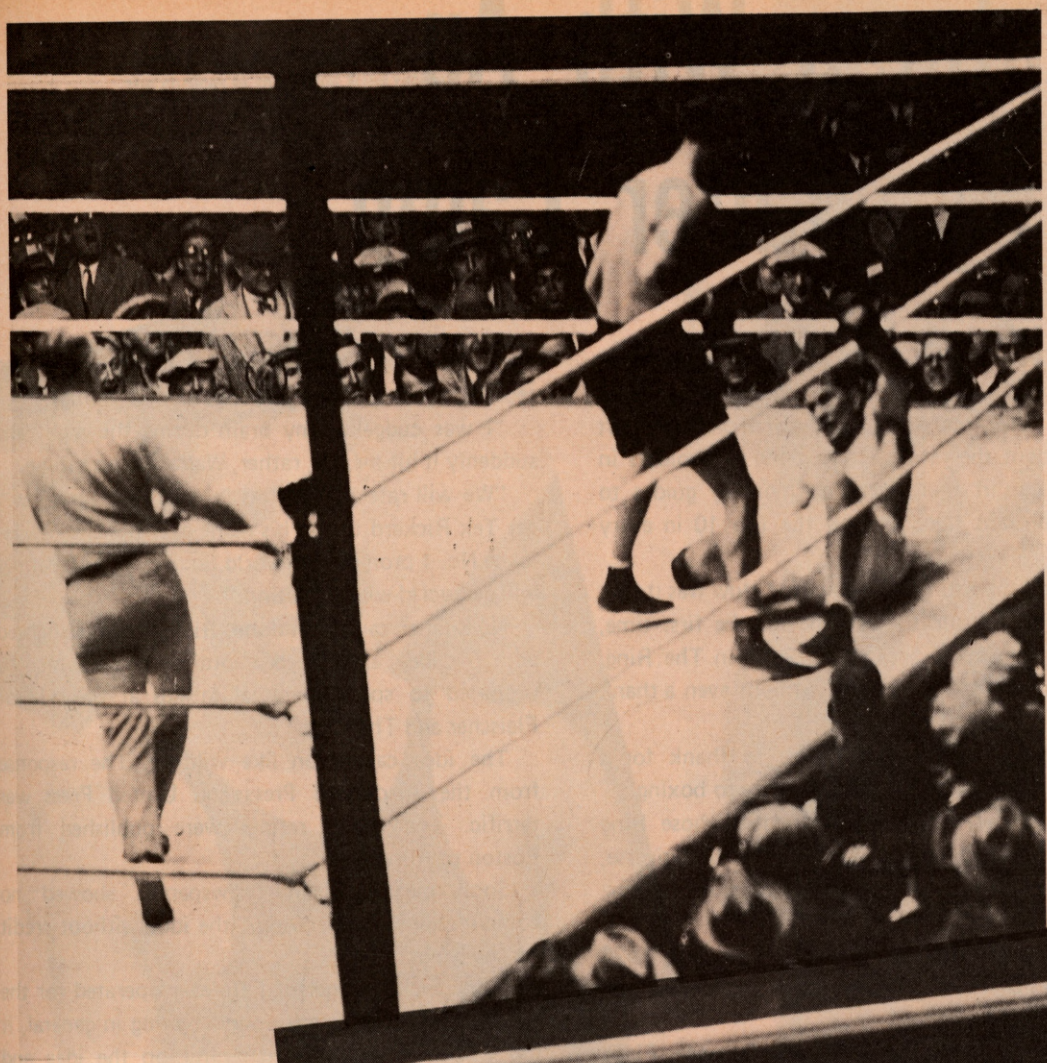
Irate, excited Dempsey made the mistake of his career. He refused to obey Barry, who declined to recognize the knockdown unless the Mauler went to that neutral corner.

Ultimately Dempsey did recognize Barry's command. The reporters figured that Tunney had from 14 to 17 seconds in which to recover. That was the famous Long Count.

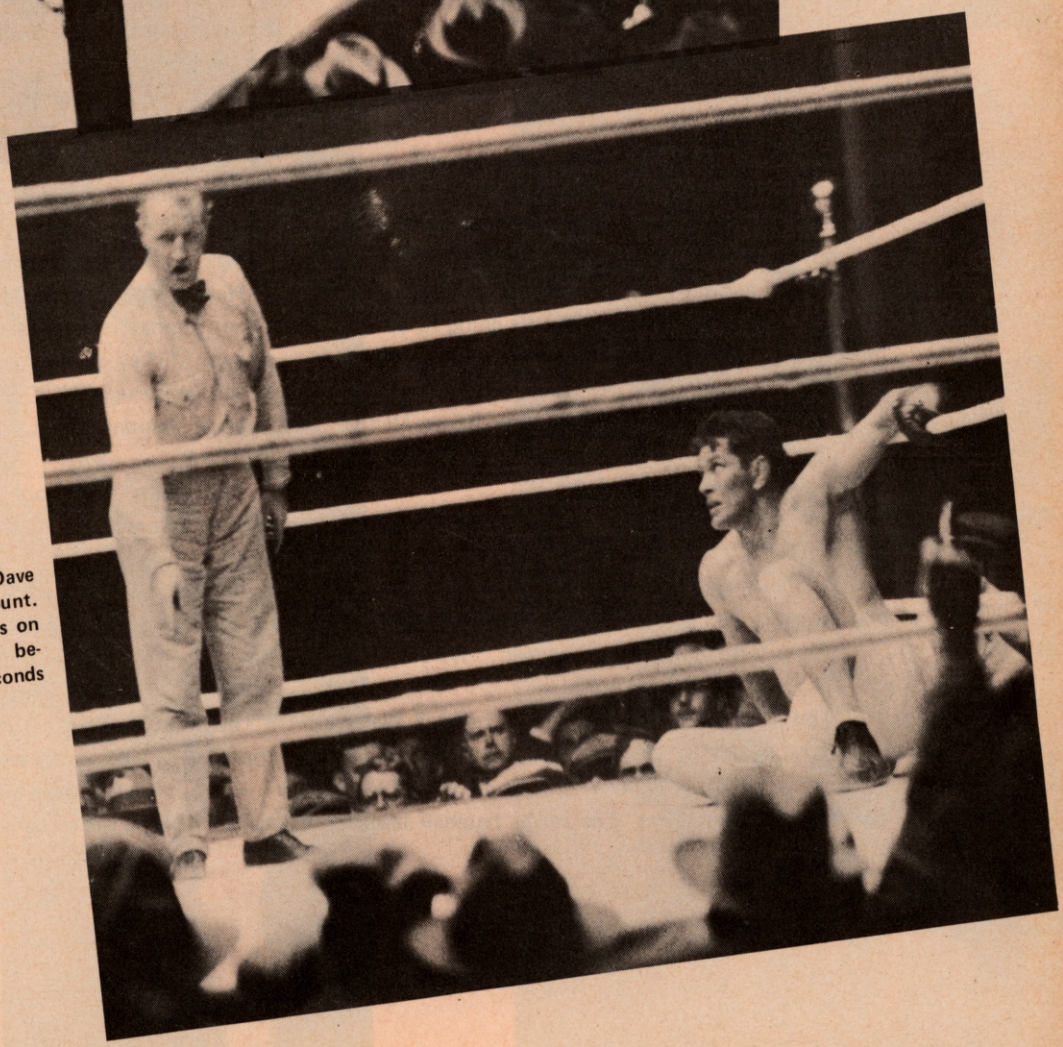
Tunney managed to last through the seventh. Gene took the last three rounds. If referee Barry needed any support he got it from the judges, Commodore Sheldon Clark, of the Sinclair Oil Company, and George Lytton, department store owner.

Could Tunney have risen before a ten count if Dempsey had gone to a neutral corner immediately?

Benny Leonard, a retired world champion, supported Gene's contention that he was thoroughly aware of what was going on after four seconds had elapsed. But the question will linger through boxing history.



Jack Dempsey has just floored Gene Tunney in the seventh round of their return engagement at Chicago in 1927. It is the beginning of the famed Long Count.



Tunney eyes referee Dave Barry as he tolls the count. Many believe Tunney was on the canvas somewhere between 14 and 17 seconds before he got up.

Ring Ratings-With An Assist By Walter Camp

CAN you imagine what boxing would be today without the monthly and annual ratings? Can you envision a popular comprehension not merely about the ratings, but of the titleholders in each division if there were no monthly guides to make fight fans familiar with the top 10 in every division?

How did the ratings come about? How was it that the idea took form in The Ring for the first time, how the innovation became a fixture in The Ring, and was copied the world over without even a thank you from any imitator?

Here again we have the Fates to thank for a tremendous lift and continuing benefice to boxing.

In November, 1924, Nat Fleischer, whose Ring Magazine was expanding all over the fistic universe, and Dan Daniel had a story conference in the magazine's offices.

"I don't like the looks of the February, 1925 issue," Flesicher said. "We need a strong feature, and we just do not have one.

"We still are writing about the Dempsey-Firpo fight. Dempsey hasn't fought since that bout, and from what he told me yesterday, he does not plan to defend the title in 1925. He is booking exhibitions and already has lined up eight of them.

"With Jack on the sidelines, it's going to be lean pickings for us if we don't get busy and dig up features that will interest our readers."

The conference ran along for three hours. Neither Nat nor Dan could get the required cerebral explosion which the situation demanded.

A week went by and still the Big Idea failed to present itself.

One morning, Daniel found Fleischer in a state of excitement. He had been hit by the Fickle Finger.

"I've got it," Fleischer exclaimed. "We are going to rate the fighters of the world.

"Why haven't I thought of this before? Walter Camp rates the college football players in his All America annuals in Collier's. The tennis people issue something like a rating. The major baseball leagues have their batting, pitching and other detailed records, which in effect, are their annual ratings.

"I was cudgeling my brain during the night and suddenly it hit me. Or, rather, Walter Camp hit me.

"We will rate the fighters in each class, and I will get Tex Rickard to put his name over the choices. He is the No. 1 promoter of world boxing, and his ratings will get world-wide attention."

No sooner said than done. Rickard was delighted with the idea, and signed a contract under which he promised to sponsor annual ratings at the will of Fleischer and The Ring.

The idea caught on like wildfire. The response from the Associated Press and United Press was terrific. The Ring's ratings were published from Boston to Australia.

Soon magazines and newspapers showed no compunctions about swiping the idea without credit to The Ring.

If the Fickle Finger of Fate ever operated for the benefit of the publication, and boxing in general, it did just that when Fleischer hit on the idea and Rickard quickly accepted sponsorship.

Let us have a look at the leaders in the first set of ratings. They were as follows:

The reader will note that the list was rich in all-time heroes, some of them rated the No. 1 men of their divisions.

What would Madison Square Garden give today to have at its booking disposal Dempsey, Tunney, Leonard, Greb, Walker and Villa?

In time, Fleischer expanded the rating idea so that it became a monthly feature. This, too, was "borrowed" all over the world.

The Fates which gave birth to the ratings helped to make The Ring the recognized Bible of Boxing.

Tex Rickard, the famed promoter, whose name went over the choices in the initial Ring ratings.

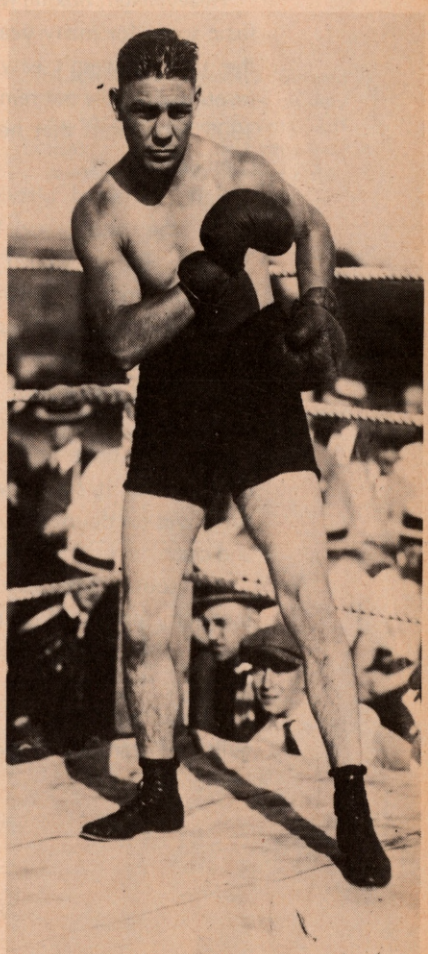
Harry Greb was the world's best middleweight, according to the first ratings.



Black Heavy Kings: Color Them Dramatic

FROM Jack Johnson to Joe Frazier. The story of the Negro heavyweight champions of the world. The drama which leads us through the reigns of Li'l Artha, Joe Louis, Ezzard Charles, Jersey Joe Walcott, Floyd Patterson, Sonny Liston and Cassius Clay, to the current leadership of Clay's only conqueror.

It's a story replete with the breaks of battle, the fortunate circumstances which set up some of the black champions, and frowned on others.

It's a drama bristling with the consummate fistic and physical accomplishments of black men in a sport which for so many years denied to them their full opportunity and complete justice.

To become champions, those Negros leaders had to be favored with the breaks, or they never would have gone so high.

Heavyweight boxing was a feature of the American fistic scene for many years before a Negro finally got the title. It wasn't easy. First Johnson had to be favored with the retirement of Jim Jeffries, who in 1905 announced that he saw nobody worthy of his combative effort.

Jeffries named Marvin Hart and Jack Root to settle the supremacy between them. Ultimately Tommy Burns gained the leadership. Johnson stopped Tommy in Australia in 14 rounds.

Did this make Johnson the undisputed titleholder? Not in the minds of some students of the heavyweight succession.

In 1910, Jeffries decided to "rescue the White Race" and fight Johnson. It wasn't much of a contest. But it somehow did last 15 rounds. Now there was no doubt about it. Johnson's title was clear and clean.

No sooner had Jack settled down to reap the monetary profits of his position than he became the quarry of bigots in Federal places. He was accused of violating the Mann Act, a stupid, incredible piece of legislation which set up prison terms for men found guilty of transporting women across state lines, for immoral purposes.

Johnson never was found guilty. But the hounds kept right on chasing.

Finally, when Jack got a big break with a chance to defend his championship against Jess Willard, king of the White Hopes, the fight had to be held in Havana.

Willard beat Johnson in 26 rounds in April, 1915. Once again Lady Luck had begun to frown on Negro heavies.

From Willard, the title went to Jack Dempsey, then to Gene Tunney, Max Schmeling, Jack Sharkey, and Primo Carnera.

Heavyweight boxing continued to be Fortune's favorite until Carnera won the title. Boxing historians still wonder at the break which sent the title to the massive Italian, from the hands of Jack Sharkey, a skilled technician.

From Carnera the title went to Max Baer, then to lucky Jim Braddock. Ultimately the black man came charging back into the foreground with Joe Louis, one of the all-time greats.

After Joe, Ezzard Charles, Jersey Joe Walcott, Rocky Marciano, Floyd Patterson, Ingemar Johansson, Sonny Liston and Clay.

When Clay's title reign was invaded by his troubles with the Army and the courts, Lady Luck appeared to have deserted the Black Man.

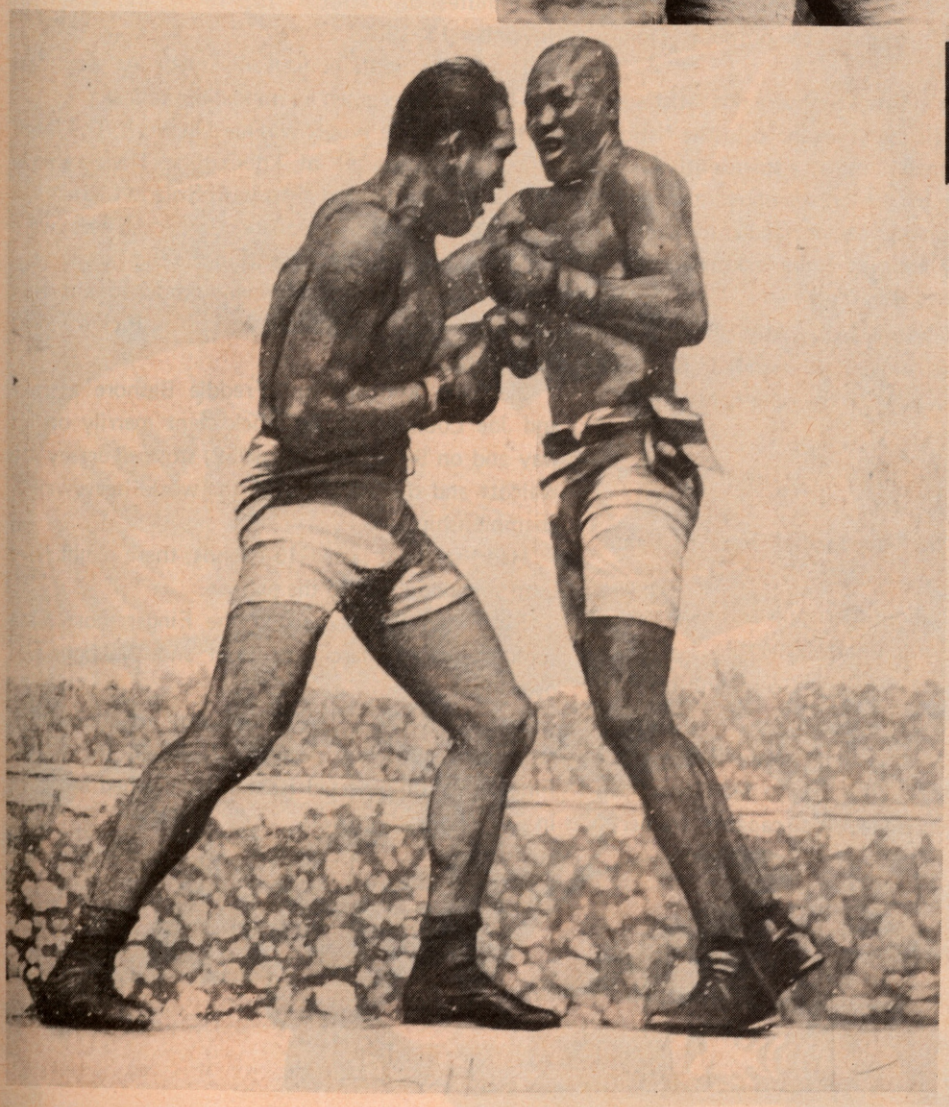
But the Fickle Finger wasn't giving up. After Clay's troubles had reached the Supreme Court, Joe Frazier became a punching contender. The fortunate Olympian stopped Jimmy Ellis, winner of an elimination. Clay retired, then came back and was beaten by Frazier.

From Johnson to Frazier. There we stand in this year 1972, no longer bemused by White Hopes, no longer disturbed by racial rivalries.

This year may see two black men fight again for the heavyweight title. Maybe the issue will linger for 1973. But, one of these days, sooner or later, it will be Frazier and Clay for the second time.

Meanwhile the Fickle Finger of Fate is poised for another Big Decision.

Jack Johnson, the Galveston Giant, the first Negro heavyweight champion of the world, won his crown from Tommy Burns in 1908, lost it to Jess Willard in 1915.



A scene from Johnson's 15-round KO victory over Jeffries on July 4, 1910 at Reno, Nevada. Jeff made a comeback after a five-year absence from the squared circle.

Take One Raw Rock, Mixed With Sock, And Wait A-Weill

IN 1946, Rocky Marciano was a minor league catcher with a bad arm. The Cubs had tried him out and found him wanting. What next? Powerfully built, strong, admirably constructed to take as well as to deal out punishment, Rocky decided to take a shot at professional boxing.

A local trainer in Brockton, Mass., where Marciano lived, named Gene Caggiano, began to work with the burly belter and it wasn't long before boxing people far from Brockton began to talk about this young man from the city of silent shoe factories and, for the young, limited opportunities.

Rocky's early fights were auspicious. He scored 17 consecutive knockouts before he was forced to go the advertised limit of 10 rounds, to outpoint Don Mogard at Providence.

Friends of Marciano in Brockton were not satisfied that Caggiano was sufficiently advanced in the fistic market to carry their man along at a sufficiently fast pace. They were eager for a more flamboyant career at the moment and promise of a spectacular look into the future. What they believed to be lacking was an intimate connection with New York.

The man whom they sought was Al Weill. Al had proved himself a capable pilot, a master drawer of fistic blueprints, a manager with the right connections and a national reputation.

Rocky's friends settled on Weill as the man for the job, the maker of a champion.

At this point we find the Fickle Finger of Fate getting involved.

Weill had heard all about Marciano and he wasn't keen for taking over Rocco's management.

Those who sought Al insisted. "Go up and take a look at the boy," they urged.

Weill kept pleading that he already had a full stable and would not be able to give Marciano the time the boxer needed from a capable trainer, manager and general advisor.

Eventually they induced Weill to go to Providence to see Marciano fight.

That was the night Mogard made Rocco go the distance. Marciano was not at his best. Weill went back to New York more determined than ever not to take on another charge.

The pressure on Weill became heavier and more insistent. Against his better judgment he became the manager of Rocky Marciano.

Early in Al's connection with Marciano, Rock had two of the toughest fights of his career, with a young man named Ted Lowry, who fought his head off for 30 minutes on October 10, 1949, and again on November 13, 1950.

Those two fights conceivably made Al Weill feel that he had undertaken an impossible task.

But the Fickle Finger was hard at work. The Rock rallied for a quartet of knockouts. Then came a showdown, a 10-round fight with Roland LaStarza in New York's Madison Square Garden. There were many unimpressed cognoscenti in the Big Town.

On July 12, 1951, Marciano knocked out Rex Layne in six heats in New York. The Fickle Finger pointed to the heights.

Marciano knocked out Freddie Beshore in four and Joe Louis in 8. The Rock went merrily on his way and on September 23, 1952, stopped Jersey Joe Walcott and divested him of the world heavyweight championship.

Had that fight lasted 15 rounds, there might have been some doubt as to the winner.

But when Rocky needed the Finger most, Fate took charge of Marciano's right and the fight was over.

On April 27, 1956, Marciano announced his retirement. But on August 31, 1969, the Fickle Finger of Fate deserted Rocky. He crashed and died in a small plane in Iowa.

WALKER LAW MODEL FOR MODERN RULES

JAMES J. (Jimmy) Walker, the late Mayor of New York, who had an amazing disdain for watches, clocks and calendars, enjoyed an alliance with the Fates which smiled on him for years and then departed quietly.

One of the products of Jimmy's association with the Norns (you will find them in Norse mythology) was the Walker Law, under which boxing has been conducted in New York for the last 52 years.

The workings of the Fates in protecting boxing in the Empire State make a dramatic story of threats overcome and dangers knocked out, of benefices which spread to professional fistic competition all over the world.

The Fickle Finger came to the rescue of boxing at a time when the forces aiming to bar the sport legally were massing formidably for the kill. They were led by a great politician, Al Smith, governor of New York, and later Democratic candidate for President of the United States against Herbert Hoover in 1928.

Boxing in New York was started before the Revolution. Boxing and bear bating and cock fighting were the favorite sports of British soldiers quartered in New York.

After the Revolution, boxing had an erratic and checkered career in the 13 original states. The official treatment of boxing in New York depended on the mood of the state administration in Albany.

New York tried the Horton Law. It tried and repealed the Frawley Law. Boxing in the Empire state was in utter confusion in 1920, when a special committee, which included New York city sportswriters, waited on Al Smith with a plea to save the game.

Governor Al was adamant. But the Fickle Finger of Fate pointed in the other direction.

Jimmy Walker, who loved boxing and all other sports, was the big power in the State Senate. He marshalled his political forces like the Napoleon he was in that field, and with the help of the Fickle Finger, forced Governor Smith and his henchmen into a corner from which they could not extricate themselves.

The public supposition was that Smith and Walker were close pals.

As a matter of fact, they disliked each other cordially. Jimmy privately called Al a prude and a stuffed shirt, and Smith rated Jimmy with those who lived the very easy life.

Smith's implacable opposition to boxing broke down in the fight with the forces of the sport.

On May 24, 1920, in Madison Square Garden, the first fight card under the Walker Law took place. From time to time, the Fickle Finger, which had beaten back the foes of boxing, has come to the rescue of the professional sport, even as lately as the current administration of Governor Nelson Rockefeller.

Advanced provisions for the greater protection of seat holders and the health safeguards of the fighters, showed the Walker Law to be the best administered of all the ring regulations in the United States.

One state after another copied the Walker Law to its minutest detail.

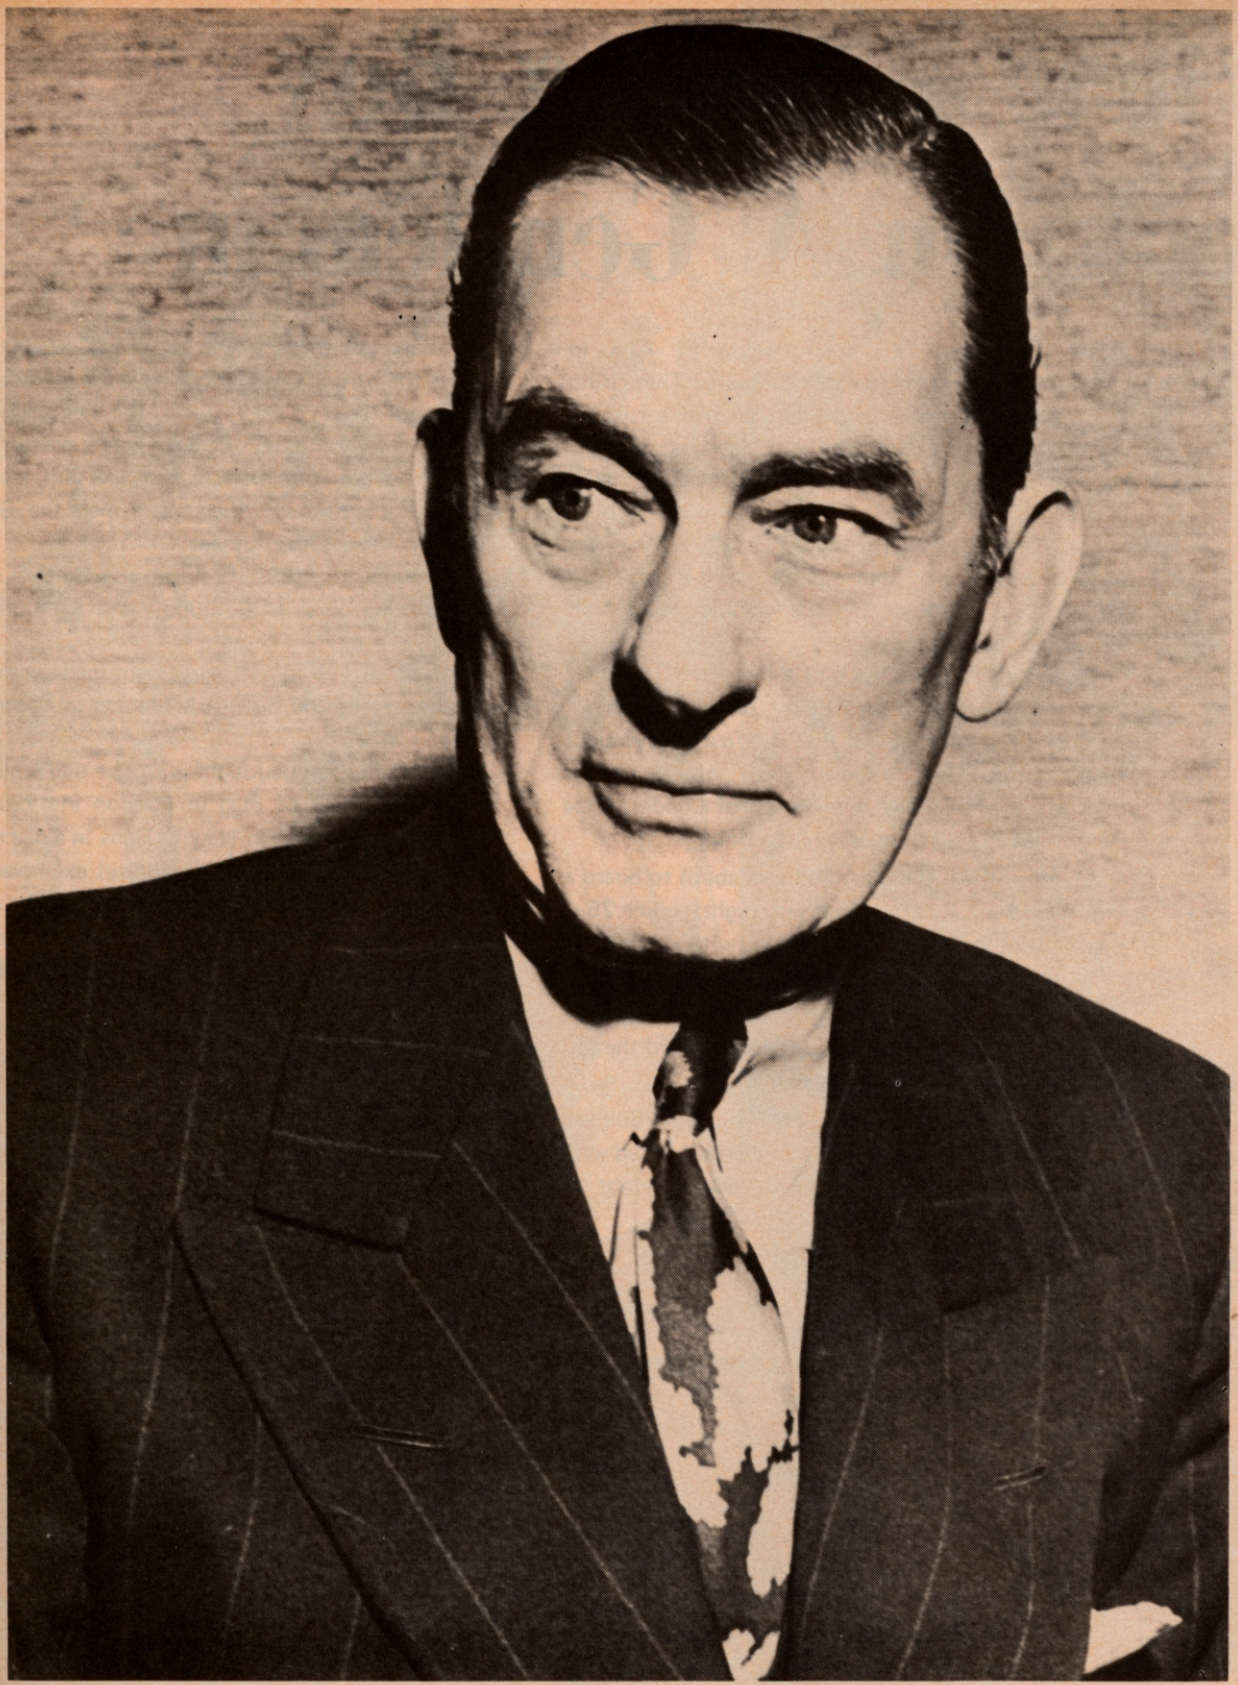
Even now, state, city and county commissions follow the actions of the New York body avidly.

Championship fights are scheduled for 15 rounds, lasting three minutes each.

Refereeing and judging has improved. Decisions are rendered by the votes of the third man in the ring and two judges seated at the ringside.

Under the jurisdiction of the State Commission, there is a Medical Committee of specialists guarding the health of our boxers.

All this has followed the passage of the Walker Law 52 years ago.



James J. (Jimmy) Walker, who later gained fame as Mayor of New York City, pushed through his law while a member of the State Senate in 1920. Its provisions have been copied by most ring bodies throughout the world in the years since its passage.

When A Strong Boy Took On A Gentleman

TALK about the interposition of Fate in heavyweight championship boxing! There is no more impressive evidence than that surrounding the acquisition of the title by James J. Corbett, the former bank teller in San Francisco, from John Lawrence Sullivan, the onetime Boston Strong Boy, at New Orleans on September 7, 1892. Strong men wept as John L., by that time weighing a lardy 212 pounds, was battered by the nimble and adroit 26-year-old 178-pounder.

Where and how did the Fickle Finger of Fate enter into the acquisition of the title by Gentleman Jim?

How did it come about that the first heavyweight championship fight between rivals wearing gloves took place, ending the domination of London Prize Ring Rules and bare knuckle bludgeoning?

In June, 1891, the great Sullivan, about to board a ship bound for Australia that very night – June 26 – sparred four rounds in San Francisco with Corbett.

California regarded the erstwhile bank teller as the coming champion. But the Boston Strong Boy adopted a somewhat cavalier attitude toward the fast moving Jim, eight years John's junior.

At the end of the four-round exhibition, Sullivan told the reporters that San Francisco was blessed with a comer. John intimated that Corbett was not an inspiring hitter.

Corbett announced that Sullivan, indeed, was a great champion.

But, talking to himself – as men will – Jim said, "Hey, this man is my dish. I can beat him. He has slowed up, he can't box with me, and I don't think he can hit hard enough to stop me. I am going to be the next champion."

Wise men of the ring who had seen Corbett traipse around the Strong Boy did not have the effrontery to come out, cold turkey, with the prophecy that Corbett already looked like John L.'s successor. That would have been lese majeste. But, like Jim, they said things to themselves which envisioned the Goliath from the Hub as David's meat.

On March 15, 1892, Sullivan and Corbett signed articles for a purse of $25,000, with $20,000 stake money.

The small type in that agreement made one of the most important and historic sentences in ring annals. It said:

"The fight shall be fought with five ounce gloves."

From the days of Figg in London in 1720 until that September night in New Orleans in a dirt ring at the Olympic Club, boxing's standout exemplars had fought mostly with bare knuckles. Later came a time when some wore driving gloves, then the type of leather protectors now worn, usually weighing eight ounces.

As boxing, with Corbett the champion, became reorganized, fights became split into rounds of three minutes each, with 60 seconds' rest between sessions.

From the bar room, boxing became transformed into a sport of bigger and cleaner venues, with very few contests fought in places where they were against the law.

No longer were fighters forced to hide from the police. No longer were there dull affairs in which a knockout meant the end of a round and big fights were more wrestling matches than they were pugilistic tests.

So much of all that traced to John L. Sullivan's being in San Francisco on his way to Australia.

Clay Made 'em Look 'n' Listen

ONE of the most fortunate and magnificent breaks boxing yet has enjoyed came with the rise of Cassius Clay, also known as Muhammad Ali, to the heavyweight championship of the world.

When Cassius won the Olympic light heavyweight championship at Rome in 1960, boxing was in the doldrums.

Not only was there no outstanding drawing card, no man of the people, no magnetic character in the world ring, but the sport was under severe attack.

The world heavyweight title was held by Floyd Patterson, who would twice be knocked out by Sonny Liston in the first round.

Liston was a hindrance to the game. His misadventures made regular contributions to the sinister side of the sports pages. His associations came under caustic attack. They were rated so bad in New York that Liston could not get a license to box in that state.

When Clay turned professional in October, 1960, he was under the control of a syndicate of prominent business men in Louisville, Ky. It was an arrangement similar to the one which, under the name of Cloverlay, took over control of Joe Frazier when he went pro in 1965.

Inside of three years Clay made the boxing world perk up. Lady Luck had taken charge.

Cassius got the decision over Doug Jones in Madison Square Garden in a ten-rounder on March 13, 1963. Many of the spectators believed that Jones had won. However, the decision went to Clay.

The Louisville heavyweight had stopped Archie Moore, but at that time beating the Mongoose no longer was rated a feat. When Clay followed the victory over Jones with a five-round KO of Henry Cooper in London, in a fight punctuated by the American's hitting the deck, the boxing world became electrified.

The time had come for Clay to fight Liston. With New York barred by Sonny's being persona non grata there, the promoters picked Miami Beach.

Chance, arrogant unpredictable Chance, continued to favor Cassius that night of February 25, 1964.

The Liston of Florida in no way resembled the Liston who had knocked out Patterson twice.

There was one point in the Miami Beach fight at which it appeared that Lady Luck had shifted her allegiance. That was when the fifth round rolled around. Clay asserted that some of Sonny's liniment had got into his eyes and he could not see clearly.

For a moment it appeared that Clay's sun had sunk. But the Fickle Finger stuck to the Louisville boxer.

When Angelo Dundee, the boss in Clay's corner, spotted his charge's hesitancy in answering the bell, he grabbed Clay by the elbows and pushed him out into action.

This was not yet the crisis. That round saw Liston fight himself out and Clay show the powers of a dangerous survivor.

In the sixth round, Lady Luck dropped Liston into a strange fit of inertia.

Came the seventh round and Liston, insisting that he had suffered a disabling injury of an elbow, announced the cessation of hostilities and his loss of the heavyweight championship to the young man from Kentucky.

They met again, on May 25, 1965, in a little skating rink in Lewiston, Me., with a mere 2,434 spectators paying a reported $93,000 for the privilege of seeing a fight that was no fight.

The Fickle Finger of Fate wrote that affair into the record book as a knockout in barely 60 seconds.

It wasn't long thereafter that Cassius Clay, transformed into a Black Muslim under the sobriquet of Muhammad Ali, got into trouble.

For three and a half years, The Ring stood by the inactive Muslim as the continuing champion of the world.

Eventually the Supreme Court recognized his right to rating as a conscientious objector. But the break he got in Washington was discounted by Joe Frazier's decisive victory over Clay in their 15-round fight in Madison Square Garden.

Will Chance build Frazier into as powerful a personality as it built Clay?

The answer hangs in the balance. The heavyweight championship may be described as lieing in a state of innocuous desuetude.

Cassius Clay, the former heavyweight champion of the world, has certainly been one of the great influences in modern-day boxing.

Clay flails away at Sonny Liston, backed against the ropes, during their first meeting, at Miami Beach in 1964. Clay became champion when Liston failed to answer the bell for the seventh round.

Yes, Virginia, There Is A Cinderella Man

ON the night of June 13, 1935, in the ill-fated Madison Square Garden Bowl in Long Island City, N.Y. erratic Fate, sometimes jocular, often tragic, decided to play a trick on world boxing in general, and the heavyweight class in particular. It made a world champion of James J. Braddock.

Who else but Dame Fortune could be credited with the prank which left Max Baer minus the world title he had beaten out of Primo Carnera with 11 knockdowns in as many rounds?

Joe Louis was coming along fast and furious. There had to be a Baer-Louis fight. It was clearly discernible in the offing. But there had to be an early Summer elimination and Braddock, who had knocked out Corn Griffin in three rounds, beaten John Henry Lewis, and whipped Art Lasky impressively, was picked by promoter Mike Jacobs to become the stop-gap. The Fickle Finger was over-busy.

At every point in his career in the job which had been occupied by Tex Rickard in Madison Square Garden, Jacobs had been, and through the Louis heyday was to continue to be, the Man with the Breaks.

When Mike announced that he had matched the 30-year-old colorless Braddock with Baer, there were no printed huzzahs. In fact, the match got what was known as the Bronx Cheer. It was saved from being laughed to death by the fact that the boxing writers liked the genial Braddock, who had fallen on evil days and been forced, for a time, to go on relief.

Before the Fickle Finger was done with Jim, he was being lauded from one fistic center to another as the Cinderella Man. The Fates had made him the hero of the most amazing feat in the history of the heavyweight division.

So minute did Braddock's chances appear to be among the reporters and the betting men that they made Baer a record 10 to 1 favorite to retain the championship.

Only recently in 1971 there was an alleged match between Cassius Clay and Buster Mathis in which the bookmakers were totally ignored by the betting public. What the fans had expected, a mismatch type of nothing fight, was what was spun off in the Houston Astrodome.

Nor, in the 1957 match between Floyd Patterson and, until that year, amateur Pete Rademacher, was there enough promise of a real contest to produce any odds.

While Braddock did not appear to be a fit match for Baer, whose hitting power had killed Frankie Campbell in 1930 with a five round KO, Jim was a seasoned, experienced scrapper when he beat Griffin and Lasky.

But, experienced as he was, Braddock did not shape up as a worthy opponent for the champion.

Braddock's chances were damned by a particularly poverty stricken year, 1932.

During that year Jim fought eight times, and lost six, one of his defeats being a six-round knockout by Lou Scozza in San Francisco on November 9.

Jim lost to Baxter Calmes, Charley Retzlaff, Tony Shucco and Tom Patrick before being trounced by Scozza.

Four of Braddock's nine engagements in 1933 had brought him defeats, with an end of the year match with Abe Feldman in Mount Vernon, N.Y. thrown out as "No Contest" after six ineffective rounds.

To the end of his days – he died in 1959 – Max Baer was unable to explain the 15-round fight in which he lost the title to Braddock. Nor, to tell the truth, has Braddock been able to account for the victory which made him champion and led to the lucrative meeting with Joe Louis, which lasted only eight rounds.

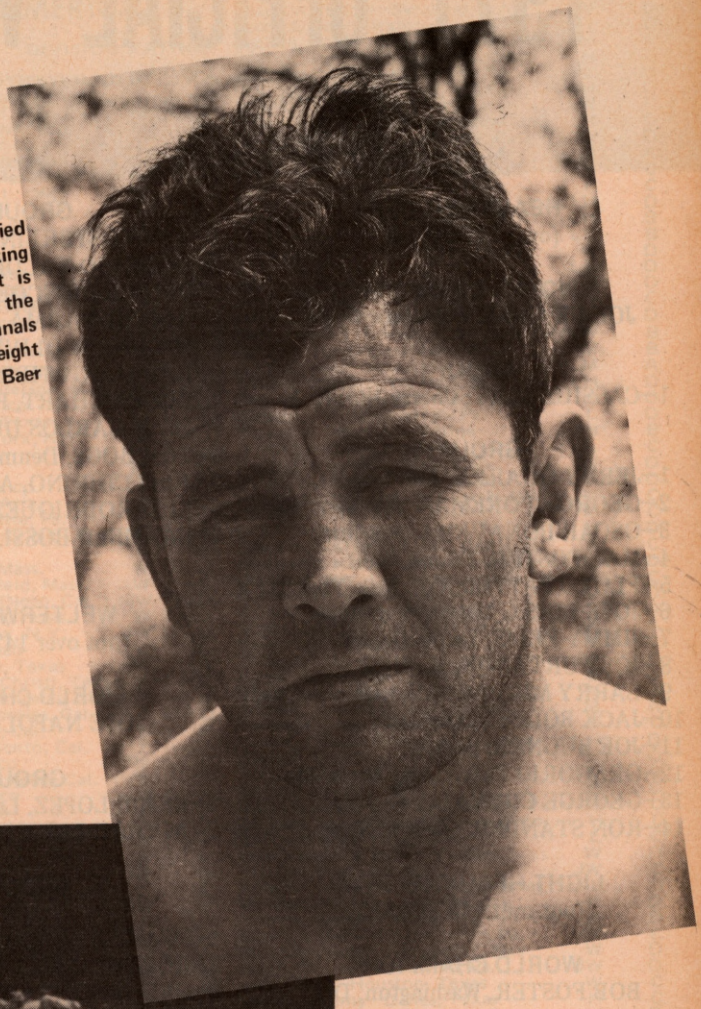
Possible explanations of the Baer defeat all were summed up in the joke of the Fates.

Baer unquestionably had underrated Braddock. Jim's record was not one to overawe Maxie. Nor, even with a title defense in prospect, could Baer enforce upon himself rules for training and discipline.

The fact was, Baer asked for it, and he got it, even from a Braddock with a sour record.

Braddock stopped Griffin on the Baer-Carnera card. What Max did to the Italian Behemoth should have made Jim very doubtful of his chances against Max. But the crafty Braddock saw things which he stored away in his mind, and which he brought out that fateful night in the Madison Square Garden Bowl.

James J. Braddock, the storied Cinderella Man of boxing history, who pulled what is generally regarded as the biggest upset in boxing annals when he took the heavyweight championship from Max Baer on June 13, 1935.



Here is Braddock (left) in the act of taking the crown away from Baer, who had entered the ring a 10-1 favorite.

Bouttier Stops Sterling In 14

PARIS – European Middleweight champion Jean Claude Bouttier of France retained his crown by knocking out British challenger Bunny Sterling in the 14th round.

The 28-year-old Frenchman bored into Sterling in the 13th round, sending him to the canvas three times for a count of 8 before finally nailing him with an explosive right hook at 2:00 of the 14th.

It had been a good fight for the 23-year-old British and Commonwealth titleholder until the 13th. Sterling held the champion off with accurate left jabs and danced around the ring eluding the hard-hitting Frenchman.

THINNING HAIR

HAS it happened to you yet, the heartache of thinning hair? You know the signs; receding hair line, too many loose hairs in your comb, even some thin spots at your "widow's peak" or a balding at the crown of your head. It's distressing. But even worse is the fact that others may have begun to notice, too.

"Gosh, I really thought he was too old for me."

How many times has that been said about you behind your back? How sad when a young face "ages" beyond truth due to thinning hair, a receding hair line or easy-to-spot bald spots. You ask what can you do about these false signs of aging that lead people to add years to your real age? Until recently you could do little more than follow some basic rules for keeping your hair and scalp clean and pray you were not getting bald pre-maturely. Let's agree on this, keeping your hair and scalp clean is of basic importance. However, now you can do more to come to the aid of the appearance of your thin or thinning hair.

CAN YOU RESTORE THAT YOUTHFUL VIRILITY-APPEARANCE TO THINNING HAIR?

Yes, there is something positive, something new that gives you instant results. You can restore virility-appearance to your hair safely, easily, instantly. You can regain that added self-confidence that goes with a thicker head of hair. You can be more attractive, more youthful looking; both professionally and, more important, socially.

HAIR-THIC does what it says, thickens your hair, instantly!

Amazing new HAIR-THIC is a suspended emulsion of highly specialized ingredients. When applied to your hair this suspended, superfine emulsion is released and appears to multiply the "body" of each and every hair. The instant result is a fuller, richer, more luxurious looking head of hair! That is what amazing HAIR-THIC will do for you. Your thinning hair takes on a thick, luxurious look giving you a head of hair that can be styled to cover a receding hair line, put out of sight a telling bald spot. HAIR-THIC makes hair more manageable . . . keeps it in place all day long.

HAIR-THIC is safe, easy to use, both by men and women alike.

This new, amazing grooming aid will help the appearance of both men and women now experiencing the heartache of thin or thinning hair. HAIR-THIC comes in a plastic, unbreakable tube. There is no mess, no "ritual", no bother. Simply dry hair after moistening and apply HAIR-THIC while hair is still damp. Comb and style. Immediately you'll notice the feel of increased hair "body." Then let your hair dry. Now brush and recomb to bring out HAIR-THIC's full effect. Use HAIR-THIC daily, it's 100% safe. Absolutely cannot change the color of your hair. HAIR-THIC is not a dye, not a tint. Your hair retains its natural color; just appears thicker all over. It is never oily or greasy, it always makes your hair thicker, more luxurious, resulting in a more youthful you.

New hair styles now easily within reach.

Those youthful hair styles so popular now, the new styles you couldn't consider because of thin hair, now they are possible for you. So often a different hair style can work wonders; both for men and women! It can hide that receding hair line, cover that bald spot . . . take years off your appearance, instantly. But the whole secret to these new hair styles is thick hair. That's where HAIR-THIC is so very helpful and invaluable in training the hair for both men and women. It keeps hair manageable and in place —makes the restyling much easier.

LABORATORY TESTED

HAIR-THIC has been tested by a recognized independent Research and Testing Laboratory. Completely safe and harmless to the hair and scalp. HAIR-THIC is not a dye, not a tint. Your hair retains its natural color . . . just appears thicker all over.

Slipping Griffith Too Much For McAloon

By NAT LOUBET

An announced crowd of 4,728, paying $23,008, watched veteran Emile Griffith, who turned professional in 1958 and has since won and lost five world titles, win a ten-round unanimous decision over Danny McAloon of New York. The venue was Madison Square Garden. The 32 year old Griffith, weighing 154 pounds, was too experienced and had too large an edge in the punching department for the willing but lacking McAloon, 28 years old, who scaled 151½.

McAloon, a school physical education instructor, was in top shape but it was obvious as the bout progressed that he could win nohow. At no time did he command respect from Emile, who defied the pawing left jabs tossed by Danny.

The former champ was never in trouble. He had McAloon on the KO verge several times. The writer gave Emile eight rounds to one with one even. With the exception of the very early rounds and the early minutes of the seventh, the fight was one-sided.

Danny looked good for half of the seventh round. Then Emile connected with a left hook to the body, followed by a solid right hand to the jaw and a glancing left hook to Danny's head.

Griffith mixed his attack, moving from head to body, with McAloon using a jab which was ineffective.

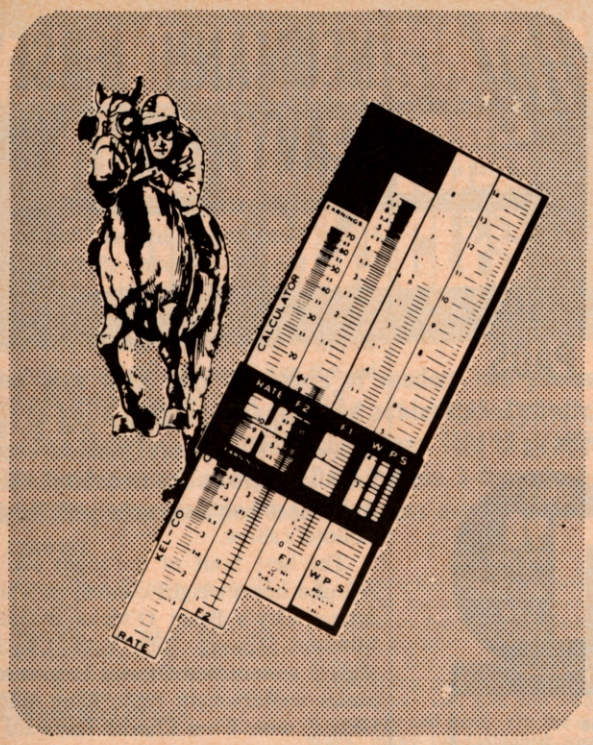
Emile showed only flashes of his former brilliance with few combinations and speed of legs. It was sufficient.

Judge Tony Bill Recht scored the fight for Griffith 7 to 2 with one round even. Judge Tony Castellano tabbed it 8 to 2 for Griffith and referee Arthur Mercante called it 6 to 3 with one even for Emile.

Emile has appeared in 23 main events spread over the new Madison Square Garden and the former venue at 50th street.

The number is shy by one the record set by the late Tony Canzoneri, featherweight and lightweight champion and Ring Hall of Famer, who boxed in 24 top spots in the old Garden.

The fans were treated to a semi-final ten rounder that brought them to their feet as Jose Fernandez, New York, won a unanimous decision over Irish Walter Seeley, Sayville, Long Island.



"Pick winners with a slide rule? It may sound crazy, but the developers of the Kel-Co Class Calculator have found a horseplayer's dream— A WINNING FORMULA."
—quote from Horsemen's Journal, Sept. 1970

This new betting calculator can spot a potential winner in 30 seconds.

What's more, we guarantee it will work for you! (During extensive tests at many tracks, just one week at Bowie showed a profit of $4,417.00.)

There's only one reason in the world to bet horses. To win big money. That's where the Kel-Co Class Calculator comes in. It's a completely new concept in handicapping. Proved in action by thousands of owners, trainers, professional handicappers, turf writers, and enthusiastic racing fans everywhere.

It really works. On fast tracks and off tracks. With flat, turf and hurdle races. With small fields and large ones. It tells you when and how to bet. Individual races, doubles, exactas, parlays. It eliminates the "stiffs" and the non-playable high-risk races. Spots the true drop-downs. Points out the hidden class in allowance races. Automatically steers you off the non-contending horse out for a "conditioner." Picks out playable longshots. Tells you the true potential of "shippers." Gives you precise ratings based on class, condition and consistency. Yet the Kel-Co Class Calculator is so easy to read, it provides a horse's rating in just 30 seconds. So easy to read, even beginners with no previous handicapping experience can use it to pick winners the very first day.

Started With $200. Cleared Over $30,000!

The Calculator was developed by a professor of probability and statistics, currently a statistician in the aerospace industry. The principles behind it have been evaluated through extensive computer studies, then proved out at the toughest tracks in the country. In the first year's test, starting with $200, the Calculator cleared over $30,000! Last February the popular racing magazine, Turf & Sport Digest, tested the system for one week at Bowie—and the Kel-Co Class Calculator made $4,417 over a $900 investment! No wonder those in the know use Kel-Co!

NEUMANN JERSEY HEAVYWEIGHT KING

NORTH BERGEN, N.J.—Randy Neumann, Cliffside Park, won the New Jersey State heavyweight championship via a 12-round decision over Jersey City's Chuck Wepner, who fought with a cut above his left eye from the first round on.

Referee Paul Venti scored the bout 8-2-2. The dull contest was fought under the New Jersey 2-minute round rule. A crowd of over 2,000 paid $15,000 to witness promotor Jimmy Colloto's show.

The best bout of the night was an 8-round heavyweight contest in which Jersey City's Brian O'Melia defeated Edmund Stewart, New York; Chuchu Malave outpointed Orestes Lebron in a junior welterweight eight; King Aidoo, Ghana, won from Charlie Hayward in a four-round middleweight bout; lightweight Louie Careccio kayoed Angel Santiago in two.

AN EXPERT ANSWERS YOUR QUESTIONS ABOUT MUSCLES

Our files show that thousands of readers like yourself want to build bulging muscles and achieve real physical power like their favorite athletic champions. How to go about it? We decided to ask an expert, Dave Prowse, 3-times British Weightlifting champion and leading fitness expert. Here are his answers.

Q. What does it take to build muscles?

A. Basically, it takes exercise. Almost any exercise will help to develop at least some of your muscles if you keep at it long enough and hard enough.

Q. Isn't there an easier way?

A. Yes. There is one outstandingly effective training method that is also fast and easy—the one I use and recommend—the new Bullworker system.

Q. What's that?

A. The Bullworker is a revolutionary new muscle-building exerciser based on Isometrics, the science that increases strength up to four times faster than conventional methods. In my opinion, it's the most advanced training system in the world today. Many leading athletes use it: World-famous Heavyweight Boxer Muhammad Ali, World Heavyweight Judo Champion Wim Ruska, and Cycling Champion Eddy Merckx, to name only a few.

Q. How long does Bullworker training take?

A. Bullworker provides absolutely the fastest kind of exercise possible. In fact, an introduction training program takes only 70 seconds a day. No other system—weightlifting, pulleys, or strenuous calisthenics—can give you results so quickly and easily. On the contrary, many old-fashioned methods take hours of sweaty, boring work each day... and it's often months before you begin to see improvements. Busy professional athletes and champions don't have time for that. Nobody does.

Q. How long does it take before you begin getting results?

A. With the Bullworker, you can actually begin to see and measure the positive results right from the very first day! Thanks to a built-in measuring device called the Powermeter. After every exercise you just check the reading to see exactly how much your strength has increased from the day before. There's no guesswork involved. Isometric Bullworker training can increase your power at the amazing rate of up to 4% per week! That means a 50% increase in strength in the first three months alone. And I've known many young men who have gone on to double and even triple their strength.

Dave Prowse, 3-time British Weightlifting champion, demonstrates a super-effective 7-second exercise for building powerful biceps... using the new Bullworker with built-in powermeter.

Q. What do those figures mean in visual terms?

A. They mean that in as little as 14 days you can actually begin to see muscle growth in a mirror and verify it with a tape measure. Every week thereafter brings ever faster growth.

Built-in Powermeter
You can actually measure your musclepower g-r-o-w-i-n-g from the very first day.

Q. But to get such impressive results, don't you have to work very hard?

A. Absolutely not. That's the outstanding advantage of Isometric training... it's so amazingly easy! Each "Static-power" Isometric exercise takes only 7 seconds, and you barely have to move. It's not even necessary to disrobe. The Bullworker is so light and compact, it can be used at home, in the office, anywhere... even while watching TV! It's a great improvement over bulky, expensive weights, bicycle machines, pulleys, etc.

Q. Can Bullworker training even develop bodies which are weak and skinny, or fat and flabby?

A. Definitely! It's been proven by thousands of men of every shape, size and age all over the world. Bullworker training helps transform weak, thin arms into rippling, muscular pillars of strength, build broad, powerful shoulders, turn flat, shallow chests into deep, manly ones, forge loose stomach flab into steel-hard, well-defined muscle... build that "V" shape of a real athlete, develop sturdy, contoured thighs and calves.... And all this in record time!

What's more, I've known skinny, shy fellows who, after just a few short weeks with Bullworker, turned into real go-getters... every inch a man... bowling girls over with their dynamism, confidence, and new found power! You really have to see the remarkable effects of Bullworker for yourself to believe them!

Q. How can our readers find out more about the Bullworker, perhaps actually try it for themselves?

A. I understand that the Bullworker distributor in the USA is now making it available—free—on a two week home-trial basis in order to introduce it to the general public. If your readers are interested in developing their bodies, in building muscles and strength faster than ever before possible, I suggest that they contact the US distributor for full details.

Loche Retains Crown

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina—Nicolino Loche retained his junior welterweight title with a unanimous 15-round decision over Antonio Cervantes of Columbia.

There were no knockdowns and neither fighter was marked.

Loche, making the fifth successful defense of the crown he won three years ago, weighed 139. Cervantes scaled 138.

The 32-year-old champion appeared to be clowning through much of the bout, dropping his hands to his sides and just bobbing his head to avoid Cervantes' punches.

Jimmy Ellis, to clear up ownership of the title, in five rounds.

Later in that year Joe stopped Bob Foster, the light heavyweight champion, in two rounds. In the Frazier-Clay contest of 1971, Cassius was the challenger.

In making the 1971 award to Frazier, The Ring adhered to the rules which it set up in 1928, when it named Gene Tunney, twice conqueror of Jack Dempsey, as the first of its annual choices. The rules governing the Fighter of the Year selection are:

1 — The winner must be foremost in his contribution to the skill and the science of boxing. He need not be a champion.

2 — The recipient must combine with his high place in the ranking of fighters a similar position as a sportsman.

3 — He must associate with his abilities as a fighter good public relations, and a reputation for clean and moral living.

4 — The boxer receiving this award must be recognized as an example to the growing American youth.

It is the judgment of the Awards Committee of The Ring that all these requirements have been met again by a boxer whose rise has been meteoric. He has been a professional for only seven years, following his acquisition of the Olympic heavyweight title at Tokyo in 1964.

Some of our world heavyweight champions, through the years, have represented the apotheosis of power. Frazier is one of that breed. He is a bull-like rusher, strong and powerful, as he proved with his easy and quick triumph over Ellis, who had won a heavyweight elimination tournament lacking Joe, then beating Clay with no doubt concerning the world supremacy.

Although Frazier won the 1971 prize hands down, the field in which he turned up the winner was of recognized class.

For Foster, it was victory No. 46 in 51 fights, with 39 knockout successes.

Kelly was five inches smaller than Foster. But a more important item was Bob's advantage of seven inches in reach. Kelly's career score is 39-5. Foster virtually told him, "Go back to Cushing and the kids."

Despite the generally ignored dictum of the World Boxing Council, which calls Vicente Rondon the light heavy champion, the local fight was for the world title which Foster took from the late Dick Tiger on May 24, 1968, in New York.

The WBA is trying to arrange a Foster-Rondon fight but the promoters of the USA are not knocking each other down in a scramble for the fight.

The fact remains that the light heavy title rarely, if ever, has packed a house, and Foster cannot indulge in dreams having to do with the heavyweight championship. Joe Frazier took him out in two heats.

Oklahoma fans are in deep mourning for Kelly's hopes, as he is one of the most likeable guys in the ring today. The fact that he did so badly against Foster may persuade Brian to hang them up.

was almost stopped. "He had me going a couple of times," Clay admitted. "I was almost out. I kept thinking that I had to retreat and try to tie him up. I knew what I was doing all the time."

As to the 15th round knockdown itself, Clay recalled:

"I was hit good but I don't recall falling, so I must have been hit very hard. I remember getting up, though. I was alert all the time."

The knockdown punch was the cumulative effect of Frazier's blows throughout. Expected to attack Clay in the body, Joe hurt Cassius several times with vicious blows to the head. Frazier's best weapon was his left. Just ask Clay.

According to referee Mercante, both men were extremely exhausted by the time the end thankfully came for them Arthur said that "had I separated them with vigor, both would have collapsed. I never before saw two heavyweights suffering so acutely from dual exhaustion."

Three minutes of fighting that has been and will be discussed in every way, shape or form was that exciting 15th, far and away the No. 1 Round of 1971.

I'll Make You a Master of CHINESE KUNG-FU

. . . the Oriental ART of INSTANTANEOUS DEATH that is applied with NO Bodily Contact the Chinese method of Attack and Self-Defense kept so secret that it has been handed down in China only from father to son because of its DEADLY power to disable or kill! Now these devastatingly brilliant secrets that require NO PHYSICAL STRENGTH OR EXERTION are revealed to you in the English language by a KUNG-FU Master who dares to teach you AT HIS RISK!

WHO IS THIS MAN?

Behind the blindfold is the Hon. Master "Kung-Fu." That's not his real name, of course. If you were a Kung-Fu expert, you'd recognize his real name at once, if we were to reveal it. But we cannot, for his Chinese fellow Kung-Fu Masters would punish him severely for revealing the deadly maneuvers he has sworn to keep secret.

What IS Kung-FU?

KUNG-FU is the most DEADLY form of defense and attack ever devised! Even a Karate, Savate or Judo expert shudders at the thought of meeting a KUNG-FU master because he knows who the winner will be! With just a basic knowledge of KUNG-FU learned easily in the privacy of your home, this FAST, EASY, PICTURE WAY, you can beat hoodlums, OUTFIGHT TWO, THREE and even FOUR Karate or Judo experts, Professional Wrestlers or Boxers!

When CHINESE KUNG-FU arrives in your mail, you turn to page 87 and look at the easy-to-understand photo illustrations. INSTANTLY you see how easily you can turn your opponents attack into a CRIPPLING blow to his chest—a maneuver you can perform in just a few minutes of practice! A few pages later I show you how to escape a deadly strangle-hold quickly and easily by slamming your attacker into the ground!

Protect Yourself and Your Loved Ones!

Containing more than 150 step-by-step LIVE-ACTION and SLOW MOTION PHOTOS your personal KUNG-FU Master Instructor takes you by your hand and shows you in plain, clear and simple, easy to understand language how to use highly secret KUNG-FU to multiply your power a THOUSANDFOLD. You learn how to handle a small mob of attackers who are fully armed and even pinning you to the ground so you can't move. You pay nothing if you can't disarm one hoodlum . . . send another flying through the air and slam a third into the ground—all in a split second of KUNG FU maneuver that will take your attackers by surprise!

Never Be Afraid Again!

Secretly written in the Orient the contents of this amazing "how-to" picture book was shipped to Hawaii, where it was printed under cover away from prying eyes, then sent to the U. S. for limited distribution to those who agree to apply KUNG-FU ONLY FOR SELF-DEFENSE! If you were fortunate enough to be able to go to China, Hong Kong or Hawaii to take this amazing course—and were willing to pay $500 or even $1,000 to your KUNG-FU Master—you would be refused, because KUNG-FU secrets are NEVER taught to strangers or outsiders! Because KUNG-FU is deadly beyond imagination (and since attack as well as defense is taught) only a small limited edition has been printed. Frankly we don't want just everybody to learn these secret maneuvers.

KUNG-FU will NOT be sold in any store, and is available ONLY by mail to serious students who must vow NEVER to use it as an aggresor—but only as self-defense to protect himself, his friends and family. We don't ever want a criminal or hoodlum to be able to buy it because of its deadly power.

Become a NEW MAN!

Our streets aren't safe today. Crime increases daily. You no longer have to be helpless, ashamed or humiliated—and look pitiful in the eyes of your friends. Protect yourself, your family, your girl friend from hoodlums and wisecracking bullies. With KUNG-FU you can use the hidden power that lies within you to master every situation! You'll laugh as you send bullies and criminals flying in terror, and you'll walk the streets happy, calm and confident in your new power! And you'll do all this without working up a sweat or even spoiling the crease in your trousers. That's because brilliantly executed KUNG-FU requires NO bodily contact . . . virtually NO physical exertion . . . and almost NO application of your body or hands! And yet KUNG-FU can be deadly, crippling and disastrous to any unfortunate opponent who is foolish enough to threaten you with ANY other technique, such as punching, Savate, Judo, Wrestling, etc! Yes, with the confidence that KUNG-FU can give you, you can walk the streets with the knowledge that NOTHING can frighten you . . . that you can deal with ANY man, ANY weapon, ANY situation! Your friends and loved ones will be proud of you with your new power.

Nothing Else To Buy!

KUNG-FU is complete—there is NOTHING else to buy—ever! You don't have to practice on dummies and you need no apparatus. Once you receive CHINESE KUNG-FU you can throw away all the other courses on Self-Defense you have ever bought—because NONE compares with KUNG-FU! KUNG-FU is effective whether you're standing, sitting or even LYING DOWN ASLEEP and OFF GUARD!

It was originally decided to offer the complete KUNG-FU instruction at $10.00—a TREMENDOUS bargain at that price. However, to make it available to good citizens who want to use these secret maneuvers for self-defense and to help combat the ever-increasing crime rate, we are making KUNG-FU available now at the amazingly low price of just $3.98. If you and your friends don't say that KUNG-FU has made a NEW MAN out of you, every cent you have paid will be refunded without question! Don't even bother returning the KUNG-FU book. Just tear off the front cover and mail back to us for a full, no questions asked refund. We'll take your word for it. MAIL COUPON NOW! AIR MAIL reaches us overnight.

New York, and later moved to Brooklyn. The flyweight, who is now 75, was managed by Joe Sarno. He had close to 200 pro fights and while only a flyweight met bantams and feathers, among them Jimmy Wilde, whom he went to London to battle with. He also met Pete Herman, Johnny Buff, 'Kewpie' Ertle and Frankie Mason. Julia and he have one son, Joseph. Zulu is part owner of a bar and grill in Brooklyn. He was often confused with Zulu Kid, who was a middleweight.

Remember Nick Masters, the light heavyweight from Youngstown, who came East and lived in Far Rockaway, Long Island? He was in the company of August Talleschi, one time amateur boxer from Lawrence, Long Island, N.Y., when they appeared at Paul Berlenbach's Ring #21, in Brooklyn. Nick boxed from 1940 to 1937, was managed by the late James J. Johnston. He beat Melio Bettina, later 175 pound boss. Masters had only 25 pro bouts. He retired a short time ago from the New York Fire Department.

Edward "Chick" McCormack, who was quite a featherweight, was born on March 14, 1899 and this month attained his 73rd birthday. Remembers his outstanding scrap, a ten-rounder with Bert Spencer, at the Broadway Sporting Club, in Brooklyn, with Johnny McAvoy referee. Retired in 1965. Works part time as a runner for a Wall St. Brokerage house. Chick had 65 fights. His managers were Ray Considine and Pete Kingsley. Chick and Gracie live on Coney Island Avenue, in Brooklyn, grandparents five times.

Death has no holiday. Saddened at news of passing of Charley Dale of the famous Joe Smith and Dale vaudeville team, a hilarious pair. Charley was 90. Their "Dr. Kronkheit" bit left them in stitches. We met them often and even had them on our Hour of Champions show. They were boxing and baseball enthusiasts.

A salute to Randy Neumann, of Cliffside Park, who followed up his victory over Raul Gorosito, of Buenos Aires, in a ten-spot in the Garden the night Enrique Pinder again defeated David Vasquez, by winning the New Jersey State heavyweight crown at Embassy Hall, North Bergen, N.J., when he beat Chuck Wepner.

Drop in at Rocky Graziano's pizza foundry at 566 Second Avenue, New York. The ex-middleweight king helps liven things up. Sunnyside Garden holds its luncheons there. Rocky is quite a busy man with his TV and other commitments.

URTAIN AGAIN EUROPE'S HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION

London, England – Knocked out in less than two minutes by Jerry Quarry, stopped in the second round by Jose Ibar Urtain, Jack Bodell is reported to be considering return to his pig farm. It is apparent that he is going nowhere in boxing, but out.

The affair in which Bodell lost the heavyweight championship of Europe to Urtain in Madrid was sad for British boxing.

Bodell was excused for the night after he had been knocked down three times in the second, following a quiet opening heat.

When Bodell hit the canvas the third time, German referee Karl Peppert invoked the three knockdown rule. Bodell weighed 202 pounds and Urtain 196.

Urtain's victory has landed him back in the headlines, on a more substantial basis than he had occupied after his European title victory over Peter Weiland in 1970.

In the third and fourth rounds, though, Clay did not dance. He was getting tagged. It was obvious he did not possess the stamina of yore. He clowned a bit, played a bit, all the time losing his fight.

Meanwhile, Frazier kept gaining strength, much as a gathering storm does. He pressed forward all the time, no matter what tactic or move Clay made. Joe had an answer for Cassius no matter what he attempted.

Frazier was as determined a man in the ring that night as any champion has ever been against an important foe. He was relentless. He was desperate. He was magnificent.

There are those who still maintain that if Cassius had not been knocked down in the 15th, he would have won the decision. Clay was already a beaten battler before he was sent to the canvas by a man who showed what he was made of that memorable evening, one that will never be forgotten by those fortunate enough to have witnessed the 1971 Fight Of The Year.

Miami Beach Council Tie Leaves Dundee Fight Promoter There

MIAMI Beach, Fla. – A City Council meeting to determine whether Chris Dundee would continue to promote fights here, or be forced to surrender to an outfit called Allied Sports Enterprises, resulted in a deadlock, three to three.

As a result, Dundee will continue to promote here, at least for the time being. That there will be an early break in the tie is virtually impossible. Chris's old contract expired November 30.

Allied offers Miami Beach more money. Dundee offers greater security.

This past year, boxing here has not been on a smashing financial basis. A so-called championship fight in which Vicente Rondon whipped Gomeo Brennan was a failure. The fans evidently did not respect the WBA notion that it could take the light heavy title from Bob Foster.

TWO DRAWN N.Y. BATTLES

THEY saw a fistic rarity in New York's Felt Forum when two feature ten rounders, involving lightweights, wound up even-stephen.

Jose Marquez, of San. Juan, P. R., met George Foster, of New York, who had been squawking about never showing in the Garden although he'd been in action since 1962. Until the final two rounds, which Foster captured big, he looked like a loser, but that rally got him the draw. Foster suffered cuts over both eyes and Marquez got a nick in his right optic. Marquez was the more aggressive.

Referee Harold Valan and judges Al Reid and Bernie Friedkin had different verdicts. The referee had it 4-3-3 for Marquez but finds no fault with the official decision. Marquez scaled 137½, Foster 139¼.

Saoul Mamby clashed with Edwin Viruet, unbeaten, with the same officials functioning and again they all handed down three different verdicts, making the draw possible.

Mamby was the better performer, with fine combinations. This was a better scrap than the final bout. Mamby scaled 135, Viruet, also 135.

In four, Sergio Rodriguez won a majority decision over Wilson Flores, both scaling 176 pounds. Eddie Vargas won unanimously over Cruz Ortiz with each at 150. Wallace Ortiz was the third man in the prelims.

Bobby Goldberg sang our National Anthem in good style.

Men in Accounting, Banking, Sales, Credit, Real Estate and many other fields study law as a way to increased earnings.

NOW YOU CAN STUDY LAW IN YOUR SPARE TIME AT HOME

A knowledge of law is an asset for the person who aspires to a position of leadership and responsibility in business. The increased role of government in business, the many new problems of law involving insurance, contracts, liability, and much more—have caused management to put a special value on the law-trained executive. That is why executives with a law background are often found holding well-paid, upper-level administrative positions in business and industry.*

Earn an LL.B. Degree

You can study law conveniently at home—at low cost—under the supervision of LaSalle's experienced law faculty. Your study is illustrated with classic legal precedents and citations. The valuable LaSalle Library of 14 volumes is given as part of your course. Upon satisfactory completion of the prescribed course, a student may, if he wishes, take a proctored exam for the Bachelor of Laws degree. NAPOLES, OLIVARES KEEP TITLES AS PARNASSUS SCORES AGAIN off that "he couldn't get his punches off and Olivares was beating him to punch, plus he was arm weary."

It was decided then by the corner that if he (Pimentel) didn't come back in the 11th, the fight would be stopped. Since the bell didn't sound for the 12th, under California rules, it is an 11th round knockout.

Jesus praised Olivares as a great champion and the bantam kingpin said he was surprised that Pimentel was so strong.

Next stop for Ruben could be a shot at Kuniaki Shibata's world featherweight championship. Pimentel announced his retirement.

At the finish, referee George Latka had it 10-1; judge Lee Grossman, 9-3; and judge John Thomas, 9-2. Weights, Olivares, 118 (he came in ¼ pound over at the weigh in); Pimentel 116½.

In a crowd chaser, Arturo Zuniga, 144½, Mexico City, out brawled Antonio Roldan, 145½, Mexico City, in an action packed 10-rounder.

The crowd was 14,704 and the gate, $255,585, giving promoter George Parnassus a total live gate figure of $831,678 for five shows during 1971 at Jack Kent Cooke's Forum.

than time to heal his heels, says Arturo.

There is nothing bizarre, incredible or side splitting about the following item but it belongs not only among the unusual but the most admirable of boxing events of 1971. Japan's Toyota Car Co. put on a boxing extravanganza for the benefit of the Boy Scouts of the Philippines, crammed with the best of the local talent and lasting six hours. It was a rip roaring success charitably, fistically and financially. With the kind of worthwhile initiative it's no wonder Toyota is giving international competition headaches. The scene was the Rizal Memorial Stadium, Quezon City, Philippines.

Ray Anderson has had the potential. But the good-looking light heavy from Akron, Ohio always gave fight people the impression that boxing wasn't exactly his bag. Ray, who survived the route against champion Bob Foster in 1971, has always been stage struck. He took a fling at em-ceeing and impressed himself so much he has become a theatrical agent announcing 'soul singer' Aretha Franklin as one of his bookings. Ray claims he hasn't deserted the rock and sock of the fight business for the soul and rock of show business, which is his true element.

Pity poor Ricky Johnson! This Australian welterweight found out that he didn't know the ropes, got it in the neck and hung himself all at the same time. He was winning against Stan Ward and at the bell beginning the final round, sprang from his corner like El Toro himself.

Ward acted the matador, sidestepping the onrushing Ricky, who charged right by and into the top rope which caught him in the Adam's apple. He collapsed on the canvas and was counted out. Not the first guy to be kayoed by a rope.

Lyle, Denver, Colo.; Ron Stander, Omaha, Nebr.; and Venezuelan Jose Luis Garcia.

Light heavyweights—Brian Kelly, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Pat O'Connor, Minneapolis, Minn.; Mexican champion Raul Delgado, and Los Angeles' Mike Quarry.

Top men in the middleweights were Koichi Wajima, Japan, who won the W.B.A. junior middleweight title; Rodrigo Valdez, Colombia; and Eugene Hart of Philadelphia.

The welterweight division contributed Thurman Durden, Los Angeles, Cal.; Roy Barrientos, Ft. Worth, Texas, and resurging former junior welterweight king Sandro Lopopolo, Italy.

The lightweight class had many surprises—Panama's Roberto Duran; Miami's Eddie Linder; Argentina lightweight champion Raul Venerdini, and Brazil's Raymundo Dias.

The featherweights brought out a new crop of young boxers including Ben Villaflor, Philippines; Clemente Sanchez, Mexico; Tahar Ben Hassen, North Africa, Giovanni Girgenti, Italy, and Ernesto Marcel, Panama.

Leading names in the bantamweights were Enrique Pinder, Panama; Rogelio Lara, Mexico; Rafael Herrera, Mexico; and European champion Agustin Senin, Spain.

The flyweights offered Servillo de Oliveire, Brazil; Orlando Amoros, Panama; and Mexico's Miguel Canto.

Muniz Stops Gray In 9th But Canadian's No Pushover

By DON FRASER

LONG BEACH, Calif.—Armando Muniz, 146, East Los Angeles, had to fight the battle of his young career to win over Canadian welterweight champion Clyde Gray, 144, Toronto.

In a scheduled 12-rounder, billed for the alleged North American welterweight championship at the Long Beach Arena, Muniz knocked Gray out for the count after 1:05 of the ninth round.

Referee Rudy Jordan stopped the contest when Gray's gloves had cuts. A new set of gloves were ordered and after almost a 10 minute wait, the fight continued.

The rest did the trick for the ex-Olympic boxer, who came out firing bombs and finished Gray with a left-right-left combination to the chin.

Ray (Windmill) White, 175, Ventura, had no problems with Hill Chambers, 172, Phoenix, in their 10-rounder. White easily won eight of the ten rounds.

Arturo Zuniga, 144, Mexico City, had much too much punching power for Elefat Talebi, 145½, Iran, in a third 10-rounder.

The turnout was 4720 and the gate $16,037 for the show, first ever in the spacious Arena.

▲LONG BEACH—Colorful Ray (Windmill) White, 175, was pressed to a split decision victory over Irish Terry Lee, 174, Oakland, to retain State light heavyweight leadership in a 12-rounder at the Auditorium.

It was a knockdown scored by the Ventura carpenter in the sixth round, which proved his margin of victory. Referee John Thomas and judge Larry Rozadilla both had it 6-5, while the other judge, Pat Murphy, thought Lee was the better man, 8-3.

Irish Danny Kimberling, 157½, Oakland, and Bobby Stripling, 160, Los Angeles, drew (6); Cesar Chavez, 119½, Los Angeles, KO over Carmelo Enriquez, 120½, San Diego, (3).

A lively gathering of 5110 paid $24,650 to watch the one sided skirmish.

It was the Maravilla Kid's fight from the first bell on as he landed a short jolting left that buckled Crawford's knees and sent him staggering halfway across the ring.

Navarro was just too fast for Irish Frankie and was also too aggressive. Crawford tried a counter punching style, which did him little good.

Though Ruben is a ranking lightweight, at 134, he was just one pound heavier than Crawford, who had been a featherweight contender.

Referee Lee Grossman and judge George Latka, both agreed with a 9-1 count while judge Eddie Fierro had it an 8-0 shutout.

Jose Herrera, 127, Monterrey, Mex., scored a mild upset, taking a unanimous 10 round decision from favored Rodolfo Lobato, 128, Santa Ana.

Jose Mendrano, 126½, San Fernando, decisioned Rafael Munoz, 126, East Los Angeles, (6); Henry Culpepper, 197½, Pasadena, outpointed Fred Everett, 203, (6).

▲LONG BEACH—Local resident, Rodolfo Gonzalez, 137, overpowered Nick Aghai, 135½, Iran and San Francisco, in the 10 round feature at the Auditorium.

Gonzalez registered a knockdown in the eighth round, then coasted to an easy win.

people were plotting against his life, he converted his ancestral mansion into a fortified castle, protected by a cannon.

"His career was turbulent in politics, in the army, within the circle of his family, and in all his social and diplomatic relations. In 1841 he fought a duel in Louisville with Robert Wickliffe, Jr.; four years later he so mutilated with a bowie knife Sam M. Brown as to be indicted for mayhem; in 1850 he stabbed to death Cyrus Turner; and in his old age he shot and killed a negro. In all his early political campaigns he carried a bowie knife and two pistols." All this out of the Dictionary of American Biography.

The marital history of the original Cassius Marcellus was no less than staggering. Divorced after 46 years of married life, he married, shortly before his death at the age of 93, a young girl from whom he soon got a divorce. A few days before he died he was adjudged a lunatic.

He was also a major general and a Yale graduate, (not connected with his lunacy.)

Our Cassius Clay approached the New York Commission for a license with the Louisville sponsorship group in attendance. The high octane content of this financial, political and social galaxy was new for boxing, and a big benefice.

We licensed Clay and his managerial group, and then the application of a second came up. They had brought with them Angelo Dundee, who had been training Cassius, and his application was before us.

There had been some question at one time involving Angelo's associations, but since he had no criminal record and was being sponsored by the Louisville group, we gave Dundee the license, not, however, before a moment of embarrassment for me.

During our discussions as to his qualifications, a letter was handed around addressed to me and signed by a banker, Marcy Liberman, Mayor of Miami, strongly recommending Dundee for the license. I knew Marcy 50 years before but had not seen him in a half a century.

To my consternation he had added a note by way of further identification. "I knew you on Long Island during World War I and Frankie will remember me. We all went together"!!

For the moment I was perplexed at the reference to "Frankie". The only one I knew of in boxing by that name was the so-called underworld king of boxing, Frankie Carbo.

After a moment it dawned on me that he was referring to my younger sister, Frankie, who had been spending that summer with the family on the Island. I remembered Marcy, now gone to his reward, as the cup-winning champion of the brand new dances, the tango, one-step, fox trot and Lambeth Walk.

Cassius Clay is the most colorful, preposterous, conceited and completely shrewd figure in professional boxing since John L. Sullivan.

Sad to relate, Cassius made the boasting vaunting and poetical predictions come true for years, even in his early professional days, to the pinpoint announcement of the number of rounds a fight would last. What if the fight slowed down, just a bit, before the final round?

This was, of course, never by plan to avoid a premature knockout and thus cause a crystal ball crisis, but rather was solely because the opponent was able to hold out for another round and thus reach the appointed knockout.

The exception that proved the rule was the Clay failure in the fight with Doug Jones. The hallowed round was reached and passed with a great roar of the crowd at this failure of prophecy. Doug stayed for 10.

But Clay talked and fought his way to the championship. Then discarding the sponsors who had guided him to the crown, he called himself Muhammed Ali and joined a religious group called the Black Muslims.

The group is an organization of American Negroes who follow the religious practices of Islam and propose segregation of negroes and whites with a view toward the establishment of a separate black national group.

They are not in the best of odor with the true Islamic sect which practices, in addition to a close observance of its numerous rules and regulations, these five cardinal tenets of its faith:

1. Allegience to Allah, God of all.
2. The daily five prayer sessions.
3. The Fast of Romadan–the month of fasting from before sunrise to dark, no smoking, drinking, eating, swimming or sex.
4. The granting of charity.
5. The Pilgrimage to Mecca.

At Clay's change of name, the World Boxing Association, successor to the N.B.A., saw a providential opportunity to snatch a golden victory from the poverty of its accomplishments and to bring its average up.

Its precipitous ukase proclaimed to all, the world annulment of Cassius' world heavyweight title.

Its heroically styled W.B.A. Commissioner was promptly interviewed by the Washington Post:

"WBA Commissioner Abe J. Greene said in Paterson, N.J. 'Clay should be given a chance to decide whether he wants to be a religious crusader or the heavyweight champion.'

" 'As a champion he is neither a Muslim nor any other religionist, because sports are completely nonsectarian.'

" 'I think Clay should be given the choice of being the fighter who won the title or the fanatic leader of an extraneous force which has no place in the sports arena. The decision will be his.' "

So echoed the W.B.A. President:

"WBA President Ed Lassman, who hopes to have Clay's title vacated 'for conduct detrimental to boxing', said 'of course, Clay might be reinstated as champion within 5 or 6 months' if this conduct improves."

The New York State Commission's head, took the opposite tack and to its most agreeable incredulity came up smelling like a rose.

The opinion of the New York Commission was broadcast by the wire services throughout the country and abroad.

SETTING IT RIGHT

"The New York State Athletic Commission has moved to project reason and fairness into efforts to deprive Cassius Clay of the world's heavyweight championship.

"Officials of the World Boxing Association advanced the specious argument that the fighter's conduct, particularly his membership in the Black Muslims, justified denying him recognition as heavyweight champion.

"Former Marine Corps General Melvin L. Krulewitch, chairman of the New York Commission, has voiced the rest of this editorial for us. He said:

"Within the limits of the Constitution, the right to freedom of speech and to religious beliefs are inviolate. No title of a world champion has ever been vacated because of religion, race, or personal beliefs. The State Athletic Commission will continue to recognize Cassius Clay as heavyweight champion."

Looking back to the days of my connection with decisions involving Cassius Clay, and examining his status as it stands now, I am impelled to make these conclusions as a former Commission chairman, and a current member of the bar:

1. No regulatory agency, neither the New York State Commission, the World Boxing Association, nor any Boxing Board of Control, had any right to announce that it had stripped Cassius Clay of his world heavyweight title. Their power, whether by law or by agreement in the profession, did not give them the right to confiscate a capital asset.

CHARLES STILL NO STAR; BUGNER MENDING HIS JAW

By EDDIE LONG

London, England—Ralph Charles, British and Commonwealth welterweight champion, stopped Bernie Terrell, Edmonton, 146, in eight rounds. Charles might have been disqualified for low punching.

Charles thus wins a Lonsdale Belt outright, but his three victories in welterweight title fights have taken him nearly four years to record.

Terrell put up a creditable performance. He was never overawed. He bobbed and weaved to avoid Charles's hooking attack, and the champion was cut on the head and above the left eye.

Charles concentrated on the body, and it was here that he delivered several telling body blows. They brought reprimands from referee James Brimmell in rounds four, five and seven.

Charles knew that another censure would mean disqualification. He floored Terrell in the fifth with a low right. Southpaw Bernie's nose bled but he battled back gamely and won the seventh to keep the issue open.

Ralph saw his opening in the eighth, shrugged off the blood coming from his injured eye, and drove his foe back before catching him with a left to the chin. Down went Terrell, to rise at seven. Charles continued his assault, but the referee wisely intervened.

Joe Bugner having suffered a broken jaw in his recent bout against unrated Larry Middleton, Billy Aird, Liverpool, 194¾, got his big chance to substitute for Joe against American Ted Gullick, 197½. Aird could get only a draw, over ten rounds.

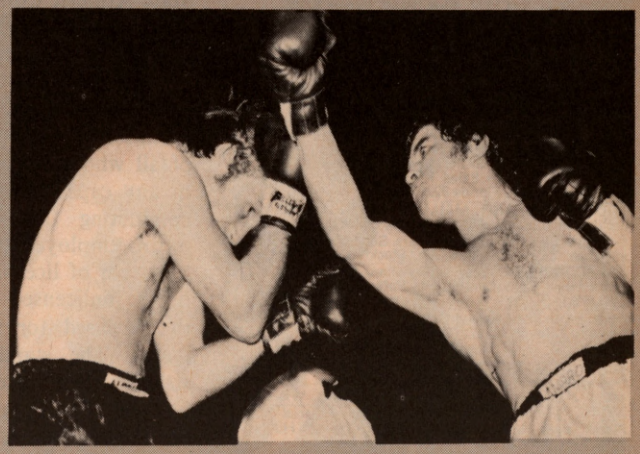
The fans were bored. Aird is a neat boxer, but lacks punch. He landed frequently with light left jabs and occasional following crosses. Gullick preferred to get close in order to pound away to the body.

At the end of the seventh some of the fans were shouting "We want Joe", which must have come as music to the ears of Bugner, who was at the ringside.

Aird was the better stylist, and revealed the cleaner punching, but there were no protests about the decision.

The fifth successive win for John Conteh, Liverpool, 175½, who stopped Emile Oke Griffith, France, in five. For four rounds nothing happened, then Conteh tagged his man with a long right to the jaw which floored him for three.

When he got up Conteh got home with a right to the jaw, and whipped in a left to the chin before Griffith reached the canvas. When he arose he didn't appear keen for combat. Doug Jenkins stopped it.



Ralph Charles ducks a long right from Bernie Terrell during their bout at Royal Albert Hall, London. Charles was declared the victor when the referee halted matters in the eighth round with Charles hammering away.

'Gipsy' Johnny Frankham, Reading, 176¼, gave his usual mixture of comedy and skill before stopping Eddie 'Redtop' Owens, USA, 171¾, in seven.

Four in a row for Tom Imrie, Edinburgh, 159, who stopped Tommy Gray, Fife, in eight rounds. Imrie looked as if he held . Reading the two statutes together, it is apparent that the vocation of prize-fighting or sparring is an occupation subject to government control.'

"Further elaboration occurred with the enactment in 1920 of the so-called Walker Boxing Law which continuing the State Athletic Commission, has remained on the books without any fundamental changes to the present time. The statute, exceedingly broad in its coverage, provides for rigid supervision of the premises in which the matches are held, of all who participate in the exhibitions in any capacity, and of the methods of conducting the matches, the primary means employed to effect enforcement is a system of licensing, with the exclusion of the unlicensed and power to penalize the licensed for violations or infringements. The standards imposed by the statute, thus provided, may be implemented by regulations promulgated by the Commission, a power, we note which has been frequently exercised.

"The statute itself reflects a high concern for the physical fitness of the fighters scheduled to engage in the matches. Such fitness, will of course, enhance the competitive character of the contest and it may fairly be assumed that the Legislature was at least as concerned with the physical welfare of the contestants themselves."

In Matter of London Sporting Club vs. Helfand, Judge Eder stated:

"A great deal of latitude and discretion must be accorded a Commission which is responsible to the People of the State for the maintenance of fair dealing, honesty, and clean sport in a field which has in the past been infested with undesirable elements. Its rules should be enforced by the Courts unless sworn to be clearly arbitrary. Its determinations particularly, when supported by evidence, should be upheld."

In the Matter of Christensen vs. Helfand, Judge Frank, said:

"The Commission has the power to inquire into the conduct of those who hold or apply for licenses. It must exercise its authority to prevent monopolistic combinations which seek to obtain a strangle-hold on the sport to the detriment of the boxers and the public which maintains it. It has the obligation to protect boxers and others in the profession, and the public from the unscrupulous and the venal who from time to time infiltrate the ranks. The rules here are a part of the regulatory pattern designed to effectuate the governmental purpose."

Rule 218 explicitly says:

"With the exception of champions in the armed forces, a boxer holding a championship title must defend his title against a suitable contender within a period of six months after winning or after last defending it, or his title may be vacated by the Commission. In the event that a champion fails to so defend his title, any boxer in the same class who is considered by the Commission to be a suitable contender, may, at the lapse of the said six months, forward to the Commission a challenge.

"Upon receipt of such challenge, the Commission shall forward it to the champion and announce the challenge at the office of the commission. Thereafter such champion must, within 20 days after such announcement, enter into articles of agreement to defend his championship title against the contender. In the event the champion does not enter into such articles of agreement as specified above or capriciously refuses promptly to defend his title against such contender, his license shall be suspended by the commission until he either defends his title against the challenger or against some other contender considered suitable by the commission, or until his title is otherwise vacated, unless he is prevented by circumstances beyond his control, in which case the time may be extended.

"In the event that the champion is permanently unable to physically qualify for the defense of his title, the commission shall forfeit his championship and declare the title vacant. In each defense of his title, the champion must be at the weight required by the class for which he holds the title."

Take from the New York Commission the right to forfeit titles, for cause, and you have the alternative of fistic anarchy.

2. Cassius Clay, was stupid in refusing to respect the draft. The Armed Forces would have made excellent use of him in its physical fitness programs, and his public image would have been enhanced.

3. Every boxer is under an important obligation to the sport, and owes to the game a moral debt. A world champion, above all, must respect these responsibilities and is honor bound to live up to the highest standards required of a public figure.

4. No boxer has any right, moral, legal, or social, to divide the boxing public into ethnic groups.

5. No boxer—even more so, a world champion—has the right to ignore the fact that all titles are awarded by the public, and are granted to the holders only during the period of their tenure.

6. No professional fighter should become an amateur Conscientious Objector.

EUROPEAN HEAVY TITLE IS DIFFICULT TO HOLD ON TO

By J. A. TREE

BERLIN, Germany—If you are a betting man, stay away from boxing champions of Europe. That breed is as erratic as the weather.

The Continental heavyweight division saw four champions during the year, Henry Cooper, Joe Bugner, Jack Bodell and Jose Manuel Ibar Urtain. Cooper lost to Joe Bugner who made a defense against German Jurgen Blin and then lost to Bodell, who was stopped by Urtain.

Light heavyweight Piero del Papa lost his title to Conny Velensek, who then staked his crown against Chris Finnegan. This ended in a diabolical draw. Middleweight Juan Carlos Duran, Italy, lost to Jean Claude Bouttier, France, who later met Bunny Sterling.

Junior middleweight Jose Hernandez, Spain, made a successful defense against Domenico Tiberia, Italy, and also drew with Carmelo Bossi. The deaf mute has held the crown since he dethroned Gerhard Piaskowy last September.

Welterweight Ralph Charles lost his title to Roger Menetrey, France, who went on to beat Italian Silvano Bertini. Junior welterweight Rene Roque drew with Cemal Kamaci, Austria, and then handed over the crown to Pedro Carrasco, Spain.

Lightweight Miguel Velasquez drew with Antonio Puddu, Italy, but lost a return bout. Puddu then made a successful defense against Claude Thomias. Junior lightweight Tommaso Galli won the vacant crown with a win over Luis Aisa, Spain, and went on to decision Lothar Abend.

Featherweight Jose Legra, Spain, has reigned since June 26, 1970, when he beat Tommaso Galli. The Spaniard made successful defenses against Jimmy Revie and Giovanni Girgenti, Italy. Bantamweight Franco Zurlo, Italy, lost his crown to Briton Alan Rudkin who in turn handed over his title to Augustin Senin, Spain, who looks as if he is here to stay for a while.

Flyweight Fernando Atzori, Italy, has reigned since he won the vacant title five years ago. Atzori has made nine successful defenses.

ROUNDUP OF THE YEAR

Foster started a busy year with a four round KO over Hal Carroll in Scranton in March. Bob next defeated Ray Anderson by 15-round decision at Tampa. On a return to Scranton Bob belted Tommy Hicks in eight heats. In his last 1971 outing he took the measure of Brian Kelly Burden, but fast.

Since beating Dupree, Rondon has been moving around quite a lot. In June, at Caracas, he finished off Piero Del Papa in one round. It was only a short jaunt to Valencia where Vicente took a ten-round decision over John Griffin. This amounted to little more than a workout for the Venezuelan.

In Berlin Rondon won a ten from Conny Velensek, the European light heavyweight champion, and then moved across the ocean to knock out Gomeo Brennan at Miami Beach in 13 rounds. In his last 1971 fight Vicente destroyed Doyle Baird in Cleveland in 2:10 of the eighth round.

Foster and Rondon must meet to decide who is the better man.

The middleweight class has a rough, tough, take charge guy at the helm. He is Carlos Monzon, from Argentina. He won his crown from Nino Benvenuti in 1970 and since then has had three fights, two of them in 1971. In a return engagement Carlos stopped Benvenuti in three rounds. The champ went on to kayo Emile Griffith in 14 rounds of a one-sided contest in which the champion notched at least nine rounds prior to the end.

Jose Napoles, the Cuban-born welterweight now living in Mexico, who lost his title in 1971 to Billy Backus, came back last year to stop Backus in 4 rounds, to regain his crown. Jose put his title on the line only twice this past year. His second defense was against Hedgemon Lewis, an elusive challenger. It took all of Jose's cunning to gain the unanimous 15-round decision at Los Angeles. Napoles indulged in four other non-title bouts during 1971, winning all.

Nicolino Loche, king of junior welterweights put his title on the line twice, winning two decisions. Both fights took place in Buenos Aires, Argentina, which is home for Loche. His opponents were Domingo Barrera and Antonio Cervantes.

Loche had two other fights during the year, both non-title, both resulting in easy wins. Angel Roman and Toni Ortiz were the losers.

The champion of the world's lightweights, Ken Buchanan, a Scotsman, and one of the best boxers to come down the pike in recent years, had two successful title defenses in 1971 and one non-title showing. He won all three contests.

Ken won a 15-round decision over Ruben Navarro in Los Angeles in his first outing of the year for his crown. He then took on Carlos Hernandez in London and kayoed Carlo in eight rounds of a non title fracas. Buchanan's most recent fight, for his title, was against a formidable opponent, Ismael Laguna, former holder of the lightweight crown. Laguna was the man whom Buchanan originally defeated to become the champion.

The junior lightweight division had a change of reign when the world title holder, Hiroshi Kobayashi, of Japan, after successfully defending his crown against Ricardo Arredondo, of Mexico, for a 15-round decision, lost his title to Alfredo Marcano, of Venezuela, when he was knocked out in the 10th round. He had been on the canvas three times in that session.

The new champion defended his title in November against Korean Kenji Iwata, winning the bout via the 3-knockdown rule. The referee stopped the fight at 1:50 of the fourth round when Iwata was decked for the third time in that round. The challenger had also been floored twice in the third round.

Japan, which has been coming on strong in everything from industry to sports, has rapidly moved to the fore in boxing. Kuniaki Shibata, a Japanese featherweight, acquired the world featherweight championship when he conquored Vicente Saldivar in 1970. During the past year Shibata has had four fights, winning all. He started with a 10-round win over Vicente Garcia in a non-title fight and three months later was spectacular in the first defense of his crown by knocking out Raul Cruz, of Mexico, in 3:04 of the first round. In August, he defeated Kyum Kim, a Korean fighter of note, in a non-title match. In November Shibata defended his title against Ernesto Marcel, gaining a 15-round draw decision. Since draws favor the champion Shibata retained his crown.

When the year began, Chucho Castillo, of Mexico, was the champion of the bantamweights. In his first defense in 1971 he met the former titleholder, Ruben Olivares, also of Mexico, and Olivares regained his crown with a 15-round unanimous decision.

Olivares went on to score a technical knockout in his next title defense by halting Kazuyoshi Kanazawa. The referee stopped the fight after the Japanese had been floored three times in the 14th round.

In his last appearance of the year Olivares knocked out Jesus Pimentel, in 11 rounds in a title contest that proved Ruben to be one of the best all around fighters in world boxing but on a pound for pound basis.

Erbito Salavarria, flyweight champion, defended his crown on two occasions, against Susumo Hanagata, of Japan, and Betulio Gonzalez, of Venezuela, winning a 15 round decision over the former and drawing over the 15 round route with the latter.

The World Boxing Association and The World Boxing Council disagree with themselves and other boxing bodies as to the rightful owners of some of the championships. The WBA holds for Vicente Rondon as light heavyweight champion, accepts Shozo Saijo, of Japan, as featherweight king and recognizes Masao Ohba, of Japan, as flyweight champion.

The World Boxing Council recognizes Bob Foster as light heavyweight champ; Bruno Arcari, of Italy, as junior welterweight champ; and Pedro Carrasco, of Spain, as lightweight champ by way of his win over Mando Ramos in what was termed as a fight for the vacant title. The junior lightweight title, WBC version, belongs to Yoshiaki Numata.

Among the deaths of the year in the boxing world were the following:

Dick Tiger, Johnny Addie, Eddie Pace, Jackie Brown, Blair Richardson, Orlando Zulueta, Earl Gilliam, Laurent Dauthuille, Erminio Spalla, Tony Petronella, Jim Maloney, Jock McAvoy, George Whiting, Tommy O'Toole, Seaman Watson and Angel Clivilles.

Sanchez, 131, Riverside, (4).

▲SAN DIEGO—Lobito Montoya, 136, Tijuana, finished with a sprint to edge Nick Aghai, 136, Iran and San Francisco, in 10 rounds at the Coliseum. There were no knockdowns.

Jose Macias, 162, National City, won over Gene Turner, 159½, San Diego, (6); David Love, 156, National City, decisioned Johnny Dunn, 160, San Diego, (4); Davey Herrera, 144, Tijuana, outpointed Jesus Arevalo, 144, San Diego, (4).

▲LOS ANGELES—Jimmy Robertson expected a tough fight from highly regarded Javier Ayala, Tijuana, Mexico, in their fight at Olympic.

After 10 rounds, former baseballer Robertson did all the pitching and Ayala the catching. The decision was unanimous. Judge Bob Dossey voted 10-0; referee Dick Young, 8-2; and judge Rudy Jordan, 7-2.

Ayala, 136, hit the deck in the sixth round from a straight right. Robertson hails from near-by Harbor City. He weighed 137.

In a second ten, Jose Luis Martin Del Campo, 127½, Guadalajara, Mexico, scored an easy verdict over Hippolito Hernandez, 127½, Tijuana, Mexico.

Jose Miranda, 138, San Fernando, stopped Leo Becerra, 141, Los Angeles, (6).

Lester, a deadly puncher, couldn't slow up Salinas and ended up with an injured right ankle.

King Henry, 168, Oakland, decision over Herman Hampton, 169, Sacramento, (6); Sugai Montgomery, 141, San Francisco, outpointed Tommy Greer, 139, Sacramento, (6); Richie Alvarado, 132, San Jose, beat Freddie Short, 131, Oakland, (6).

▲STOCKTON—Eliseo Estrada, 123½, Los Angeles, was impressive in handing Miguel Arias, 126, Mexico, a fourth round knockout at Civic Auditorium. Arias was badly hurt and suffering from a cut eye when the match was halted.

Alberto Reyes, 125½, San Jose decision over Jesus Robles, 127, Stockton, (10); Johnny Pinedo, 149, Stockton, stopped Jimmy McMullen, 147½, Oakland, (1).

▲SACRAMENTO—Rafael Gutierrez, 168½, battered Mike Pusateri, 162, Boston, into submission in 2:10 of the fourth round.

The New Englander gave his all. Cuts caused the match to be stopped. Gutierrez was well in front at the end.

Carlos Salas, 139, Sacramento, decision over Jerry Jacobs, 135, Oakland, (8); Felipe Cesena, 120, Mexico, decisioned over Baby Joe Johnson, 120, Sacramento, (8).

The gate was $7,792. A Bonanza Club promotion.

▲LONG BEACH— Former California lightweight champion Felipe Torres, 137, Los Angeles, turned on the gas in the 10th round to tumble Cesar Sinda, 133, from the Congo, at Municipal Auditorium.

Sinda, making his first main event start locally, looked like a winner until Torres made his move in the 10th round. The stocky Mexican sent Sinda to the floor with a barrage of lefts and rights to the body and head.

The fight was scheduled for "the California 135 pound title," but when Torres came in two pounds over-weight, this scheme fell by the wayside.

Other results: Carlos Barragan, 132, San Diego, dec. Chi-Chi Ontiveros, 127, Los Angeles, (6); Agapito Villegas, 141½, San Diego, outpointed Bobby Carrillo, 141, Lancaster, (6); Greg Potter, 135½, Wilmington, got the points to beat Val Chapron, 134, Los Angeles, (4).

▲SACRAMENTO—Curtis Cokes, one time welterweight kingpin, was a step or two slower than Carlos Salinas and as a result ended up on the short end of a 10 round decision at Memorial Auditorium.

Salinas, an Argentine import, was too speedy for the 30-years-plus Cokes. There were no knockdowns, but there was little doubt on the outcome.

Salinas weighed 162½; Cokes, 163.

Another Argentine, Enrique Jana, 142, Buenos Aires, handled Agapito Villegas, 143, San Diego, without too much trouble, in a companion 10-rounder.

James Helwig, 192, Oakland, KO over Lance Cotton, 229, Bakersfield, (2); Johnny Pineda, 147, Sacramento, KO over Earl Sutton, 152½, Oakland, (1).

The gate was $9,731, best in years in Sacramento. Johnny Miller, former Modesto boxer, was the promoter.

▲LOS ANGELES—Big Roby Harris, 240, Oakland, probably ended the career of Joe Orbillo, 192½, Wilmington, scoring a knockout in five rounds at Olympic.

Harris, with almost a 50 pound weight advantage, just pounded Orbillo into the canvas midway in the fifth. When Joe got to his feet, he was unable to defend himself and referee Larry Rozadilla said "Enough!"

Orbillo, athletic coach at Wilmington's Carson High, was making his first effort in eight months.

Danny Lopez, 124, Arcadia, the younger brother of welterweight contender Ernie, had no problems with Margarito Rios, 130, Mexicali. "Little Red" ended matters in the first round.

Joe Lujan, 132, Los Angeles, decisioned Jerry Williams, 133½, Santa Ana, (4); Frankie Gastelum, 153, Los Angeles, outpointed Gerardo Navarro, 153½, San Diego, (4).

▲SAN FRANCISCO—Mexico City's Rogelio Lara, 118, once again proved he was the master of Rudy Villagonza, 120½, Manila, P.I. In a prior meeting in Stockton, Lara took a close 10 round decision.

This time, at the San Francisco Civic Auditorium, Lara dropped the Filipino for the full count late in the second round. It was a picture left-right combination that did the job.

In a co feature 10-rounder, veteran Jose Valdez, 128, Tijuana, stunned Jorge Ramos, 128½, Buenos Aires, taking a narrow decision. Ramos injured his left hand, which could have been the difference.

Angel Baggini, 176, Buenos Aires, stopped Koroseta Kid, 178, Samoa, (4); Cisco Solorio, 173, Oakland, KO over Snake Hampton, 165½, Oakland, (1).

EUROPEAN GOSSIP

▲Geneva: Frenchman Roger Menetrey held on to the European welterweight crown he won from Briton Ralph Charles in June, beating his Italian challenger, Silvan Bertini, who retired in the thirteenth. Three of the 10,000 onlookers were Frenchman.

▲The arrest of European light heavyweight champion Conny Velensek, his manager Willi Zeller, middleweight Frank Reiche and German heavyweight champion Horst Benedens, damaged boxing in Germany.

▲Former European and German heavyweight champion, Peter Weiland, will not box again. Injuries, received in a car accident brought the Fenton's career to a close.

▲Gerhard Seewald, German promoter, official and referee, passed away after a long illness.

European featherweight champion Jose Legra had his television set stolen from his car. When the thieves discovered who it belonged to they confessed their crime to a priest, who returned the set to Legra without revealing the thieves.

▲The World Boxing Council ruled that their lightweight championship bout between Mando Ramos and Pedro Carrasco null and void. Ramos was disqualified in round twelve for an alleged low blow after having decked Carrasco on four occasions. Even the Spanish press criticized referee Odubote's amateurish action.

▲Jan Lubbers, Dutch light heavyweight, 27 fights with only one defeat, and Rudi Lubbers, heavyweight, 18 fights undefeated are two of the most promising fighters on the continent.

FRANCE

▲Dunkirk: Welterweight Guy Vercotter outscored Law Eklepi, ten. Lightweight Bernard Creton outscored Kid Rainbow, ten.

▲Madrid: Heavyweight Greg Peralta stopped Jose Urtain, TKO8. Mariano Eschevarria drew in a ten rounder with Joseph Wendell. Spanish junior middleweight champion Carlos San Jose drew with Angel Guinaldo over twelve rounds. Heavyweight Casimiro Martinez beat Joa Tarzan, TKO2.

▲Madrid: Jose Hernandez, European junior middleweight king, drew in a ten round non-title bout with Jose Duran. Lightweight Jonathan Dele drew with Capella, eight. Heavyweight Casimiro beat Joa Tarzan, TKO5.

▲La Coruna: Lightweight Diaz Corchito drew with Mero Barrel, eight.

▲Barcelona: Middleweight Jose Hernandez beat Angel Guinaldo, TKO5. Lightweight Gitano Giminez beat Bossi Gonzalez, TKO7.

GERMANY

▲Kelkheim: Light heavyweight champion Rudiger Schmidtke decisioned Macan Keita, eight. Wilhelm Janko outpointed Peter Donner, six. Kurt Stroer, making a comeback, beat Rimasti, Italy, KO2. Nic Suhrig beat Otto Loucky, a Checkoslovackian living in Berlin, who was disqualified in two. Junior middleweight Kurt [illegible]ombach, outscored Herida, Spain, six. [illegible]ght Ermen drew in a four rounder.

▲Frankfur[illegible] boxing in Frankfurt for the first [illegible]y four months with promoter Joach[illegible] Gutsch registering a deficit of some DM 40,000. Gerhard Zech, heavyweight, making a comeback, flopped badly. He was beaten by Gregorio Peralta, the Argentine, who recently stopped Spanish heavyweight champion Manuel Jose Urtain. A left hook to the liver koed the German in round eight. Zech visited the canvas four times. German light heavyweight champion, Rudiger Schmidtke outpointed American Roger Rouse, ten. The German's left hand gave him an advantage in each of the first seven frames. Light heavyweight Jan Lubbers, Holland, outscored Wilhelm Janko, Germany. Junior lightweight Nikkinen, Finland, outscored Klaus Jacoby, Germany, eight.

SWITZERLAND

▲Geneva: Three thousand of the 10,000 who came over the border from France to support European welterweight champion Roger Menetrey, enjoyed it. Roger retained his crown, beating Silvano Bertini, who retired in round thirteen. As in the battle with Ralph Charles when Menetrey won the crown, the champion was on one occasion behind on points. But again, as in the Charles battle, the Frenchman's fewer punches sapped his opponents strength and Bertini capitulated in frame thirteen with only fifty seconds gone. Referee Harry Gibbs, Britain, asked the Italian if he wished to continue after a knockdown and Bertini shook his head.

▲Geneva: Flyweight Fritz Chervet, Switzerland, beat Michel Spina, TKO8.

NORWAY

▲Oslo: Karl Furcht, Germany, lost on points to Christian Hoydahl, Norway, six. Gunther Valtinke, Germany, was outscored by Ray Askvold, eight. Johnny Romsaas, Norway, lost to Belgian Jean Tskikuna in the fourth. Hans Lilledahl, Norway, having his first paid bout, outscored Beaute Ouaffoung, Belgium, six.

THE INSULT THAT MADE A MAN OUT OF 'MAC'

CHARLES ATLAS, World's No. 1 Body Builder, says:

Don't Be Half A Man!

Let ME SHOW How I Can Make You a Real HE-MAN From Head to Toe — in Just 15 Minutes a Day!

Take a good honest look at yourself! Are you proud of your body — or are you satisfied to go through life being just "half the man" you could be? No matter how ashamed you are of your present physical condition — or how old or young you are — the "sleeping" muscles already present in your body can turn you into a real HE-MAN! Believe me, I know — because I was once a skinny, scrawny 97-pound half-alive weakling! People used to laugh at my build and make fun of me. I was ashamed to strip for sports or the beach . . . shy of girls . . . afraid of healthy competition.

WIN THIS VALUABLE TROPHY

HOW I CHANGED FROM A "MOUSE" TO A MAN!

One day, I discovered a secret that changed me from a timid, frightened scarecrow into "The World's Most Perfectly Developed Man" — a "magic formula" that can help turn you, too, into a marvellous physical specimen . . . a real HE-MAN from head to toe . . . a man who STANDS OUT in any crowd! What's my secret? "DYNAMIC-TENSION" — the natural method! No theory. No gadgets or contraptions. You just do as I did. Simply take the "sleeping" muscles already present inside your own body — build them up — use them every day in walking, bending over, reaching, even sitting! Almost before you know it, you're covered with a brand-new suit of beautiful, rock-hard SOLID MUSCLE!

MY SECRET BUILDS MUSCLES FAST!

Just 15 minutes each day in the privacy of your room is all it takes to make your chest and shoulder muscles swell so big they almost split your coat seams . . . turn your fists into sledge-hammers . . . build mighty legs that never tire! CHARLES STILL NO STAR; BUGNER MENDING HIS JAW would finish it off in round one, only to meet with stubborn resistance. Gray jabbed his way back into the fight.

Imrie coasted a couple of rounds, then came back with hefty punches in the fifth and Tommy tired. The stoppage came a mere three seconds before the scheduled end of the fight. He was cut at both eyes, and his left ear was lacerated.

Paddy Maguire, Belfast, 118¼, stopped Karim Young, Nigeria, 121¼, in four. Young was cut about the face.

Mohammed Ellah, Ghana, caused a surprise by stopping the previously unbeaten Steve Hudson, Peckham, 143, in four. Hudson showed his chin, and Ellah said thank you. Ellah had won only two of eleven bouts this year.

▲Conteh, Liverpool, 180¼, stopped Frank Bullard, Canada, 183, in two rounds at Wembley. Bullard was floored four times before the referee stopped it. Three out of three for Conteh, who looks exciting.

Johnny Frankham, Reading, 178, part-time clown, outpointed Keith Drewett, Mitcham, 175¼, over eight by 39¾-38½. The 'Gypsy' has beaten Drewett four times.

Johnny Stracey, Bethnal Green, 147½, made it 19 without defeat by stopping Frenchman Guy Vercoutter, 147¼, in seven rounds. The latter did a lot of back-pedalling, but Johnny kept jabbing away, finally Guy ran out of steam, the bout being stopped.

Mark Rowe, Camberwell, 160, kayoed Frenchman William Poitrimol, 162½, in five with a left hook to the chin. Rowe had been beaten by Tom Bethea the previous month. Rowe got a cut forehead early, but made light of the handicap. He has his sights set on a return with champion Bunny Sterling for the British middleweight crown.

Kevin Finnegan, Cowley, 160¾, outscored Central Area middleweight champ Pat Dwyer, Liverpool, 163, over eight, 39¾-39. Not one to be remembered. Finnegan was cut over the left eye in the sixth.

▲Newport—Nick O'Neill, Colliers Wood, 163, stopped Maurice Thomas, Antigua, 164, in six at Cleopatra's Palace. O'Neill's eyes were injured, but in the sixth he downed his man for eight, and it was halted soon after. Last May O'Neill stopped Thomas in three.

Robin Polak, Nottingham, 150, outpointed Mohammed Ellah, Ghana, 148, over eight by 39¾-39.

Roddy Evans, Newport, 137, outscored Barton McAllister, 29¾-29¼, over six.

Southpaw Needham baffled Jamet, who was nearly decked in the sixth.

Bill Deasey, Oxford, 160, outpointed Les Avoth, Cardiff, 159, over six by 29½-29¼. Deasey started slowly, but rallied in the final rounds.

Bingo Crooks, Wolverhampton, 128, made a successful pro debut by outscoring Brian Harding, West Ham, 130, over six 'twos,' by 29½-29. Harding was floored twice.

Mickey Lunch, Loughborough, 124, outscored Arrow Abu, Nigeria, 126, over six dreary rounds.

▲Midlands Sporting Club, Solihull—Two eliminators for the British welterweight title were decided. Bobby Arthur, Coventry, 145½, outpointed Frank Young, Belfast, 146½, over twelve by 59¾-57¾. A fine display by Arthur, who at 24 appears to be nearing his peak.

Young did plenty of attacking, but Arthur countered effectively, always having an answer.

Les Pearson, Pontefract, 143½, comfortably outscored former champion Johnny Cooke, Bootle, 145¾, over 12 by 60-57¾. It was a repeat performance by Pearson, but the first time there was controversy over the verdict.

Cooke was marked facially, and a final spurt by Pearson over the last couple of rounds put the issue beyond all doubt.

Paddy Graham, Belfast, 120, had it easy to outpoint Gareth Howells Llanelli, 121, over eight by 40-38½. Howells was down for nine in the fifth.

Dave Roden, Birmingha, 190, confirmed a previous win by outpointing Paul Cassidy, Bournemouth, 188, over six, 29¾-29¼.

▲National Sporting Club, London—Don McMillan, Glasgow, 161¼, convincingly outpointed Tom Bell, Grenada, 162, over eight by 39¾-39¼. A hard-punching contest, Don jabbed effectively early on, and nearly had his man down in the seventh.

Clive Cook, Cardiff, 161, beat Dusty Smith, Harlesden, 159¼, the bout being stopped when Smith hurt his knees in the fourth round. He had taken a count of six in that round, and was down for eight in the second.

Freddie McMillan, Glasgow, 140, drew with Barton McAllister, Tooting, over six.

Vic Humphries, Kilburn, 175½, stopped Bill Sutherley, Richmond, 170, in five, after flooring him for six in the fourth and fifth.

▲Anglo-American Sporting Club, London—Dennis Flynn, Enfield, outpointed Gerry McBride, Manchester, 128, over eight tough rounds, 39¾-39. Flynn survived a nearly-closed right eye, also a car crash on his way to the fight. McBride tried everything to take him out but southpaw Flynn wisely stuck to his boxing.

Des Morrison, Jamaica, 142½, stopped Ron Woods, Sydenham, 146, in the sixth and final round. Woods apparently broke his jaw.

Pat McCann, Harrow, 159½, made it six straight by outscoring Prince Duko, Ghana, 160, over six by 30-28¾. Southpaw McCann boxed his way home against an opponent who preferred hooks and swings.

Paddy Doherty, Ballyshannon, 160, was in a hurry, stopping Mick Hussey, Islington, 160, in 1:45 of the first round. There were no knockdowns, but Hussey was bewildered at Doherty's speed.

▲Top Rank Suite, Reading—Three in a row for Les Stevens, Reading, 192½, who kayoed Frenchman Henri Ferjules, 205½. The latter was decked twice in the fourth and the second time he failed to beat the count.

Noel McIvor, Luton, 139, outpointed Ronnie Clifford, Halifax, 138, over eight by 39¾-39¼.

Charlie Cooper, Fareham, 150½, stopped Leroy Mack, Harlesden, 147½, who retired with an injured ankle in the third.

Les Davies, Bangor, 146½, outpointed Pat Marshall, Bristol, 148, over six, 29¾-29¼.

▲Oceans Eleven Club, Manchester—Southpaw George Gray, Southend, 173, kayoed Barry Clough, Stoke, 177, in two after flooring him for seven.

Terry Armstrong, Manchester, 174½, stopped Pat Mahoney, Cardiff, 173, in five. The latter got an eye injury.

Mickey Flynn, Manchester, 148½, floored Jim Moore, Bradford, 148, for eight in the third before knocking him out with a right to the chin.

▲Nottingham Ice Stadium—Joe Bugner, St. Ives, 217¼, sustained a broken jaw and will be out of the ring for three months at least after being outpointed by American Larry Middleton, 203, over ten by 49¼-48¾.

Nothing seems to go right for Bugner. After an inept display against Jack Bodell in their tripe title fight he went to America and outpointed Mike Boswell. But again he didn't impress. Against Middleton he showed up well early on, but was slow to follow up his advantages.

Bugner was floored in the final round, and this was enough to send the fans home unhappy.

It wasn't known then that Joe was in intense pain and later had a wisdom tooth extracted. The jaw was then wired. He wants to continue his career, and manager Andy Smith says he'll be a better fighter when he does come back.

No trouble for John Conteh, Liverpool, 175½, in outpointing American Tony Burwell, 177, over eight by 40-38, winning every round. He was taken the distance for the first time.

Dave Needham, Nottingham, 117, beat British flyweight champion John McCluskey, Hamilton, 115½, the bout being stopped in the eighth when Mac suffered a cut left eyebrow.

The 27-year-old McCluskey, unable to get opposition in his own division, fought well against a youngster of 20 who can't get opposition in his the bantam division, and has had to meet top featherweights.

Southpaw Needham boxed well and had just about got his nose in front when the stoppage came. Dave got a cut over the right eye in the fifth, but his corner repaired the damage.

Richard Dunn, Halifax, 201½, stopped Cliff Field, Dunstable, 197½, in the fourth because of a cut over Field's right eye. Southpaw Dunn was in command and gained his sixth in a row.

Howard Hayes, Doncaster, 129½, made it twelve without defeat by forcing Paul Bromley, Wolverhampton, 133½, to retire in the third, with a cut mouth. Howard was well on top.

Tom Imrie, Edinburgh, 157½, gained his third win by stopping Barry Calderwood, Manchester, 157½, in the second. The latter was down for four in the first round.

Tommy Joyce, Doncaster, 147¼, unbeaten in eleven bouts, outscored Dave Moore, Grimsby, 147½, over eight by 39¾-38½. Joyce, a southpaw, jabbed his way to victory.

Phil Bryant, Caerphilly, 127½, stopped Billy Belnevis, Wolterhampton, 134½, in the fifth, after flooring him for five.

Dave Nelson, Wolverhampton, 163, halted Billy Brooks, Chiswick, 165, in the second when Brooks got a cut left eye. The latter had been down for eight.

▲Croydon—Angus McMillan, Glasgow, 137¾, stopped Freddie Williams, Nuneaton, 138, in the eighth and final round.

Panther Cyril, Nigeria, 161, halted Peter Mullins, Birmingham, 164, in the fourth after flooring him for eight.

Ray Fallone, Battersea, 147, drew with Freddie McMillan, Glasgow, 141, over six.

Don Burgin, Durham, 136, outscored Barton McAllister, Clapham, 137, over six.

▲Leeds Town Hall—Tommy Sobles, Leeds, 137, outpointed Herbie McLean, Edinburgh, 136, over eight by 39¾-39. Not only did it reverse a previous decision, but McLean had been selected to take part in a final eliminator for the British lightweight title.

One of the best young featherweight prospects in the country, Billy Waith, Cardiff, 127½, outpointed Young Silky, Leeds, 129, over eight by 39¼-39. Waith seemed to have won by a larger margin.

Bobby Tuckett, Leeds, 168, halted George Gray, Southend, 170, in six. The latter got an eye injury and was being punished when the bout was stopped.

Fine pro debut by former ABA champion Alan Richardson, Fitzwilliam, 127½, who outpointed Arrow Abu, Nigeria, 128, over six by 30-29.

N[ξξπ▲Anglo-Welsh Sporting Club, Caerphilly—Ricky Porter, Swindon, 148¾, was outclassing American Angel Ortiz, 151½, when he got a cut over the left eye, causing the bout to be stopped in Ortiz' favour in the fifth.

Dave Cranswick, Barry, 152, stopped Mohammed Ellah, Ghana, 148, in two after flooring him for six.

Joe Yekkini, Nigeria, 142, scraped home against Derek Simpson, Kilmarnock, 140, by 39¼-39 over six. The decision was booed.

▲York Hall, London—It lasted only five rounds, but what a fight! Joe Tetteh, Ghana, 138¾, and Pat McCormack, Brixton, 139¾, belted away and Pat came off worse. When the bout was stopped he hadn't been down, but he was cut by the left eye and bleeding from the nose.

Tetteh is a World-class lightweight who can't get work in his adopted Britain, and McCormack is a Junior welter, a division which was abolished by the British Boxing Board of Control.

Johnny Wall, Shorewitch, 163½, stopped Dave Nelson, Wolverhampton, 163, in five. Wall himself went down twice, each time without a count, then punished Nelson until the referee intervened.

Steve Hudson, Peckham, 143, secured his fifth successive win, by stopping Lex Wilson, Jamaica, 149½, in four. Wilson had been down thrice.

Mickey Flynn, Manchester, 145, outscored Les Davies, Bangor, 146¾, over six by 29¾-29½. Davies was injured facially by the jabbing of southpaw Flynn.

Alan Salter, Deptford, 137¾, stopped Pat Marshall, Bristol, 146, in the first round.

Brian Harding, West Ham, 130, made amends for a previous defeat by Bingo Crooks, Wolverhampton, 130, outpointing him over six 'twos' by 30-29.

▲West of England Sporting Club, Bristol—Dennis Avoth, Cardiff, 190½, Welsh heavyweight champion, was extended by Brian Jewett, Newcastle, 188½, but won on points after eight rounds by 39¼-39

RONDON EXITS BAIRD IN EIGHT

An eye cut in the second round hardly made things any more comfortable for Baird.

Rondon really went to work on Baird in the sixth round, and continued the assault in the seventh, as a preparation for the finale in the eighth.

It would appear that the list of possible matches for Foster has been reduced to Rondon.

They cannot make any money in the U.S. unless they fight each other. In Caracas, it's a different story. But Foster is not disposed to risk his title down there. Strange things sometimes have happened in Venezuela, where the fans often reach fever pitch.

BODYBUILDING COURSE –

INTRODUCING

THE BODYBUILDING SYSTEM THAT GUARANTEES –

YOU'LL PUT ON INCHES OF POWERFUL MUSCLES ON YOUR BODY!

At last, NEW bodybuilding secrets are now available for your use. Finally, after years of experimenting we have come up with the fastest muscle building system in the world. Our course really works – thousands have taken our course and have obtained fantastic results. Right in the privacy or your own bedroom, you can completely transform your body.

SEE YOUR MUSCLES GROW DAY BY DAY!

You can have POWERFUL MUSCLES FAST . . . not by years and years of hard work . . . but by simply following our fascinating system . . . a system that works so fast you can see results from day to day! Isn't that the kind of course you want? We absolutely guarantee results.

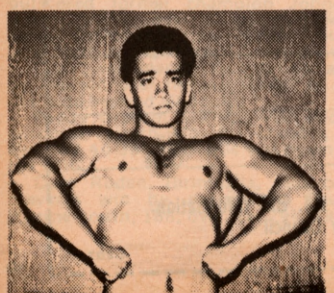
HERE ARE JUST A FEW OF THE LETTERS WE HAVE RECEIVED –

"Wow! I'm making fantastic gains, following your new method of muscle building. I never knew it could be so easy to build muscles."
J. Johnson

"In just 3 weeks I have gained 1½" on my arms and 4" on my chest. I have also lost 4" off my waist. Your course is just great!"
D. Roberts

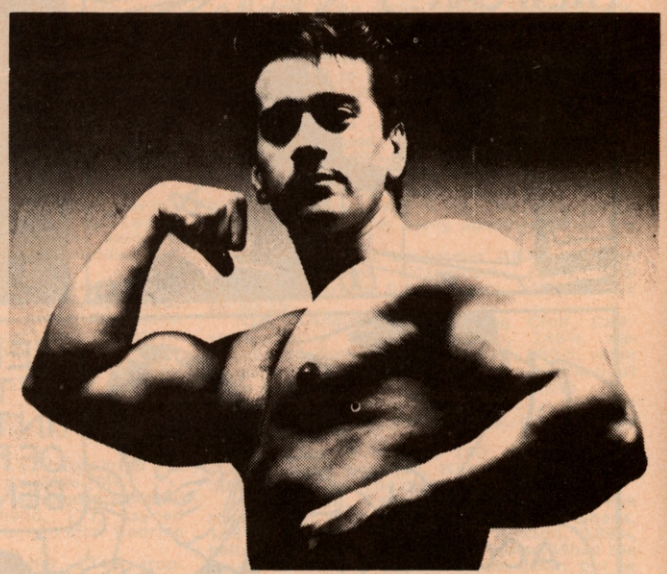
"I was a skinny weakling when I enrolled, now I've gained 30 pounds in just 45 days. I am truly amazed, I'm going to be dynamite on the beach."
B. Abbott

"I'm transforming all the fat off my body and changing it into rock-hard muscle. It's amazing – I have lost 8" off my waist. I can actually see my muscles growing from day to day."
P. Williams



"I have gained 20 pounds in just 30 days and I have gained over 6 inches on my chest. I find that my power has doubled. In sports I am a winner in everything I do."
B. Daniels

"I have gained 5" on my arms and 12" on my chest, while losing 3" off my waist. I have tripled my power and speed. Thanks for what you have done for me!"
M. Robinson



MORRIE MITCHELL GAINED 65 POUNDS OF MUSCLE WHILE FOLLOWING OUR 'REVOLUTIONARY NEW METHODS' ON BODYBUILDING.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE! You Can Do This...

★ DOUBLE OR TRIPLE YOUR STRENGTH in record time! It wouldn't take long before you can perform feats of strength.

★ BUILD HUGE – GIANT SIZE muscles – fast. You'll have bulging muscles before you know it.

★ TRIM YOUR WAIST by following ultra-modern methods. It won't take long before your waist shows washboard abdominal muscles.

★ GAIN WEIGHT – You can actually gain up to 50 pounds of rock-hard muscle.

★ LOSE FAT – You'll find it easy to get rid of excess fat and replace it with muscle.

★ FEEL 100% BETTER – You can't help but feel great once you own a muscular body.

Start a great new life of service and adventure in Conservation Country!

These patches represent outdoor careers for which the National School trains you; not the official patches of any State, Federal or private conservation service.

We'll train you in your spare time for an exciting Outdoor Career

Thousands of jobs will be opening up in wildlife management, parks and outdoor recreation, forestry, etc.

Why spend the best days of your life punching a time clock in an office, store or factory — when you may be able to qualify for one of the thousands of new jobs that are coming up in the great outdoors because of concern for conservation and ecology.

Imagine getting paid for work you'll enjoy

Don't settle for only occasional hunting, fishing and boating trips. Live and work right next to nature — in real man country—all year round. Every year there are new openings in State and National Parks, the forest industry, game refuges and preserves, private hunting and fishing clubs and recreational facilities.

Here's how you can qualify . . . Start now!

The National School of Conservation will help you prepare at home, in your spare time, for an exciting outdoor opportunity. This accredited train-at-home program has been created by experts in the field of conservation. These men have years of on-the-job experience . . . and they share it with you, through every step of your training. You can even keep your present job as you learn at home . . . working at your own pace. National School of Conservation is America's oldest established and accredited home-study conservation school; so you know you're in capable hands. When you graduate, National School will assist you in contacting public and private conservation organizations and help you explore available job openings.

Good Pay . . . Job Security . . . Low Living Costs — a great combination!

You can earn a good living, with advancement possibilities and raises based on seniority and performance. As a bonus, some jobs include uniform allowances, hospital insurance, pension plans, vacations with pay . . . and your paychecks come through regularly — good times or bad.

You only live once . . . make it a life of adventure

The man who wears the insignia of a forestry, conservation, wildlife or park agency is a man of action called upon to rescue people in danger . . . to enforce our laws and protect our wildlife . . . to direct citizens in time of emergencies . . . even lead fire fighting crews. What's more, the conservationist has the satisfaction of knowing that he is serving his country . . . safeguarding her forests, parks, ranges and wildlife. Future generations will be grateful to him for preserving the natural beauty of our American heritage.

Send for Free Career Guidebook

There are few careers that offer a man such exciting challenges . . . such rich rewards. But a career like this can be yours — even with no experience or college if you train now. Get all the facts. Mail the coupon for your Free Career Guidebook. There's no obligation and no salesman will call on you. National School of Conservation, 1129-20th Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

"Thank you for your great course. I highly recommend your school to anyone interested in the field of conservation. I have taken the Civil Service test for Conservation Inspector for the state of Illinois, and received an A for my final grade." — George E. Wood, Illinois.
